Truman Still Follows CIO Principles, Taft Asserts

Ohio Republicans Unanimously Indorse Senator for 1948 Presidential Race

By D. Harold Oliver
Associated Press Staff Writer

Columbus, Ohio, July 31 (AP).—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) declared tonight President Truman "is still dominated by the principles of the CIO" and the only way to get cooperation on domestic problems and redeem what he called a "bedraggled foreign policy" is to elect a Republican President in 1948.

He asserted he is "not happy about the country's foreign policy"; that the Administration's German policy "has wrecked the economy of Europe and now we are called upon for cash from our taxpayers to remedy the breakdown."

Taft, indorsed earlier in the day by the Ohio Republican State Committee and the State's GOP delegation in Congress for his party's presidential nomination next year, critized the President in both the foreign and domestic field and indicated this would be his line of attack when he takes the stump in September.

1300 Attend Rally

The senior Senator at an afternoon conference thanked his fellow Republicans for their indorsement and said he would make a definite decision whether to run October 3, when he returns from his Western speaking trip. All signs indicate he will make the race.

At tonight's rally, attended by 1300 Republicans from Ohio and nearby States, Taft praised the record of the Republican-controlled Congress session just finished. He struck vigorously at what he called its Communist and New Deal critics.

As for the Marshall Plan, he said his party is interested in reasonable loans to foreign countries "to go to work and help themselves, but I believe those loans hereafter should be confined to actual goods, machinery and equipment necessary to enable the countries which receive them to restore their own productive ability . . .

Democratic Division Cited

"Certainly," he added, "we must move very cautiously and be sure that additional loans really furnish incentive to the foreign peoples involved to work harder to support themselves, and are not too burdensome on our own taxpayers."

Taft said throughout the Congressional session adjourned last Sunday "it has become clear that the President is completely opposed to the principles of the Republican Congress, representing the people of the United States." He added:

"He has often talked in a conservative way, but in every crisis he has shown that he is still dominated by the principles of the CIO. It is not his personal fault. He faces a division in the Democratic Party in which the Democratic success depends upon retaining in the Democratic Party the radical and Communist votes of the largest northern cities. The people can never expect a Democratic President to take any other position.

"The President clearly believes in the New Deal doctrine of spending, spending, spending. He has shown not the slighest interest in one cent of economy. He believes in taxing, taxing, now and as far

Clouds, Rain Curb Heat; 84 Degrees Forecast Today

Nature provided its own parasol yesterday for residents of the Washington area.

The clouds, which provided intervals of rain, were credited with averting the predicted high temperature of 98 degrees. Maximum temperature was 85 degrees at 10:26 a. m.

Today's high was expected to be 94 degrees. Lower humidity also was forecast.

Body of Sergeant Found Booby Trapped By Searching Party

By Homer Bigart

Nathanya, July 31.—The blackened and fly-blown bodies of Sergts. Mervain Paice and Clifford Martin of the British army intelligence were found hanging at dawn today from twin eucalyptus trees in a small clearing in the government forest, 2 miles southeast of Nathanya.

From the decomposed condition of the bodies, it was apparent that Irgun had carried out its threat Tuesday evening and hanged the two sergeants in revenge for the execution on Acre gallows, early Tuesday, of three Irgunists, condemned by a British military court for participating in the attack on Acre Prison, May 4.

Martin's body was booby-trapped, Nazi fashion. When Martin fell to the ground he set off a mine which destroyed most of his body and slightly injured a British captain who cut him down.

Trick Evokes Fury

It was this cunning trick of Irguns, which evoked in all onlookers—British and Jewish—an emotion of cold fury.

When news reached Nathanya, panic seized the Yemenite quarter of B'nai Zion, where oriental Jews feared an outbreak of violence by troops in nearby camps. Hastily gathering their belongings, families fled to the center of the town, where they tried to board buses and taxis for interior settlements. Many took off across fields. Finally, Mayor Ovid Ben Ami issued a proclamation urging public calm.

The discovery of the two sergeants was made at 6:30 a. m. by a Jewish settlement policeman named Friedman, who, with a party of Haganah youths, had resumed at dawn a search of the woods, where Irgun had said the bodies would be found. Mayor Ben Ami had received an anonymous telephone message, "the place where the bodies are kept is mined. Warn civilians not to search." He relayed this warning immediately to the search party, and then notified the military.

Policeman Unnerved

At dawn Friedman came upon a small clearing in the middle of which stood two fully grown trees. He glimpsed two pair of legs, tied together, swinging slowly in the breeze. Friedman gagged, and ran wildly through the sand track, screaming, "there they are."

Friedman was no unnerved that when the police and military reached the forest, more than an hour later, he was unable to find the clearing. The party spread out and moved cautiously through the woods.

At the edge of the clearing a police inspector warned that the area might be mined and ordered ev-

Tommies Wound 18 In Retaliation for Death of Comrades

Jerusalem, July 31 (AP).—The hanging of two British sergeants and the booby trap mutilation of their bodies by a Zionist underground gang brought a bloody response from enraged British troops tonight as five Jews were killed and at least 18 wounded by gunfire from armored cars in the streets of Tel Aviv.

The blackened and bloody bodies of the two 20-year-old sergeants, Clifford Martin and Mervyn Paice, who were seized as hostages by Irgun Zvai Leumi nearly three weeks ago, were found today swinging at the end of nooses in an eucalyptus grove south of Natanya. A booby trap exploded and scattered bits of flesh for 100 yards when the first body was cut down.

Following the finding of the bodies, the terror-racked Holy Land waited in fear that new acts of reprisal and counter-reprisal would far exceed the violence of the past several weeks.

Fire From Armored Cars

Palestinians did not have long to wait, and tonight a reliable source said Jews and British soldiers clashed in the streets of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv and indiscriminate shooting began from armored cars.

The raking of two buses by gunfire caused most of the casualties, the source said. Three persons were killed in one bus and one in another, while a fifth person died in a hospital of bullet wounds. At one time, eight armored cars opened up with their guns, the informant reported.

The dead were two women, two men and a young boy. Damage to shops and other property was placed at $100,000. Late tonight all British troops and British police patrols were withdrawn from Tel Aviv and the tension eased.

A Jewish source said that Haganah, moderate Jewish underground group, was fearful of the result of the Tel Aviv incident—bloodiest single episode in the past weeks' history of Holy Land violence—and ordered its members, which it calls the "Jewish National Defense Army," on a "stand by" basis throughout the country.

More Kidnapings Feared

Haganah, which termed the hangings of the sergeants as "the most foul act of the Irgun murderers yet," was said to believe that the Stern gang, Irgun's rival in Zionist violence, "may try to kidnap other British soldiers."

Prior to the soldiers' gunfire raid in Tel Aviv, five British soldiers stopped their jeep on a street of the Jewish city and began attacking Jews with sticks and stones. The streets quickly were emptied of pedestrian and motor traffic. Business establishments closed their doors and public transportation ground to a halt.

A Tel Aviv cafe was shot up and

King Formally Approves

Wedding Date for Elizabeth And Philip Set for Nov. 20

London, July 31.—Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the British throne, and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, will be married on November 20, in Westminster Abbey, it was announced at Buckingham Palace tonight.

The palace statement said: "The King and Queen have approved that the marriage of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten shall take place at Westminster Abbey at 11:30 a. m. on Thursday, November 20, 1947."

The announcement followed today's meeting of the Privy Council at which King George VI formally declared his consent to the marriage.

Necessary alterations to Westminster Abbey in preparation for a big public ceremony are expected to begin shortly. Princess Elizabeth's dressmakers already have begun making her trousseau, it is understood.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Francis Fischer, one of the 13 privy counselors who attended today's meeting, will officiate at the wedding, which under present plans will be a combination of pageantry and austerity.

Greece Urges U. N. to Stop Aggressors

Threatens to Seek Outside Remedy If Russia Again Resorts to Veto

Lake Success, N. Y., July 31 (U.P.).—Greece charged formally today that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia were guilty of "bold aggression," and asked the United Nations Security Council to use force if necessary to halt the attacks.

Greek Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris told the Council that the three Russian-sponsored countries were "being encouraged by a member of the Security Council,"—an obvious thrust at Russia—and threatened to seek a remedy outside the U. N. if the Council again is "frustrated" by a Soviet veto.

The Greek complaint was the most serious ever laid before the U. N. and had the full backing of Britain and the United States. It was submitted only after long consultation between Greek and American officials here and in Washington.

First Step Against Veto

Tsaldaris said the three Balkan countries were continuing to send armed bands across the Greek border in an effort to "overthrow the duly elected government and to set up a minority dictatorship responsive to alien control."

The Greek charge was the first step by the Western powers against Russia's veto of the proposed U. N. border watch in the Balkans.

Tsaldaris said drastic U. N. action was warranted by the facts existing in Greece on June 26.

"Since that time," he said, "the peace has been further threatened and broken by additional acts."

"This is the truth," his letter stated, "and the truth cannot be vetoed."

Asks Prompt Action

Tsaldaris said countries that respect the principles of the U. N. Charter would have to find "other means" of preserving the peace if Council efforts "prove to be inadequate or are frustrated by the voting procedures of the Council (the veto)."

"Greece," he said, "requests that this charge may be taken up

U. S. Mediation Offer Accepted by Dutch

Lake Success, N. Y., July 31 (U.P.).—The United States offered to mediate the Indonesian conflict today and The Netherlands, accepting the offer, announced it also would invite "a number of other governments" to make an on-the-spot investigation of the warfare between Dutch and Indonesian forces.

Dutch officials qualified their acceptance of the American offer, however, stating that American mediation would be welcomed by the Dutch "as soon as law and order" are established. This presumably would be "just a matter of a few days," the Dutch said.

The Dutch and American offers were disclosed to the U.N. Security Council tonight at the tail end of its most important sessions.

After four hours, the meeting adjourned, deciding to hold two sessions tomorrow. The first session will be devoted to the Indonesian question.

In an apparent effort to avert a serious fight over the U. N.'s right to act in the Indonesian warfare, Dutch Ambassador to the United States, Eelco van Kleffens advised the Council that the Netherlands was ready to let other countries inspect the situation in all the Dutch East Indies as well as Indonesia.

If the United States should offer "a helping hand," Van Kleffens said the Dutch would accept the offer.

Acting American Delegate Herschel V. Johnson then disclosed that the United States had offered only today to mediate the dispute in an effort to stop the hostilities which have been lead before the U. N. as a "breach of world peace."

Record B-29 Flight Due Here at Noon

Eight Planes Leave Alaska for D. C.; Clip 29 Minutes Off Tokyo Estimate

Anchorage, Alaska, July 31 (INS).—Seven of a flight of eight Army Air Forces B-29 Superfortresses took off from here at 4:30 p. m. (PST) on the last leg of a record-attempting mass hop from Tokyo to Washington, D. C.

The Superforts were expected to fly over the Washington Monument at noon (EDT) tomorrow, Air Forces Day.

One plane was forced down at Adak in the outer Aleutians after developing fuel pump trouble.

[The United Press said that the eighth plane, repairs made, had caught up with the rest of the squadron and was continuing the flight to Washington.]

The seven planes made the Anchorage landing 29 minutes ahead of schedule after a flight of 14 hours and 17 minutes from Tokyo.

The first plane into Anchorage had a close call. With a ceiling of only 1100 feet and a rain squall blowing up, another plane came in and veered away, narrowly missing the first plane.

Another of the Superforts, churning through the soupy mist at Anchorage, made a sharp bank just in time to avoid crashing into a spruce-draped hillside near the landing field.

The planes took about three hours to refuel before taking off again. They were expected to use some 80,000 gallons of gasoline on the 7000-mile flight from Tokyo to Washington.

The big bombers, comprising the 492d Bomb Squadron of the Army's Eighth Air Force, are under command of Lieut. Col. Howard F. Hugos, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Two Fields Here Set For Biggest Air Shows

While record-seeking B-29s and P-80 Shooting Stars wing toward Washington today to mark the AAF's fortieth anniversary, two Army air installations here will go all out on their birthday.

At Bolling Field and Andrews Field, the Air Forces will show a token might—a little bit of everything they fly, from a helicopter and L-5 "Grasshoppers" to bombers, fighters and President Truman's new DC-6, "The Independence."

Bolling also will show a guided-missile collection, photo exhibit, an air jump by paradoctors and will decorate two men, one of them a Washington captain.

Capt. Charles T. Taylor, of 1650 Howard st. nw., will receive an Oak Leaf Cluster for his Air Medal for meritorious achievement in the Pacific area. Sergt. Frank Jakobowski, of Jersey City, N. J., will receive the Air Medal during the parade and retreat ceremonies at 5:30 p. m.

Andrews Field will show its fleet P-80s and three more which will race in from Miami, Chicago and Bangor, Me., on unofficial speed runs. They are expected about 11 a. m.

Also for public view will be the squadron of Britain's Lincoln bombers, which will take off at 10:20 a. m. for an Eastern seaboard flight and return about 3:45 p. m., with a P-80 escort.

Washington also will be visited by aircraft of the Tactical Air Command's Ninth Air Force at Greenville Army Air Base, S. C.

The combined shows will constitute the greatest exhibition of air power ever seen in Washington skies, AAF officials promised yesterday.

Andrews Field's open house will begin at 10 a. m., Bolling's at 1:30 p. m. Photographers will be given a field day and free rein, the officials added.

W. Averell Harriman, Secretary of Commerce, will be the principal speaker at the annual Air Force Day banquet at the Statler Hotel at 7:30 tonight. The event will attract high Army, Navy and Government officials, including Secretary of State Marshall, Fleet Admirals Leahy and Nimitz and former Gen. James H. Doolittle, president of the Air Force Association.

You, Too, Can Be Bright!

Everwhere one goes these days someone starts talking about atomic energy in a superior manner—using eight-dollar words.

Your barber airily mentions "cyclotrons."

Your taxi driver chips in with something about "isotopes."

It is very embarrassing.

But you might as well get into it now for these eight-dollar terms are going to be two-bit words tomorrow. Atomic energy is here to stay.

Hughes Defies Senate, Declares He Will Not Testify Till Wednesday

4 Specific Points

Ford Would Ignore Labor Law Provisions for Worker Pledges

Detroit, July 31 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. offered tonight to ignore damage suit provisions of the Taft-Hartley labor law if its 107,000 organized workers gave certain pledges in return.

Henry Ford 2d, president of the company, announced the offer through company offices here after a conference with CIO President Philip Murray earlier in the day.

Ford acted in the face of a strike threat from the CIO United Auto Workers, who will decide Saturday on a proposal to walk out at Ford plants, probably next week.

Ford, in a statement, laid down the following proposal:

"We have, to be specific, proposed that the company will agree not to institute suit against the union for damages arising out of illegal strikes under the following 'good faith' conditions:

"1. If the union has not inspired or authorized such an illegal strike, and

"2. If the union will agree promptly to denounce publicly such an illegal strike, and

"3. If the union and its responsible officers and agents will agree to use prompt and honest effort to prevent or end any such illegal strike, and

"4. If the impartial umpire who, by agreement with the union, decides other points of difference arising out of our contract and who has always had the complete confidence of both the union and the company, can be the final judge as to whether the union has taken these reasonable steps in regard to illegal strikes."

The CIO Auto Workers' executive board meets Saturday over a proposal of Ford UAW leaders to call the 107,000 Ford workers out on strike in an effort to enforce contract demands, including safeguards against the Taft-Hartley law.

More than 41,000 Michigan automobile workers are currently idle in strikes and layoffs. A Ford strike, approved, might be called for next week, some union sources have said.

Meanwhile, at South Bend, Ind., the Studebaker Corp. announced it would shut down its passenger

Exports Drop 13% to Halt Rising Trend

Some Federal Experts See June Decline As Turning Point

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The "first substantial interruption in the recent rising trend of exports" was reported by the Census Bureau yesterday.

June exports, it said, dropped 13 per cent below May. The total for June was 1242 million dollars, or 160 million below the postwar high of 1422 million in May.

At the same time, imports from foreign countries declined 12 million dollars in June as compared with May, or from 747 million in May to 486 million in June. Imports thus fell 776 million dollars short of meeting the cost of goods exported.

Probable Turning Point

Some Government foreign trade experts termed the decline in exports "a probable turning point," or the beginning of a downtrend in the 16-billion annual export business now furnishing employment for an estimated 3½ million persons in this country.

President Truman, in his mid-year economic report to Congress July 21, classed the "extraordinary excess of exports over imports" as one of three "temporary props to our economic system.

"As they weaken," he added, "we shall need to make many basic readjustments to complete the transition to a permanently stable and maximum-level peacetime economy."

Some observers yesterday pointed out that part of the June slump could be attributed to (1) one day less in June than in May, and (2) the three-day shipping strike of June 16 to 19.

President Forecast Decline

A decline in June or soon thereafter, was forecast in the President's economic report.

"The world demand for all kinds of goods is so great, and the supply of those goods elsewhere than in the United States is so limited, that foreign buying in the American markets in the coming months will certainly reach the limit of the buying power of other nations" the report stated. However, it then added:

"Under present prospects this buying power is likely soon to decline, at least for a considerable number of foreign nations."

The reason, the report said, was the near exhaustion of the five-bil-

Eaton Urges Action Against Russia in U. N.

Psychological Attack Or Later One by Arms Called Alternatives

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) yesterday proposed the United States "put Russia in her place now without resorting to force."

Calling for a showdown within the United Nations, Eaton said the United States must either stop Russian expansion immediately or fight her later.

In an article appearing in the American Magazine, the white maned House advocate of a bipartisan foreign policy predicted Russia will change her course if she is faced with expulsion from the United Nations.

Suggests Grand Coalition

"We can stop her by asserting our leadership of the other members of the Big Five group and of the smaller nations who aspire to our democratic ideals," he said.

"We must tell the world what we stand for, and that we mean to insure the freedom of people everywhere, and invite others who believe as we do to join us in a combination against all totalitarianism in whatever form it emerges, voting out of the United Nations any member who practices it.

"We must implement these high-sounding promises with action. Then it will be up to Russia. She can go along with us, and I rather think she will."

Lesson From Germany?

Eaton, recently named head of a special House committee investigation of Marshall Plan potentialities, said Russia must have learned from Germany's two abortive attempts "that it is not an easy job to lick the world."

"If she doesn't give in and behave like a civilized nation, we must read Russia out of the United Nations and proceed without her—we and the rest of the world citizens who want peace and freedom," he said.

Eaton said Russia's "aggressive and imperialistic actions" take on the color of legality within the United Nations, as long as they go unchallenged.

"Ejected, she will become an outcast and an outlaw in the eyes of the world. I doubt whether any nation can long endure such ostracism and moral isolation. Each

'Forthwith' Subpena Flown West by Investigators Into Wartime Contracts

By Marv Spargo
Post Reporter

Howard Hughes, multimillionaire plane builder, last night issued a blunt defiance to the Senate War Investigating Committee, which has issued a subpena for him to testify here immediately.

Hughes, whose wartime plane contracts with the Government are under investigation, angrily replied in Los Angeles that he'd come to Washington, Wednesday, and not a day sooner.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), whose subcommittee flew a "forthwith" subpena to a United States Marshal in Los Angeles last night, told The Washington Post Hughes would have to come when the committee directed his presence.

"Won't Be Intimidated"

A "forthwith" subpena calls upon a witness to start heading toward the witness stand at once by the fastest possible means of transportation.

If the United States marshal's office in Los Angeles, which will receive the subpena about 8:40 a. m. tody, Los Angeles time, can find the wealthy plane manufacturer and movie producer and touch him with the document, Hughes will have to obey or face possible charge of contempt of Congress.

In the latest round of his transcontinental battle with the investigators, Hughes said he wasn't going to be intimidated or made "to jump through a hoop."

Hurling his challenge to the Senators he declared:

"I made a firm agreement with Ferguson's committee that I would appear Wednesday, August 6."

Ferguson Denies Agreement

"This committee made no agreement with Mr. Hughes," replied Ferguson.

"I mean business, Mr. Hughes' testimony is necessary at this point in the hearing. There are six members here, three Democrats and three Republicans, and we want to get through these hearings."

Ferguson added that he would think Hughes would want to come and testify after the testimony that went into the record yesterday.

Insisting on his Wednesday date, Hughes declared:

"I expect to have my facts and figures and dates researched and available at that time.

"I have made my plans to go across the country to Washington at that time.

"I am a little tired of being pushed around and intimidated by Senators Brewster and Ferguson just because they have some very strong powers which are granted to all Senators, but which were not intended to be misused for

1 Dead, 3 Hurt As Gale Lashes Shenandoah Town

Buena Vista, Va., July 31 (U.P.).—A gale which whipped up winds to 60-mile-an-hour velocity tore through this Shenandoah Valley town of 3000 today, killing one man and slightly injuring three others.

The force of the storm picked up the Seay general store and whirled it down on the Augusta Cleaners, where the victim, a new employe, whose name was not immediately known to townspeople, was working. Three persons in the general store were slightly hurt.

Trees were uprooted and communications were knocked out as the gale was followed by a severe electrical storm.

At Richmond a bolt of lightning struck the Carillon Theater but no one in the audience of 300 was reported injured.

In Luray, Va., wind destroyed four training type airplanes and blew down a hangar. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

The wind and rain storm also knocked out power lines, and in some sections secondary roads were blocked by fallen trees.

After Freak Toy Mishap

Fireman's First Aid Credited With Saving 2-Year-Old's Life

Two-year-old Cecilia Cuticchia of 527 Peabody st. ne. probably owes her life today to the speedy first aid given her by a fast-thinking fireman, Pvt. Richard F. Farr of No. 15 Truck Company.

Captain Robert Lynch recommending Farr for a Fire Department commendation, related this sequence of events Tuesday night:

Cecilia, while handing over to her mother the broken handle of a toy, tripped and fell on the street. The knob-end of the wooden shaft jabbed down her throat.

After extracting the shaft, and giving the child water, the mother, Mary Cuticchia, 23, found Cecilia "gurgling, way down in her throat, and starting to turn purple."

Just then Farr came along, returning home from a firemen's ball game. He struck several fingers down the child's throat, forcing out the coagulated blood which was strangling her.

A physician later told the family the action probably saved Cecelia's life. She is "doing nicely" under doctor's care, on a raw egg and milk diet.

Farr is a 26-year-old Air Force veteran, on the fire force 19 months. He lives at 517 Peabody st. ne., and is the father of 5-year-old son, Richard Farr, jr.

Oath Administered to Perlman As Solicitor General of U. S.

By The Associated Press

Philip B. Perlman, 57, Baltimore Democrat, was sworn in yesterday as Solicitor General of the United States, second highest office in the Justice Department.

Nominated by President Truman in January to succeed J. Howard McGrath, who resigned last fall before his successful campaign to be United States Senator from Rhode Island, Perlman was confirmed in the dying hours of the Senate early last Sunday morning.

The Senate approved him by a 58 to 21 vote after a three-hour filibuster by Senator Brewster (R., Me.) to delay action on the nomination in retaliation for Democratic tactics in blocking a vote on an investigation into alleged Kansas City vote frauds.

Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson of the United States Supreme Court administered the oath to Perlman in the great hall of the Department of Justice after Attorney General Tom Clark told 300 friends of Perlman, "I know Mr. Perlman will make a great solicitor general."

Perlman pledged his "best efforts and hardest work."

Others present included: Senator O'Conor (D., Md.); Governor Lane of Maryland; Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., Mayor of Baltimore and former Democratic Congressman; Ogle Marbury, chief judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals, and Joseph R. Byrnes, president of the Maryland State Senate.

Senators Defied by Hughes, Says He'll Testify Wednesday

the promotion of a three-wing publicity circus."

Fireworks Expected

Ferguson commented wryly that Hughes "does not appear to be intimidated."

Hughes has been having a running battle anyway for the past several days, with Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the full committee.

So far the debate has been via press wires across the country but fireworks are confidently expected when the two meet face to face in the Senate Caucus Room.

Hughes' publicity agent, John Meyer, today will face committee questioning on his expense accounts for entertaining a string of Government big wigs and glamorous party girls.

Meanwhile a bombload of startling new testimony about Hughes' contract with the Government for the 310-foot seaplane, still unflown, was dropped during yesterday's hearing.

Jones Negotiated Terms

Some of the highlights are:

1. Under terms negotiated by Hughes' good friend, Jesse Jones, then head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Government cannot get its hands on the plane for another four-and-a-half years unless there is a war.

2. Government experts agreed that the life of the plane is not likely to be more than four-and-one-half or five years. It is constructed of plywood and not considered durable in salt water.

3. Hughes has exclusive right to lease the giant eight-engined "Hercules" built rom taxpayers' funds, for four years after the date of delivery, last February 10.

4. The cost of $37,500 a month, plus $50 each flying hour, plus $6.25 an hour for the use of each engine, will be charged against the funds Hughes himself has spent on the plane up to the sum of two million dollars.

Other Provisions

5. Until the two million dollars is exhausted the Government has no right to the plane, except in the case of war. Rent of the plane which starts after next February 10 would total about $500,000 per year, if the plane is idle.

6. Meanwhile, Hughes has the exclusive right to test the plane. Under a supplementary agreement, the Government stated it would reimburse him up to one million dollars for such testing and would also reimburse him up to $500,000 for moving the plane from his Culver City, Calif., plant to Long Beach.

7. Hughes may sublet the plane for any rent he can obtain.

8. Neither Hughes nor the Government can get a CAA license to carry passengers in the plane as its component parts did not undergo the necessary CAA tests. The plane can fly only in test flights with pilot and crew. It can carry cargo.

Originally Designed for Tank

9. Government experts said the only way the plane could receive a full CAA license would be to take it apart and static test the various components, "which would junk the plane"; or to build duplicates of the untested parts, like the wings, and test those, a process which would take another year and cost several million dollars.

10. The plane was originally designed to carry a 65-ton tank, but the necessary strengthening for such a load was omitted. This can't now be added because the huge doors in the front of the machine have been sealed up.

11. The plane was disclosed yesterday to have cost approximately $21,115,970 in taxpayers' funds. Under the contract Jones drew, which was actually a letter of intent, the expense was supposed to be limited to $18 million. The additional funds were covered in supplementary agreements. When the first contract was let, three of the big seaplanes were supposed to be built for the $18 million.

12. Hughes was offered a contract after the letter of intent was drawn by Jones but he refused it because he did not like the terms, Government witnesses said. The letter of intent, therefore, has the full force of a contract.

The unique arrangement which allows Hughes to keep the use of the seaplane—if there is a use for it after it is tested—for the next 4½ years was made by Jesse Jones on March 27, 1944.

Jones himself told the committee about negotiating that agreement. He said:

"When we were told to go ahead with the contract, it was my job to do the negotiating. As I stated a minute ago, I tried to persuade Mr. Hughes to drop it. He was determined there was something to be gained by continuing.

Put Limit on Cost

"In the negotiations, I cannot state what he said and what I said, but I required that he agree to stand any cost above the 18 million dollars. Did you get that?"

Ferguson said he had.

"That was my contract," Jones continued. "It was my job to negotiate contracts, and in all these matters we were told to do things, and it was our job to negotiate the contract as best we could."

Later Jones said that he had been prompted "as a businessman" to put a limit on the possible expenditures.

The letter of intent which Jones said he negotiated was drawn up after the War Production Board had canceled the first Kaiser-Hughes contract for the flying boats. Jones testified he talked with the late President Roosevelt after a Cabinet meeting about the cancellation and the President had said he didn't think the contract should be dropped. Jones so notified Donald Nelson, then WPB chief, and was instructed to draw up a new contract.

To Be Served Today

The subpena, which was flown in a sealed canvas sack, will arrive at 8:40 a. m. today, Los Angeles Time. Ferguson told reporters he had arranged for United States Marshal Robert Clark to meet the plane and serve the summons immediately.

It calls for the appearance of Hughes "forthwith." Ferguson made it clear that Hughes would be expected to take the fastest means of transportation to Washington that same day. He said the subpena would be canceled if Hughes came voluntarily.

Centenarian Likes Speed

Hutchinson, Kans. (U.P.).—Mrs. Jennie Gilmore says she would like to celebrate her 101st birthday in September with a "long, fast car ride."

Returning from a 3,400-mile auto jaunt to California, Mrs. Gilmore said: "I had a delightful time. In fact, I enjoyed every minute of it except when we had to slow down at times."

Chester Hedges, 54, her grandson, who drove, said Mrs. Gilmore complained only when he dropped the speed down to 40 or 50 miles an hour on the long stretches of desert road.

"She likes to travel at around 70," he said.

Close Windows, Medico Advises

Boston (U.P.).—A Harvard medical school instructor advises against sleeping with your bedroom windows wide open.

Dr. Theodore L. Badger says it leads to colds.

Instead, Dr. Badger suggests airing and cooling bedrooms about 10 minutes before bedtime. Next, close the windows. Then leave the bedroom doors open so warm air can enter from other parts of the house.

Discussions present not only some of the problems involved in this type of work, but also suggested solutions. Attention is given to the importance of ushering in handling crowds, special considertions due vistors to the church, end-pew sitters, and other problems.

Exports Drop 13% to Halt Rising Trend

Import Increase Expected

"It is unlikely, too," Mr. Truman wrote, "that productive facilities abroad will be restored in the near future to a point that will permit significant increases in exports to the United States."

Also a number of countries have recently placed restrictions on imports from the United States, to conserve their dollar supply. These include Sweden, Mexico and several South American countries, with Great Britain and others likely to join the list.

Hard-pressed Britain, spending its 3750-million dollar loan twice as fast as originally expected, has used 700 million this month alone and has but one billion left—an amount seemingly sure to be gone by the end of the year.

Possibye Consequences

Government analysts pointed out two serious results that might follow a severe drop in exports:

1. Business and employment would be affected here, but some of the high prices and inflation in this country would be relieved if foreigners drop out of competition.

2. Inflation will grow abroad as the flow of goods from this country slackens, and the economic crisis would bring increased political disturbances.

Freight Rates Cut 25 Per Cent On 19 Air Lines

A 25-per-cent reduction in air freight rates became effective on 19 scheduled air lines last midnight, the civil aeronautics board announced yesterday.

The new rates will average 20 cents a ton-mile, compared with a previous average of 26½ cents.

At the same time, the industry's new interline forms and procedures, including a uniform airbill which serves the purpose of a waybill and a bill of lading, will become effective.

The CAB said only that it is permitting the proposed tariff to become effective and denying the protests filed by some interests. A principal objector was the Air Freight Forwarder Association, which asserted the new tariff "was of destroying the opportunity for designed for the primary purpose air freight forarders to use the services of the scheduled airlines."

Malang Falls Before Dutch Troop Advance

Batavia, Java, July 31 (AP).—The scorched, dead city of Malang, seat of the Indonesian Republic's Parliament, fell to the Dutch today, the Netherlands army announced.

A high Dutch official said Dutch columns were within 20 miles of Tjilatjap, the last important republican-held port in Java. A Republican communique acknowledged tonight that Dutch columns were "advancing" on two fronts south from Tegal.

This officials said there was an "80 per cent chance" that other Dutch troops already had, or by tomorrow would have, landed on the south coast near Tjilatjap to seize the port and prevent further destruction. Capture of this port would cut the Indonesian Republic in two virtually at its center.

An Indonesian army report said "the scorched earth policy had been applied since yesterday" in Malang. One hundred thousand Indonesians were reported to have fled the city.

A Dutch official said today that the Dutch had not speeded their military operations in order to present a fait accompli before the United Nations Security Council can act on appeals to study the Indonesian dispute. He said the drive was moving so swiftly only because there was so little opposition.

He said no decision had yet been reached as to whether to move on the Republican capital of Jogjakarta after the capture of Tjilatjap.

An Indonesian communique said Republican forces had reoccupied three towns about 20 miles west of Batavia and were proceeding toward that seat of Dutch administration "from various sides." The Dutch said this report was "nonsense."

Troops Seize Rebel Base In Paraguay

Asuncion, Paraguay, July 31 (AP).—The government of President Higinio Morinigo announced tonight the loyalist troops occupied the insurgent capital of Concepcion this morning and qualified sources declared the victory would be a "death blow" for the rebellion which began March 7.

A brief announcement over the government radio said rebel forces were fleeing in "various directions" from the northern city where the revolution began nearly five months ago—the fifteenth Paraguayan revolt in 12 years.

The insurgents had been in possession of Concepcion since March 7, when the army garrison there rebelled.

U. S. Archives Contain Data From Prussia

The National Archives has become the repository for historic secret Prussian documents covering the period from 1679 through World War I.

The documents, turned over to the National Archives by the War Department, include:

Correspondence of Frederick the Great; a seventeenth century passport signed by Frederick William, the great Elector of Brandenburg; the so-called "Von Schlieffen papers," which include plans for the German invasion of the Low Countries during World War I; propaganda leaflets dropped from balloons by Americans in 1918; the memoirs of Gen. von Ludendorff in his own handwriting, and papers by other Prussian strategists, including Von Clausewitz, Von Seekt, Von Moltke and Scharnhorst.

Lords Accept Bill Socializing Electricity

London, July 31 (AP).—The House of Lords passed today the bill nationalizing British electricity generating and distributing companies, estimated to cost $1,400,000,000.

The government will acquire about 190 private companies. The Commons already had passed the measure, which becomes effective January 1. Commons must act again on minor amendments.

opened a drive for U. N. intervention in Indonesia and Van Kleffens promptly shot back that the Security Council has no right to meddle in the affair.

If the U. N. makes any move in the matter and trouble results, he warned "the responsibility will be yours, not ours." He said the situation did not threaten world peace.

He delivered the warning after Australia urged delegates to issue an immediate cease-fire order before moving on to other possible action in the Indonesian case.

Russia served notice that the Soviet Union, too, would insist on further U. N. action.

MacArthur Is Seen Cynosure in GOP Convention in '48

By The Associated Press

Representative Van Zandt (R., Pa.), three times head of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, yesterday told da Washington newsman that General MacArthur will return from Japan before the Republican National Convention next June, and—

"Whether he desires it or not, General MacArthur will be injected into the presidential picture by the many persons in this country—veterans and nonveterans—who admire him.

"His popularity now is greater than ever. He is a world figure. America needs a man of his stature."

MacArthur, who is 67, issued a statement in 1944 saying: "I request that no action be taken that would link my name in any way with the nomination. I do not covet it, nor would I accept it."

But efforts were unavailing earlier this month to obtain comment from MacArthur in Tokyo on a statement by Lansing Hoyt, chairman of the Wisconsin MacArthur-for-President Club, that "I'm positive he will be available."

Gen. Clay, Royall Confer On U. S. German Policy

Berlin, July 31 (U.P.).—Secretary of War Kenneth Royall conferred with Military Governor Gen. Lucius Clay and a battery of his top economic advisers behind closed doors today.

Royall arrived here yesterday, reported to straighten out differences between Secretary of State George Marshall and Clay over economic policy for Germany. Marshall was said to be opposed to Clay's desire to raise Germany's production level.

promptly by the Council and that the appropriate enforcement measures be acted upon."

He said the fact that Russia was able to kill the "mild and conciliatory" measures proposed by the United States could not "fail to encourage the bellicose elements in southeastern Europe to intensify their campaign of destruction."

[The Associated Press said the Greek complaint was submitted formally to the United Nations secretariat by Greek Ambassador Vassili Dendramis.

[Dendramis said he had submitted the complaint under Chapter 7 of the Charter. Chapter VII provides for U. N. action in cases of aggression and breaches of peace.

Invoked for First Time

[That chapter was invoked for the first time in U. N. history yesterday by Australia in bringing the Indonesian case to the Security Council.

[Shortly after the Greek charges were filed, the Council agreed to an Australian request that it take up the Indonesian case promptly, and tabled the Greek complaint until tomorrow.

[Chapter VII includes strong measures, from breaking off relations with the aggressor up to actual military operations by the United Nations against any country the Security Council decides has committed an act of aggression.

[However, the United Nations police force which would carry out any such military orders still is in the discussion stages.

[U. N. observers said a significant part of Chapter VII is Article 51, which permits U. N. members to take collective action for self-defense against an armed attack until the Security Council can act. It was said this would be one way for action in the face of the Russian veto.

[Herschel V. Johnson, U. S. deputy delegate on the Security Council, was back at his desk today after a short visit at the State Department in Washington during which, a reliable informant said, State Department officials specifically approved his conduct of the fight with Russia in the Council over the Balkans.

[The upshot of discussions between Johnson and State Department officials, an informed source said, is that the United States will seek every way possible in the U. N. to settle the Greek question; that the United States will continue its support of the Greek government; that the United States is behind the United Nations with its fullest support.

It was said authoritatively that the Greeks have been told by the United States that the Truman aid plan remained definitely in force despite the Russian veto. Furthermore, it was said that the United States told the Greeks this country was firmly behind them in their efforts to establish a stable government and stop the disorders in the Balkans.]

Greece to Get Ships

Athens, July 31 (AP).—Rear Admiral John A. Snackenberg, chief naval attache of the American Aid-Greece Mission, said today he expected an agreement to be concluded within a week for transfer of six American patrol boats to the Greek navy—the first request received from the navy under the aid program.

The vessels, of approximately 450 tons each, are less than 3 years old, Snackenberg said.

Dwight Griswold, head of the mission (AMAG), told American newsmen today that AMAG experts working in liaison with Greek ministries and government organizations would not be limited to advisory functions but would serve as administrators.

Greek press reports said the Greek government was objecting to this, desiring the experts to serve only as consultants.

Guerilla fighting continued in northern Greece.

Near Kozane, in western Macedonia, Maj. Gen. Christos Mandas, commander of the Fifteenth Division of the Greek army, narrowly escaped death when a mine exploded 30 yards in front of his staff car.

A press report from Salonika said guerillas attacked Alexandroupolis in western Thrace but had "been unable to reach their objective."

General Fleming Heads FWA Team In Chest Drive

Major Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator, will head the FWA division of the 1948 Community Chest Federation campaign this fall.

General Fleming will assist Assistant Secretary of the Navy W. John Kennedy, who heads the Government unit of the annual fund drive.

General Fleming was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by President Truman on May 7, 1946, for "outstanding service to the Government." "Under his energetic direction, a tremendous construction program, including a wide variety of buildings and facilities for the Army and Navy, was accomplished in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Alaska and Central America" the citation read.

Truman to Talk Off Record Today

President Truman will meet press and radio correspondents and photographers for an off-the-record conversation at 11:30 a. m. (EDT) today but will not hold a regular news conference this week.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman has no speaking engagements until September 26 when he will broadcast from the White House at 10 p. m. (EDT) opening the annual Community Chest drive. Ross said it is assumed all radio networks will carry the message.

Pastor Refuses Salary As Attendance Dwindles

Lanark, Ill., July 31 (AP).—The 27-year-old pastor of the Christian Church in this town of 1500 has advised his congregation he will henceforth refuse his church salary and support himself as a railroad section hand because of dwindling church attendance and financial support.

The Rev. Harmon H. Bro told his flock "there are too many people in modern churches who think that the kingdom of God is just something you hire a preacher to worry about so the congregation can relax."

Monday he began work for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad.

Dewey Ends His Tour With Detroit Visit

Detroit, July 31 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York concluded his Michigan stay tonight by meeting six Michigan Republican congressional district leaders and Wayne County (Detroit) GOP Chairman Arthur T. Iverson.

After the conference the governor and his wife and two sons left for Albany, where they are due tomorrow morning, completing a western "vacation" tour that began July 4.

The congressional leaders represented districts within Wayne County. They were presented by Arthur E. Summerfield, naitonal committeeman from Michigan.

Visits Alma Mater

Dewey saw the group upon arriving from Ann Arbor, where he toured the campus of his alma mater, the University of Michigan, and lunched with President Alexander G. Ruthven and other officials of the school.

It was Dewey's first visit to Ann Arbor since 1937, when he was sarded an honorary degree by the University.

One purpose was to try to "sell" his older son, Thomas E. Jr., 15, on matriculating at Michigan following graduation from Albany Academy three years hence.

Silent on Stassen's Statement

Dewey had no comment on Harold E. Stassen's assertion at Los Angeles yesterday that the New Yorker "has not been meeting the issues thus far." Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota, is the only avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Neither would the Governor comment on a Washington statement by Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) that "Dewey has been imitating the Sphinx to date but I think Senator Taft is going to smoke him out."

Dewey will resume his duties as Governor almost immediately upon his return to Albany. His calendar includes a clemency hearing for a condemned killer.

After he clears his desk the Governor will go to his farm in Pawling, N. Y.

Pepper Plans Speaking Tour To Keep Democrats 'Liberal'

By The Associated Press

Senator Pepper (Fla.) said yesterday he will make his own cross-country speaking tour this fall in an effort to "keep our Democratic Party liberal."

The Florida Senator told a reporter he has not been asked to speak for the Democratic National Committee but will follow in the wake of "such Republican presidential candidates as Senator Taft (Ohio) and Governor Dewey of New York."

Dewey has stopped off in his native Michigan after a Western swing with an entourage which left little doubt that he intends to try to repeat as his party's standard bearer in the 1948 campaign.

Taft, pinning a definite political label to his excursion, has announced plans for a trip that will largely parallel Dewey's. The Ohio Senator said he will lay the record of the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress before the people before deciding whether to become an avowed candidate for the GOP nomination next year.

As for his own trip, which he has not yet mapped in detail, Pepper said he intends to "straighten out anybody who might be misled by Republican propaganda that this was a good Congress."

"Any hope or idea that the Republican Party might become the people's party, or liberal, disappeared with this Congress," the Florida Democrat said. "It's principal concern was with big business. It was not interested in farmers or small business, and it has done nothing to further the interests of women, the aged or the ill."

Although Pepper has had several brushes with Democratic National Committee officials because his foreign policy views often are at variance with those of the Administration, the Florida lawmaker has disavowed any intention of teaming with Henry A. Wallace in a possible third party movement.

But he insists he will fight along with the former Vice President to make the Democratic Party "the liberal party." This is the No. 1 idea behind his approaching trip, Pepper declared.

As for 1948, he commented:

"I think there might have been a chance of a Republican President in 1948 if the people had not gotten a good dose of what Republican control means. The Republican Congress has done more to strengthen President Truman's chances for reelection than anything that could have been done."

Bladensburg Areas Vote on Merger Today

A proposal to merge the town of Bladensburg and four nearby communities into a single incorporated town will be decided in a public referendum today.

Ballots will be cast from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. in Bladensburg, Villa Heights, Rogers Heights, Newton Village and Sunnybrook on the proposed incorporation, which already has been approved by the Maryland State Legislature subject to the outcome of the referendum.

According to the proposal, the four communities would be taken into the already-incorporated town of Bladensburg, which would retain its present name, but the existing town commissioner system government would be replaced by an administration headed by a mayor and an eight-member town council.

To accomplish the incorporation, a majority of voters in Bladensburg will have to favor the proposal. In the event of a favorable vote there, any or all of the four nearby communities can be taken into the new town, depending on the vote in each individual area.

Votes will be cast in the four wards which would be set up in the new town in the event of incorporation. The polling places are: Ward 1, Bladensburg Fire House; Ward 2, 5013 Edmonston rd.; Ward 3, 4117 56th ave. and 3945 58th ave.; and Ward 4, 4901 Monroe st.

Silver Spring Horse Show Adds Western Class

Sunday's horse show at the North End Stables on Sixteenth st. in Silver Spring is open to entries in the hunter, jumper and saddle classes, it was announced yesterday.

An unusual feature of the show is the addition of a Western horse class. Horses in this category will perform "as cow ponies do out West," according to Mrs. Gardner Hallman, an official of the show.

Ballela, Mr. and Mrs. George Mueller's champion hunter, will be entered in the competition, it was announced.

The boy was drowned Wednesday while swimming with two companions. Coroner A. Magruder issued a certificate of accidental death.

Eaton Urges Action in U. N. Against Russia overt act then will become, not a matter for discussion, but for chastisement.

"Once kicked out of decent society, Russia must either seek to regain good standing or be disciplined by the military action of the union of decent nations.

"I think we can still block Russia with psychology; if we don't, we must defeat her by force of arms. It is time we told her so."

Eaton did not say precisely how Russia could be expelled from the United Nations. Resolutions calling for revision of the United Nations Charter, viewed as an attempt to force such a showdown, were introduced by bipartisan groups on both sides of the Capitol early this month. Congress adjourned without action.

Draws Hitler Parallel

Eaton said Russia "is working her will toward world conquest wherever she wishes" while she ties up the United Nations "with argument and the use of the veto power."

"When Hitler marched into Czechoslovakia, a child could see what he intended to do," he said. "Now Stalin has moved into Hungary, thus binding himself up with the Greek guerillas in the north of Greece and the Tito Communists in Yugoslavia. Czechoslovakia is menaced, likewise the Italian coast.

"Russia has shown very clearly what course she intends to take. She intends to take Europe, then the world. Our freedom and security are in jeopardy. Why must we wait until virtually all is lost before we resist?"

French Assembly Votes Italian Treaty Ratifications

Rome, July 31 (AP).—With Communist deputies abstaining and left-wing Socialists in opposition, the Constituent Assembly authorized the government tonight to ratify the Italian Peace Treaty. The vote was 262 to 68, with 80 abstaining.

The treaty specifies that ratification instruments must be deposited by all Big Four powers with the French Foreign Office before the treaty becomes operative. Russia is the only Big Four power which has not ratified thus far.

The treaty assesses Italy 360 million dollars in reparations, divided as follows: Russia, 100 million; Yugoslavia, 125 million; Greece, 105 million; Ethiopia, 25 million, and Albania, five million.

Italy also loses her Africal colonies of Eritrea, Somaliland and Libya, and is required to recognize the independence of Albania and Ethopia. She loses the Dodecanese Islands to Greece, the Port of Trieste becomes an international-lized territory under United Nations' control and she loses minor border areas to France and Yugoslavia.

British Hint Strong Retaliation Steps

London, July 31 (AP).—Britain's colonial secretary called the execution of two British army sergeants by Palestine's Jewish underground a "coldblooded and dastardly murder" today. Another government source hinted at stern new measures to quell violence in the Holy Land.

An informant said the government would send the 4500 Jewish refugees of the Exodus 1947 expedition to the British zone of Germany "by force" and later possibly to Africa if they persisted in refusing to land at Port de Bouc, France.

Crying "horror and revulsion," Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones announced the executions to the Commons. Conservative and Labor members cheered when he declared the government would do all in its power to bring "the authors and conspirers" of the executions to justice.

After a cabinet meeting at which the "entire situation" in Palestine was reviewed, one source said the cabinet would be "guided by public opinion" in future decisions regarding security measures.

Public indignation in Britain, fanned by banner line newspaper stories about the executions, ran high.

"We do blame the government," said Frederick Kemp, son-in-law of Mrs. F. R. Martin, mother of one of the dead sergeants. "Surely they know how desperate these people are and they could have waited until our boys were safe before executing the terrorists."

U. N. Action Declared Vital for Palestine

Geneva, July 31.—Emil Sandstrom, of Sweden, chairman of the United Nations Special committee on Palestine, asserted today that whatever Palestine solution the committee finally decides to recommend, it will emphasize most strongly that the United Nations must take action to solve the problem this year.

Greece and Italy Have Crop Losses

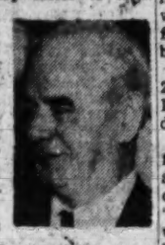
Lake Success, Long Island, N. Y., July 31.—Greece and Italy, already scheduled for a large slice of the United States' 350-million-dollar food relief program, have suffered sharp crop reverses which will call for another notch in their short belts, and may lead to further civic disorders, the first comprehensive harvest survey of Europe for 1947-48 showed today.

Austria, also slated for 100 million dollars of American aid, will "depend overwhelmingly" on imports, the Food and Agriculture Organization reported to the United Nations.

In contrast, eastern countries under Soviet influence—Poland, Hungary and Yugoslavia at least—will fare better than they have this year.

Murray Says AFL Is Trying To Block Unity

Another blow came yesterday to hopes for a promt CIO-AFL merger, never too promising at best. In a sharp letter to AFL President William Green, CIO boss Philip Murray accused the AFL executive council of trying to prevent "immediate working unity" in economic and political campaigns.



Murray's point, repeated in his letter, has long been that the two big organizations should first work together "to defeat the drive of reaction on both economic and political fronts."

The AFL however, has insisted that "organic unity must come first. After preliminary discussions, Green wrote Murray that it was "impossible to formulate a common and unified policy of action for the purpose of protecting the living standards of American people" without first ending "the division within the ranks of organized labor."

Yesterday Murray replied:

"It was distinctly our understanding that we had jointly recognized the imperative need for an immediate, common and unified program of policy and action on the part of organized labor to protect the living standards of the American people and to assure effective political expression on the part of our membership.

"We understood that future meetings between the CIO and the AFL unity committee would evolve a program of joint action, in addition to opening the way for further discussions incidental to the formation and establishment of a strong, united labor movement in the United States.

"It now becomes apparent that it is the objective of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor to prevent the members of organized labor from effecting their keen desire to establish immediate working unity to defeat the drive of reaction on both economic and political fronts.

"Your refusal to discuss this vital subject while insisting upon long drawn out negotiations with reference to organizational unity must be viewed with alarm by all who appreciate the dangers which presently confront labor and the Nation."

Green's position, Murray concluded, was "completely inconsistent" with joint statements issued by the two union organizations at unity discussion meetings held last May.

No Charges Planned in Baby's Death

Prince Georges County authorities have found no basis for pressing criminal charges against the parents of a 6-week-old baby who died in her crib during their absence on Sunday.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie issued this statement following a conference with the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Glenn, jr., of 2501 Arundel rd., Mount Rainier.

Bowie said his investigation to date has "produced nothing that would in any way justify charging the couple with manslaughter or taking any other criminal action."

Bowie said the couple used "little or no judgment" in leaving the baby unattended in their home for about four hours, but added, "I think their lack of a sense of judgment can be attributed to their age." Glenn is 21 and his wife 17.

Bowie said Mr. and Mrs. Glenn told him they had left the child unattended on previous occasions, and usually returned to find her asleep.

Seaman Held In Death of Woman in Md.

Baltimore, July 31.—Lloyd Douglas George, 26-year-old seaman, was held without bail today on a charge of assaulting and causing the death of Doris O'Brien, 40, whose nude and trussed body was found floating in Baltimore Harbor nine days ago.

His brother, Lindsey D. George, 22, of Portsmouth, Va., and Elmer D. Bennett, 23, of Galax, Va., were docketed as State's witnesses.

Lloyd George was brought before Magistrate Frank J. Schap for arraignment on the specific charge of assaulting the O'Brien woman "by placing her in a tarpaulin canvas cover with metal weights on the barge Joseph J. Hock while at dock at Pier 10 Canton and there depositing same into the harbor and thereby causing her death July 13."

Detective Capt. Henry J. Kriss disclosed that Lloyd was arrested Tuesday and Lindsey George and Elmer Bennett were taken into custody last night in Norfolk, Va., and returned here.

Lindsey George and Bennett were released in $100 bail.

Kriss said the woman, a native of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was last seen alive in a Baltimore tavern July 12.

Man Meets Old Notes By Eating Signatures

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 31 (U.P.).—Allegedly unable or unwilling to pay three overdue promissory notes for $5000, Mario A. Parodi, 33, today tore up portions of the notes bearing his signature after an angry argument with his creditor, Maria Gitadini de Alvarez, she claimed.

While Maria yelled desperately, Parodi snatched the notes from her hand, bit off the lower right angle with the signatures and swallowed the paper bits quickly, she said.

Picketing of Dance Studio Is Prohibited by Injunction

A preliminary injunction against picketing of the Arthur Murray Dance Studios here was issued yesterday.

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court ordered the ban pending final determination of all issues in the case. He said the dance school management here was not embroiled in any labor dispute at all.

The picket line formed last week outside the Arthur Murry establishment on Connecticut ave. Dance teachers from New York joined with sympathisers in a "Conga line" to affect a strike between employes and management of the Arthur Murray Studios in New York.

Justice Laws pointed out that the studio here, run by Ethel Gomez, is connected with the New York studio only by licensing, teacher-approval and reciprocal-teaching agreements.

The jurist said that legally, the studio here had no way of giving relief to the grievances of the employes of New York. Therefore, he reasoned, it was implausible that an employe has "the right to use methods of coercion directly against an innocent party who . . . is helpless."

Legal authorities said Justice Laws' decision was important as a further definition of the applicability of the Norris-LaGuardia Act. This act prevents Federal injunctions against persons giving publicity, speaking or picketing in any case growing out of a labor dispute. The act does not apply where there is fraud involved.

The possibility of fraud was another reason Justice Laws gave for granting the injunction. He said the handbills of the picketers apparently contained "misleading statements." These circulars "held out to the public that (the studio here) was a branch of and was controlled by Arthur Murray in New York," he said.

The injunction would not violate constitutional guarantees for free speech, the jurist stated.

Teen Theater Play

The Teen Theater of Falls Church presents its second summer production, the three-act play, "Peck's Bad Boy," today and tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. in the Madison School auditorium. Proceeds will go to a fund to build a community center for Falls Church teen-agers.

Silver Spring Bargain Week Set Tomorrow

A one-week price-cutting campaign designed to keep Silver Spring, Md., business at home will be opened tomorrow.

The project, designated as "Shop Silver Spring Week," is being sponsored by the retail merchants division of the Board of Trade, Silver Spring, with 103 of 119 stores in the central area participating.

During the week, prices will be cut to cost or below, according to Charles H. Kopeland, public relations director. He said a committee has checked advertised price cuts against prevailing prices before permitting dealers to join the campaign.

In addition, customers will be given coupons for each dollar purchase entitling them to participate in a drawing for $1500 worth of prizes, including an electric refrigerator.

The drawing will be held on the steps of the Silver Spring Postoffice at 9:30 p. m. on August 8, and will be preceded by a parade on Georgia ave. and a 2½-hour vaudeville show.

Flags, pennants and posters will be displayed by stores throughout the week and a thousand balloons will be released tomorrow by airplane from 11 a. m. to noon and from 2 to 3 p. m.

The committee in charge is headed by Julius Diamond, chairman, and includes Charles Solkey, William Goodman, Moses Sherer, Miss Katherine V. Lydell, Mrs. Dorothy Forman, Larry Mason, Lee H. Robinson, Bernard Friedman, Clifford Haynes, J. G. Wright, Ralph Lutz, Gus Kohlman, William Wright and Bernard Fredland. William Wright heads the retail division.

Rain Hinders War Against Beetle Horde

Yesterday's rains hindered Montgomery County farm officials in their last minute effort to save a record corn crop from the ravages of Japanese beetles.

The county's 10 sprayer-duster trucks, whose services were being called for from all parts of the county, were halted for several hours by the rainfall. The weather also eliminated the possibility of help from low-flying plane crop dusters.

County Agent O. W. Anderson said his trucks were "going full force" when weather permitted and were "doing a lot of good" in killing the beetles, which have been ruining the corn silks.

The outside wheels of the rear dual wheels on the trucks have been removed so that the trucks pounding through the corn will ruin fewer rows. Anderson said that in many cases the trucks were able to spray 40 rows with the loss of only one row to the group.

About 750 to 800 farms of the county's 1600 will suffer from the beetle infestation, Anderson estimated. The remainder have used the precaution of ringing their fields with soy beans soaked with DDT, have sprayed the fields with the liquid or have not had heavy visitations of the pests, he said.

In Frederick, Md., where the beetles have also been numerous, one farmer watched others rushing to spray the corn fields and noted, reflectively:

"Doesn't look there's much use to spray. The beetles are on the ears aplenty, and I guess they've done about all the damage they can. I've been farming on shares for years, so I'll just take my share when the beetles get through."

Harrisonburg Inquiry Seeks Blast Cause

Special to The Washington Post

Harrisonburg, Va., July 31.—Investigators combed the blast-shattered wreckage of the O. M. Masters Building here today seeking definite cause of the explosion which killed 10 and injured 30 Tuesday.

James M. Hayes, jr., State director of fire marshals; A. J. Bell, Shenandoah Valley area marshal; two representatives of the National Association of Fire Underwriters; Mayor Bernard Denton; Police Chief Julius Ritchie, and Fire Chief Louis Armentrout spent today in the ruins and began drafting a preliminary report.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) informed city officials he had arranged with the Bureau of Mines to send an investigator to the scene.

Meantime, funeral services for the victims were held here and in surrounding towns. All of the dead were women and most of them were in Pauline's Beauty Shop at the time of the explosion. The beauty shop was one of three business establishments in the four-room one-story brick building at S. Main and Franklin sts.

Twelve of the injured remained in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, several of them still in critical condition.

House Air Policy Members Appointed

Speaker Martin yesterday appointed these Representatives as members of the Joint Congressional Aviation Policy Board:

Wolverton (R., N. J.), Hinshaw (R., Calif), Stefan (R., Nebr.), Bulwinkle (D., N. C.) and Kilday (D., Tex).

Trademark Changed

Frankfurt On Main, July 31.—The famous crossed swords trademark of the world renowned Dresden chinaware, manufactured at Meissen in the Russian occupation zone of Germany, has been replaced by the Soviet hammer and sickle, according to a report published yesterday in the Stuttgart Zeitung. Meissen is a suburb of Dresden.

Blue Ridge Bus Union Holds Strike Meeting

Hagerstown, Md., July 31 (Spl.). Union leaders called their members into a late session here tonight to decide whether to strike at 1 a. m. tomorrow against the Blue Ridge Bus Lines.

The transportation system, which serves this city, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Pa., and Winchester, Va., employs 183 drivers and maintenance men.

The union, Local 1335 of the AFL American Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, has threatened to walk out if no agreement is reached by 1 a. m. tomorrow. A union spokesman said that in event of a walkout buses on the road would continue to their points of destination.

Up to tonight, the company's best wage increase offer was 10 cents an hour in face of the union's demand for a 30-cent boost, it was reported.

Leo Riffile, president of the local, said that the walkout, if called, would cripple the entire Eastern division of the bus line.

U. S. Asks Refund On Landing Mat Freight Charges

The Government yesterday sought to recover alleged overcharges by more than 900 railroads in the wartime transportation of thousands of carloads of steel airplane landing mats.

Its complaint, filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, said the exact amount was "not presently ascertainable."

Attorney General Tom C. Clark charged that the Government, in many instances, was required to pay more than six times as much as other shippers for equivalent transportation of iron and steel. He said the railroads involved had forced application of higher class rates which were "inappropriate and clearly unreasonable."

The Government's basic complaint was that the railroads involved considered the steel landing mats as a specific item instead of including them in the general "iron and steel" category.

Body of Boy, 3, Found in Chicago; Police Hold Man

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—The body of a 3½-year-old boy was found in a West Side areaway today, and Police Capt. Frank Gill said a known sex offender had told police he took the child from its bed.

The body of Charles Bradley was found beneath a back stairway 600 feet from his home following a 24-hour police search touched off when the child's father reported him missing from his bed at 11:30 last night.

Capt. Gill said Joseph Bortnyak, 27, recently released from county jail after serving a one-year term for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and made an oral statement:

"I took him out of his bed and kept him with me for several hours. I left him under the porch but I didn't kill him. I didn't harm him in any way."

Bortnyak was held without charge.

Police said Bortnyak later confessed he strangled the child.

Signalman Acted Like Jajs' Brother, Witness Charges

New York, July 31 (U.P.).—A witness called in his defense turned on Harold Hirshberg today and said the Navy chief signalman acted like a "blood brother" of the Japanese while they were prisoners in a war prison camp.

Frank J. Burns, 22, a former soldier, testified at Hirshberg's court martial on charges of mistreating fellow prisoners that the Navy man intervened several times with Jap guards to demand better food and to save prisoners from beatings.

But under cross examination Burns burst into a bitter condemnation of Hirshberg.

"The only person he ever thought of was Hirshberg," Burns said. "He had better clothes, better covered. He didn't have to push cars through mud and over stones in his bare feet. He never limped with ulcers and sores."

Court Denies 'Hysteria' in Eisler Trial

Justice James W. Morris denied yesterday that an atmosphere of "emotionalism and hysteria" has prevailed in the trial of Gerhart Eisler for passport fraud.

The District Court jurist made the denial in refusing to grant a mistrial for Eisler, who is said to be a leading Kremlin agent here.

Justice Morris also overruled motions for a directed verdict of acquittal and to strike out of testimony all reference to the "international Communist party" and the Commintern.

Then, in late afternoon, defense counsel Abraham Isserman made the opening statement of Eisler's case. Isserman described Eisler as "the staunch fighter for human freedom" and promised to prove that Government witnesses had fabricated testimony that Eisler was a member of the Communist Party in America and used various aliases. Eisler is charged with omitting such information in an exit permit application.

In replying to defense charges that the trial had developed into an "atom bomb" case and had given the impression Eisler is an international "man of mystery," Justice Morris said:

"I have diligently and studiously sought to restrict the evidence to that which was proper. I have diligently sought to eliminate matter which was purely of emotional content. I'm convinced and I cannot but believe that the atmosphere of this trial has been such that a jury would not determine the issues by emotionalism, but rather by cold objective intellectual processes."

Two witnesses were called by the defense yesterday. Dr. Felix Boenheim of New York City said he had known Eisler for many years, but did not know that he used aliases or was a member of the Communist Party here.

Mrs. Kurt Rosenfeld, wife of a one-time Minister of Justice in pre-Hitler Germany, gave the same testimony.

Italian Auto Maker Seeking Tucker Deal

Gianni Caproni, Italian automobile manufacturer, announced last night he is negotiating with the Tucker Automobile Corp. to build a modified version of the Caproni car in Tucker's Chicago plant.

Caproni said in a statement the car would be "smaller and lighter than any stock car in production in this country today, but well out of the 'midget' class."

He said he believes an arrangement can be worked out to build his cars without interfering with production plans for Tucker cars.

Chincoteague Holds Annual Pony Auction

Chincoteague, Va., July 31 (AP).—A carnival crowd estimated at 10,000 and the ponies held forth here today as Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Department staged its annual pony sale and carnival. Hot and sunny weather prevailed until late afternoon when the skies clouded.

Nearly 100 ponies—rounded up on Wallops Beach yesterday—were auctioned today to buyers who paid prices ranging up to $185 for 3-year-olds.

Auctioning of the ponies, descendants of a herd that has roamed the Eastern Shore beaches and marshes for nearly three centuries, held the interest of the carnival crowd throughout the forenoon.

Pony races and an air show were other highlights of a program arranged by the local fire company, sponsor of the annual pony penning and sale.

The air show was staged by the Chincoteague Naval Air Station, whose fire department put on a fire-fighting demonstration. Drills by a Marine group at the Naval Air Station and trapeze acts were offered visitors at the carnival grounds.

Approximately 225 ponies were rounded up for the pony penning festivities and were kept last night in corrals at the carnival grounds and at Beebe's ranch. In today's sale, spring colts brought from $90 to $100, 2-year-olds from $150 to $165, and 3-year-olds from $170 to $185.

Tradition has it that the ponies are descendants of animals that swam ashore from a sinking Spanish ship nearly three centuries ago.

7 Employes In U. S. Jobs Retire Here

Seven veteran employes of the government whose combined service total 214 years yesterday wound up their long careers here and retired from active duty.

Dean of the retiring federal workers Miss Tracy Copp, 70, of 4444 Lowell ave. nw., with 47 years of public service. A native of Green Bay, Wis., she joined the Federal Security Agency's Office of Vocational Rehabilitation in 1927 and was assistant director at her retirement.

In 1920 Miss Copp helped organize the nation-wide program for disabled veterans of World War I. In addition to her 27 years with FSA, she spent 12 years a public school teacher at Green Bay, and later served director of the Bureau of Women and Children, Wisconsin Industrial Commission, for seven years.

"I don't intend to be idle," she said. "I shall continue to work, perhaps in Wisconsin, as a volunteer, in connection with my interests in problems related to the workers of our country."

Mrs. Minnie M. Wright of 4720 47th st. nw., yesterday ended more than 29 years in Army Ordnance, where she was an expert in personnel work and the administration of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

She was feted Wednesday night by her coworkers at a dinner in the Generals' dining room at the Pentagon. "It has been pretty strenuous, especially during the war," she said, "but my job has been working with people and trying to help them, and I've loved it."

She plans to vacation in Florida this winter, but will remain here for the time being.

Worked on "Jennies"

Also among the retiring careerists is Robert A. "Pop" Heinricks, 62, of 3015 Douglas st. ne., after 33 years as a Federal employe. Foreman of the fabrication shops at Bolling Field, he has spent 22 years there.

He recalls assembling "Jennies" and putting them in shape for flight—something, he says, he doubts most men working "on the line" could do now.

"Pop" Heinricks says he almost "hates to leave the field." A widower, he expects to make minor repairs on his home and grow flowers.

Mrs. Jennie B. Shief, 55, of 1418 Hopkins pl. nw., retired yesterday after 30 years as a senior typist in the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture.

"I'll just stay home for awhile," she said, but she's looking forward to a trip to Puerto Rico soon. Meanwhile, she intends to be active in club work.

Three Leave VA

Three Veterans' Administration employes round out the list of long-time Government workers who yesterday said adieu to Federal service. They are:

Mrs. Blanche M. Fant, 71, of 1028 Quebec pl. nw., a file clerk in the payees accounts service of the VA, who has worked for the Government for nearly 30 years.

Mrs. Sara W. Dennis, 70-year-old abstract clerk of the claims statistics service division, with 28 years' Government service.

Mrs. Anna C. Dettlebach, 70, of 5518 2d st. nw., who was a clerk in the dependents' accounts division. She became a Federal employe in 1919.

Mrs. Fant, who "loves to work here and hates to leave," said she intended to purchase acreage near Washington and "do a lot of gardening."

Mrs. Dennis, who lives at 618 12th st. nw., was the guest of honor at a dinner last night at the Dodge Hotel. She is looking forward to a winter in Florida and further travel after that.

And Mrs. Dettlebach, a widow, said she would devote some of her time to activities in the Spanish War Veteran's Auxiliary, and the Brookland chapter of the Eastern Star.

Rising Cost Of Feed Hits Poultrymen

Blacksburg, Va., July 31 (AP).—Virginia poultrymen were described by a speaker at the fourteenth Institute of Rural Affairs today as caught in a serious pinch between rising grain costs and poultry prices which are substantially the same as those of a year ago.

R. Frank Frazier, Richmond, executive secretary of the Virginia State Poultry Association, told a discussion group that high feed prices due to heavy exports abroad have increased the costs of producing a broiler by from two to three cents in the past six weeks.

As an aftermath of the wartime program to stimulate poultry production, Frazier said:

"There are now 171 million pounds of poultry in storage in this country, almost double the average over the past five years. This is holding prices down to about the same level as a year ago."

Nearly 650 persons have attended sessions of the institute held for the first time since it was suspended in 1941 due to wartime travel curtailment. The three-day session closed tonight.

Va. to Use Mess Tables In Highway Picnic Spots

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—The State Highway Department has arranged to procure 400 mess hall tables from Camp Peary for use as picnic tables along the highway system, H. J. Neale, landscape engineer for the department, announced today.

Most of the tables, which are about eight feet long and have seats on both sides, will be placed in waysides as additions or replacements to present tables there.

The department also has ordered 1000 heavy tables to be placed in appropriate picnic spots every 10 miles or so on primary roads.

Hearing Is Ordered in Jail Death of Maryland Driver

Salisbury, Md., July 31 (AP).—A public hearing without legal precedent developed in People's Court here today into the fight at the Wicomico County Jail Saturday night which preceded the death of a man who had been arrested on a drunken driving charge.

Attorneys retained by the widow of 31-year-ld Milton H. Jones, automobile dealer and truck line operator, asked that first degree murder warrants be sworn out against two peace officers involved in a fight with Jones.

Judge Carl L. Walter refused their plea and set a preliminary hearing tomorrow on manslaughter charges already filed against John J. Harbaugh, 29-year-old Maryland State trooper, and John W. Turner, 62-year-old one-armed night jailer.

State's Attorney Rex A. Taylor said "a hearing of this sort has never been held before in the State of Maryland, but we don't object."

"White Wash" Charged

The unofficial proceedings before Judge Walter developed into a series of exchanges between the State's Attorney and counsel employed by the Jones family, with assertions that the State's investigation was a "white wash."

Judge Walter yesterday issued manslaughter warrants against Harbaugh and Turner on the basis of information provided by State's Attorney Taylor.

Taylor said he had learned that Harbaugh had ample grounds for arresting Jones on the drunken driving charge about a mile out of town Saturday night.

He asserted that how Jones was treated and what happened at the jail is something for a jury to consider.

Fight in Elevator

The version Taylor gave on the basis of his inquiry was that Harbaugh escorted Jones into the jail elevator, operated by Turner, and that as they were ascending to the prison atop the courthouse Jones swung on Harbaugh while the trooper was lighting a cigarette.

Witnesses were quoted by Taylor as saying Jones threatened to "get" the trooper and another fight followed once the jail was reached.

Jones was pronounced dead a short time later at Peninsula General Hospital. Harbaugh was treated there for minor injuries.

Thomas F. Johnson, one of the attorneys employed by Mrs. Jones, told Judge Walter he is prepared to show "that after they left the elevator and entered the jail proper is when this man was murdered."

He said witnesses were present who could establish the allegations, "but this is not the proper time to present witnesses."

Judge Walter said he would increase the degree of the charges against Harbaugh and Turner if subsequent evidence warrants.

The State trooper was free today on $10,000 bond set by the judge. Turner was confined at the jail.

Market Officials Call Meeting on Tomato Surplus

By The Associated Press

Farm marketing officials have called a meeting of producers and extension workers this afternoon at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore to discuss ways of handling the prospective bumper crop of tomatoes.

Members of the Maryland Farm Bureau, the Maryland Marketing Committee, market officials, and the extension workers also will study prospective surpluses in other crops.

In a preliminary report, H. L. Stier, chief of the State Department of Markets at the University of Maryland, said 80 per cent of the fields in the Eastern Shore tomato belt are in excellent condition. Only two per cent are reported poor.

Official spring estimates put the planted acreage of 42,000, three per cent less than last year. About 40 per cent of last year's crop was ruined by late blight.

Bus Kills Boy Near His Home

Winchester, Va., July 31 (Spl.).—Eight-year-old Theodore Franklin Alger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alger of Hayfield, Va., was instantly killed here today at 12:30 p. m. when struck by a Reynolds bus.

The accident occurred in front of his home on Route 50, 10 miles from here. The boy, one of a family of 12, was said to have darted in front of the bus, according to George Forman of Elkins, W. Va., the driver. Forman, who was making a trip from Elkins, was held pending a coroner's inquest, according to State Trooper E. B. Mitchell.

Three persons, injured in an auto accident Monday night, were reported in "only fair" condition today at Winchester Memorial Hospital.

They are Mrs. Sylvia Martin, wife of Ernest Martin of Berwyn, Md.; her daughter, Carol Jean Martin, 5; and her brother, Harold Poland of 12 D st.ne. All were suffering from head injuries sustained in an accident at Gore, Va.

Police said the car ran into an embankment at an intersection and was demolished.

James Vincent, 9, of Aldie, Va., also a patient at the hospital, was reported in "fair" condition after being injured by a cow in a field at Aldie Tuesday afternoon. His injuries were listed as lacerations and bruises.

Police Dog Acquitted of Being Vicious

Annapolis, Md., July 31 (AP).—"Mutt," an 8-year-old German police dog, on trial charged with being "vicious and surly," was acquitted today by Judge James Clark in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court.

Mutt was vindicated after an appeal had been brought from an order to restrain him issued by Magistrate James G. Woodward.

After almost five hours of testimony by witnesses whom Judge Clark called "pro-Mutt's" and "anti-Mutts," the judge said, "I just don't think Mutt's a vicious dog."

He ordered Herbert S. Ward of Bay Ridge, who brought the original petition against Mutt's owner, Marine Lieut. Carl M. Viner, also of Bay Ridge, to pay the costs.

When Clark announced his decision, applause rang out in the courtroom, which he silenced with his gavel, saying, "We'll have no more of that unless you people want to contribute to the Anne Arundel County treasury."

Twenty witnesses testified for or against the dog in what Judge Clark termed "trial by battle."

Attorney Albert J. Goodman, who defended Mutt, said he had observed personnally Mutt was "a gentle fellow."

Throughout the battle, Mutt remained at his home and was not confronted with his accusers.

New M. U. Group Planned

An Agricultural alumni association of the University of Maryland will be formed at a reunion in Baltimore September 26, J. Homer Remsburg of Middletown announced yesterday.

Remsburg, elected temporary chairman of a 17-man steering committee, appointed John Clark of Bel Air, P. W. Chichester of Frederick, and Clayton Reynolds of Denton, to draw up a constitution. J. Charles Rutledge of Fallstown, Paul Mullinix of Baltimore, and Daniel Stones of Westminster, were named to nominate permanent officers.

Beer License in Sandy Spring Opposed by Group of Quakers

History repeated itself yesterday when a large delegation of Sandy Spring, Md., Quakers appeared at a Montgomery County Liquor Control Board hearing to oppose the issuance of a wine and beer license in the community.

Many of the approximately 25 persons who appeared at the Silver Spring hearing were direct descendants of members of the Religious Society of Friends who 105 years ago were responsible for enactment of the first known prohibition law.

The law forbade the sale of liquor within 2 miles of the Sandy Spring Meeting House where Friends in the traditionally farming and Quaker community have worshiped for 130 years.

Members of the sect have been traditionally opposed to drinking of alcoholic beverages and most of the delegation yesterday were Quakers opposing the license requested by Oak Grove Inn., adjacent to the Olney Theater. The inn is within 2 miles of the meeting house.

Thomas Anderson, assistant State's attorney, represented those appearing in opposition and James H. Pugh, former State's attorney, represented the petitioners. Applying for the license were Peter Maroulis, Abraham John Kalinoglou and Arthur Triveres.

Pugh asked that the petition be withdrawn without prejudice when Anderson raised a question as to the zoning of the property on which Oak Grove Inn is situated.

It was brought out that the commercial establishment was operating in an area zoned residential and the petitioners could not establish a nonconforming use to the zoning laws.

Pugh's request to withdraw the application without prejudice was granted by President J. Forest Walker of the Liquor Control Board.

Fairlington Now Looking To Tomorrow

Close to 13,000 persons live in the 2449 apartments called Fairlington, which sprawls on either side of the Shirley Highway just inside Arlington County.

Fairlington claims to be the largest apartment development in the world, and it compares in size with such Virginia cities as Fredericksburg, Winchester and Staunton.

But despite its size, Fairlington has no library, no adequate playground, no place for its people to meet to discuss community affairs, and only one elementary school. It remains what it was built to be—a big apartment house.

Fairlington came into being during the war when the most important thing seemed to be to get people under a roof.

Built by Government

It was built and operated by the Government for Government workers, military personnel and veterans. Last winter it was sold to a private concern, which will take over probably in September.

Nearly half the population there is children. Their only school is in South Fairlington. This means that the youngsters in North Fairlington have to cross the Shirley Highway. A site in the north section, originally planned for another school, is still a vacant lot where the kids play ball.

The school has a playground. There is another vacant lot in South Fairlington that can be used for a ball field. There are also about 10 tennis courts. But aside from a few sandboxes, this is the extent of the recreational facilities.

During the war, when everyone was living for the day, the next day and its problems were left pretty much alone. And building and playground materials were scarce.

Community Feeling Grows

Now that there is less turnover, a community feeling has sprung up in the form of the Fairlington Association. The association was formed to "promote the general welfare of Fairlington." Ultimately the members want more schools and a bridge across Shirley Highway. But this year they are concentrating on an ambitious recreation program.

Their plan, which will be submitted for approval to the new owners when they take over, envisages an outdoor swimming pool for 1000 people and a recreation building housing a gymnasium, an auditorium for community meetings, and club rooms.

They will ask that the management construct these facilities and rent them to the association. It is proposed to finance the operation by assessing each family $1 a month. This would yield about $40,000 a year to buy equipment and pay running expenses, including a full-time staff.

The association also hopes to improve the facilities it now has. The members want to grade the athletic fields and equip them for baseball, handball, horseshoes and volleyball.

Plan in Operation

Already in operation is a plan worked out with the management to provide playgrounds for small children. Fairlington is divided into 27 blocks, each with some play space. Many of the blocks have bought swings and slides to go with the sandboxes furnished by the management.

While they await action on their larger scheme, the association members have tried to put recreation on an organized basis for this summer. A drive has been under way to collect $1750 to buy playground and athletic equipment and to pay a recreation director. Each family has been asked to give 50 cents. Funds come in from other sources, too, such as the paper drive. Last Saturday 10 tons of old papers were collected and sold.

Robert O. Lewis, former physical education instructor in the Army, has taken over the job of recreation director. He gives instruction in tennis, softball and basketball and has a softball league going. The county has provided an instructor at the school for work in arts and crafts and dramatics.

The association has big plans for the future. But it thinks it might move faster if more than its present handful of 7000 potential voters were registered.

Liberal Chinese Revolt Sign Seen

New York, July 31 (AP).—Dr. Leslie B. Moss, director of Church World Service, returned from a tour of the Far East and said that a liberal, non-Communist revolution or coup d'etat may develop in China.

Dr. Moss said such an uprising would develop apart from the Communist-Nationalist conflict.

Dr. Moss also said he had gone to Indonesia prepared to sympathize with the Indonesians' aspirations for freedom, but after talks with leaders of both sides he came away with mixed convictions.

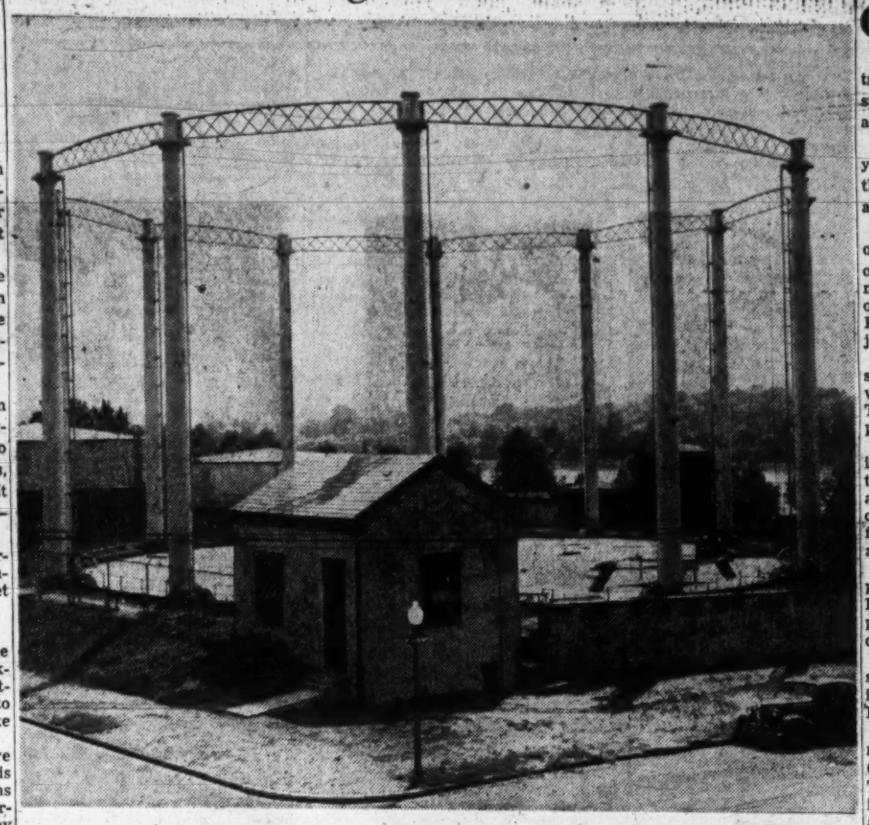
He said "the Indonesians, unfortunately, have an inadequate conception of the problems involved in governing 70 million people."

Air Accident Reports Have Their Drawbacks

Frankfort, Ky., July 31 (AP).—Kentucky pilots were sternly warned recently to report all aircraft accidents promptly to the State Aeronautics Commission. The warning drew this unpunctuated report today:

"Dear Sir Rudolph was proping plane with student in plane after calling for switch off pulled prop through and motor started as switch was not off and prop hit Rudolph on knee and knocked knee-cap out of socket but no bones broken but broke off end of propeller nothing serious Rudolph will be off as instructor for few days."

Mark of the Gas Light Era Razed



The Washington Post

Gas tank at 26th and G sts. nw., landmark of the gas-light era, is headed for the junk pile

Big Gas Tanks Here Headed For Junkyard

Two of Washington's biggest stinkers—both landmarks of the gas light era—are headed for the junkyard, completely deodorized.

They are the Washington Gas Light Company's huge holders—or tanks as the public regards them—at 26th and G sts. nw., and New Hampshire and Virginia aves. nw. The holders, one of which was five years old when the Civil War started, are falling a victim to the gas company's conversion to natural gas.

One of them held 591,000 cubic feet; the other 682,000 cubic feet and both held only enough gas to last Washington 15 minutes in a rush period, officials said. Never regarded as a storage unit, but rather as a part of the gas manufacturing equipment, the holders lost their usefulness when the company halted manufacture of gas at the Northwest plant. Only gas made now is at the 12th and N st. ne. plant.

The huge holders, of thin steel, will be dismantled by a junk dealer and the 30-foot deep holes filled in with earth, the company stated.

"People don't notice any changes around here," one official observed a little mournfully. "They just notice it smells bad."

Minnesotans Adopt Whole German Town

Worthington, Minn., July 31 (U.P.). The 6000 residents of this southern Minnesota farm community set to work yesterday adopting the battle-wrecked village of Crailsheim, Germany, on a family-for-family basis.

The Worthington citizens are determined not only to feed, clothe and shelter the residents of Crailsheim, they also want to teach the Germans how Americans live democratically in a town of the same size as their own.

Dr. L. V. Hartle, mayor of Worthington, said yesterday that several other American towns had requester information on the "Worthington plan."

A 15-man committee has been set up to coordinate Worthington's efforts to aid the German city.

The idea was advanced by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cashel after their 11-year-old daughter, Martha, "adopted" a family in Finland. The Cashels thought the plan might work for an entire town. Their idea was accepted enthusiastically by other townspeople.

"We wanted a town that matched Worthington in population, farming development and religion," Cashel said today. "We wanted a town that needed to learn democracy."

'45 Deserter, Discovered, Relaxes Now

Boston, July 31 (U.P.).—Sergt. Carol Gallo of Worcester, a pretty 24-year-old mother of two children, said yesterday she was at ease for the first time since she deserted the WAC two years ago.

"I've been wondering each day for two years whether I'd open the door to find an MP standing there," she said. "Now it's over. The Army knows where I am. I don't know what they'll do, but it can't be worse than the worry I've been through."

She said she ran away from the women's training center at Des Moines, Iowa, two years ago because "I wanted to get married and because the Army seemed so big and impersonal. I thought they probably wouldn't miss me much."

Then, said the petite sergeant, she went through her marriage ceremony expecting MP's to break it up every second.

"When the children were born I wanted to give myself up, because the fear of suddenly being arrested was with me day and night, all the time. But, somehow, I just put it off and off."

Two weeks ago, the Army, slow but sure, got around to Sergeant Gallo.

"I returned home from shopping to find four MP's and two civilian police waiting at the apartment. My husband was there—he knew about it and thought it best to get it over with. He didn't try to warn me."

Army officials have "filed" her case.

"We may get around to it sometime later," a military spokesman said, "but we're not ready to press charges now."

Overton Gone, EST Remains

Senator Overton (D., La.) has departed for his native Louisiana, leaving his office marching along an hour behind the rest of Washington.

Bitterly opposed to Daylight Saving Time, Overton decreed that his office would remain on Standard Time last spring when the Capital shoved its clocks an hour ahead.

A sign on his office door boldly proclaims:

"This office operates on Standard Time."

And all the clocks in his office are an hour behind other clocks in the city.

To Organize Civic League

They Fought With Rocks Once, But Vie Now on Playfields; Or How 3 'Inspectors' Grew Into 12,000 Junior Police

Back in October 1942, the District of Columbia got three "Inspectors of Streets and Lights"—and therein lies a story.

For these inspectors were unpaid youngsters who, until they got their unofficial titles, had gone around busting lamplights.

Today, they and about 12,000 other young Washingtonians, most of them Negroes, make up the Junior Police and Citizens Corps, an organization that, according to J. Edgar Hoover, does an amazing job.

Before the corps, these youngsters fought each other and adults with rocks and knives and fists. They were the petty thieves who plagued the cop on the beat.

Now they still fight—on the playing field or in the boxing ring. But the cop on the beat doesn't worry about them. For it was just a cop on a beat who had the idea, in the first place, that "a kid can help another kid, better than an adult."

He is Oliver A. Cowan, a police private, who went to Edward J. Kelly, then superintendent of police, and got permission to try out a kids' organization.

"You can't break up the gang, so why not use it, steer it, guide it into right thinking and living?" Kelly agreed.

A Howard University graduate, newly appointed to the force, Cowan was patrolling the ungentle Thirteenth Precinct, chief recruiting ground for the Juvenile Court and the National Training School, when he conceived the idea of the corps.

Today, from headquarters at 720 Barry pl. nw. the membership of the corps is proving the wisdom of the idea Cowan had. The oath of their membership in the corps:

"I promise to keep myself out of trouble at all times. I promise to keep my friends out of trouble at all times. So help me God."

On the surface, members of the Junior Police and Citizens Corps still sound like a pretty troublesome bunch.

They are divided up into gangs, like the Bonecrushers, Vipers, Corsicans, Fifth Street Tigers and Fat Charlie's Gang. But each of these groups has a mayor, a police chief, commissioners, inspectors, captains, lieutenants and sergeants.

And each area has its own courts, judges and attorneys. There now are about 60 units, in basements of buildings, churches or schools, at the rear of stores—wherever space is available.

At Corps Headquarters, there is a clinic staffed with "health police"—doctors, nurses, psychiatrists.

Girl members of the corps run a clothing exchange, repairing clothes for the needy. One group of boys directs a scientific boy employment agency. The boys are called on to do anything from cutting grass to office work. They are screened by club officials before being sent on a job.

Cowan also uses the center as a "clearing house for youth problems" in cooperation with other youth groups.

Meetings are held in the "inspiration mural" room at corps headquarters. A mural on the wall of this room depicts outstanding Negro heroes and their triumphs.

As Cowan explained:

"A lot of underprivileged kids get discouraged. They lose hope and vision. This picture on the wall gives them something to look forward to. Makes them realize they have a chance."

The corps is still conducting its drive for $25,000 to improve the Barry Place headquarters, buy equipment, and take care of operating expenses. The campaign officially closed June 30, but is still being carried on since only about $10,000 of the goal has been raised.

Money received from last year's campaign helped to remodel the Barry Place headquarters, with the addition of a kitchen, library, health clinic, conference room, sewing room and bath rooms.

Baptists Give U. N. Backing But Decry Use of Veto Power

Copenhagen, July 31 (AP).—The United Nations is far from perfect from a Christian viewpoint, but Baptists accept it as the nearest "practical answer to Christian demands in building a righteous society that has yet appeared," Dr. Joseph M. Dawson of Washington, D. C., secretary of the United States Baptist joint conference committee on public relations, declared today.

Dawson told the second full meeting of the Baptist World Alliance's seventh congress that the veto power of the great powers in the U. N. Security Council was "the most objectionable feature of the whole United Nations structure."

The congress heard a report from E. Schweder, leading German Baptist, who said that the church in Germany had lost practically all its members between the ages of 20 and 50 during the war and that approximately 12,000 Baptists faced "an unknown future" in "Soviet-dominated territories of east Germany and Poland."

No decision has been reached as to whether the Baptist should affiliate with the World Council of Churches.

Tuck to Broadcast

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—Governor Tuck will participate in a Nation-wide broadcast from Richmond Saturday as a part of the "Our Town Speaks" series sponsored by the American Broadcasting Company, the Governor's office said today. The program will be broadcast at 1 p. m. The chief executive will speak from the rotunda of the capitol.

Korea Rule Held Stymied

Seoul, Korea, July 31 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Albert E. Brown charged today that the Joint Commission for Korea was deadlocked because the Russians were attempting to insure a Communist-dominated People's Front majority in the Korean interim government.

Brown summoned newsmen for a conference after today's commission session—the fourty-ninth since last year—again ended in "no progress" after heated debate.

Brown said "the only progress now possible" would be if the Russians withdrew their proposal to consult only Koreans who have not spoken against Allied trusteeship.

Should the Russians get their way, Brown said, the Korean interim government "would be predominantly composed of the People's Front."

"Although the Soviet delegation denies the intention to eliminate rightists from proper participation in the government and also denies that through elimination of rightists it intends to bring about a future Korean government dominated by the People's Front, acceptance of the Soviet proposal by the American delegation inevitably would lead to that result," Brown said.

The American delegation, Brown said, believes all Korean political and social organizations should have a say in their future government.

Britain Asks U. S. to Relax 2 Clauses in Loan Agreement

London, July 31.—Britain asked the United States today for relaxation of the two major provisions of the Washington loan agreement—sterling convertibility and the discrimination clause—to help meet the country's economic crisis.

Flying to Paris this afternoon, Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, met William L. Clayton, U. S. Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, for a full discussion of Britain's mounting economic difficulties.

Cripps, it was learned, initiated discussions to obtain relaxation of the two clauses, regarded by the British as blocking effective action to conserve their dwindling dollar reserves.

It already is clear that by the end of the year there will be insufficient dollars to meet any convertibility demand. Having withdrawn another 250 million dollars of the original $4,400,000,000 credit yesterday, Britain now has only one billion dollars of the loan left.

The discrimination clause requires that Britain not discriminate against imports from America but buy in the best market without regard to whether it must pay in dollars or pounds for purchases.

Herndon Man Is Named To Interior Post

Oscar L. Chapman, Undersecretary of Interior, announced yesterday the appointment of Clarence R. Bradshaw, Herndon, Va., as chief of the adjudication branch of the Bureau of Land Management.

He succeeds Thomas C. Havell, recently appointed assistant director of the bureau.

Stomach Removed From Chest Cavity By Rare Operation

Waltham, Mass., July 31 (U.P.).—A rare and delicate operation has saved the life of a soldier who wasted to less than 100 pounds after a jeep accident in which his stomach was pushed into his chest cavity, it was reported today.

A group of 12 surgeons and assistants worked for four hours over Pvt. Joseph Carr, 19, of Central Falls, R. I., who had not eaten a meal for five months and was flown here from Germany for emergency treatment.

Surgeons at Murphy General Hospital found Carr's stomach had been squeezed through the diaphram and into the chest cavity, where it rested upside down.

Because of the patient's condition, anesthetic was introduced directly into the windpipe by means of a tube.

An incision 14 to 15 inches long was required and one rib had to be severed before Carr's stomach could be returned to its normal position.

Carr was reported to be recovering.

1/3 OF A CENT

STEEL PRODUCERS have announced new prices for certain of their products. As a result steel prices are up an average of less than one-third of a cent a pound.

The higher cost of living hits steel plants as well as individuals. Steelmaking costs have risen sharply since January of this year—and they are still going up.

This average steel price increase adds:

- $11 to the total cost of all the steel used in a typical automobile.
- 65 cents to the total cost of all the steel in an average domestic refrigerator.
- $5 to the cost of the steel in a medium-sized farm tractor.
- $25 for all the steel used in building a 5 or 6 room one-family house.

At the present average price of 3½ cents per pound, steel is the lowest priced of all metals.

How much have steel plant "living costs" gone up?

THE CHIEF items of cost in steelmaking are wages, raw materials, equipment, fuel and transportation. Since January 1, 1947, these changes have taken place in typical annual cost items of the steel industry:

Wages have increased $240,000,000
Scrap has increased $160,000,000
Freight has increased $75,000,000
Fuel oil has increased $30,000,000
Coal has increased $90,000,000

These and other items of increase since January 1, 1947, have added more than $600,000,000 to the annual costs of the steel industry.

That sum is more than the combined earnings of all the steel companies for three years past.

It amounts to nearly $10.00 a ton on the present record-breaking volume of steel output.

To help meet this higher cost of living in steel plants, steel prices have been increased on the average by less than $6.00 a ton.

The increase in steel prices since 1939 is only about half as much as the increase in commodity prices generally, and is less than half as much as the increase in weekly earnings of steel wage earners.

Truman Is Still Dominated By CIO Principles, Says Taft

ahead as we can see. He insists upon a health plan which will socialize our entire medical profession and make every doctor an employe of the Federal Government.

"He has favored every step toward centralization of power in Federal bureaus, or in Federal valley authorities, as against the power of independent states, cities and schools. He has appointed to office those who believe in control by government. He has violently opposed every effort to bring about labor reform."

Taft said while the presidency remains in Democratic hands, a Republican Congress "is faced with the job of undoing, step by step, the more serious abuses of the New Deal, and in every step it faces a veto by the President."

Foreign Policy Termed Befuddled

There is only one way to do the job as it should be done, he asserted, adding:

"The Republican Party has shown its complete capacity to develop policy in this most difficult field of legislation. It has shown its ability to administer the executive department as well as the legislative.

"Its domestic policies will always be sabotaged and opposed by a Democratic executive administration. The befuddled foreign policy can only be redeemed by a change in the executive administration.

"If the people want a definite end to overgrown bureaucracy, overgrown spending, overgrown taxing, and overgrown regulation of everybody—all abuses of the New Deal; if they wish a return to the common sense American method of handling our problems of regulation and social welfare, and our foreign policy, within the principles of American Government, they can only reach that end by electing a Republican President in 1948—and they will do so."

Congress Is Praised

Taft said, considering everything, the list of important laws adopted at the first session of the Eightieth Congress "has not been equaled by any Congress."

"Subjects dealt with have been met 'head on,' with courage and directness," he said.

As the session went forward, he added, the "saboteurs of good government were disappointed in each prediction" that the Republicans could not organize Congress, could not pass a labor bill, could not save money, could not cut taxes and that they would wreck American foreign policy.

He conceded some things were left undone, but said that "will always be true."

Congressional Critics Listed

He listed as critics of Congress:

1. The Communist "because this is not a Communistic Congress and because the Communists do not believe in Congress at all.

2. The New Dealers and the CIO "because this is not a New Deal or a CIO Congress, and has concerned itself ith reversing the abuses of the New Deal rather than with extending them.

3. Those "modern planners who do not really aprove of Congress at all and who believe in government by the executive."

4. Those who have "some project of their own, no doubt of importance but postponed in the necessity of considering measures more vital to the public welfare."

"He said the "much vaunted talk of cooperation on the President's side has come to nothing. Apparently, he (Mr. Truman) contemplated that all the cooperation was to come from the Republicans. Outside of foreign policy, he has never consulted the Republicans or discussed with them any important public policy.

Views a Foreign Policy

"Even in foreign policy, Republicans were hardly called in on important new proposals like the Greek loan and the Marshall Plan until the policy itself had been formulated and was ready to announce. They were merely asked to go along."

As for the Labor Act he helped write, Taft said despite violent attacks, polls show "a great majority of labor itself is in favor of nearly every reform contained in the act."

He led up to his expression of unhappiness over foreign policy by asserting Congress did its best to cooperate with presidential policies.

He said this is a field left almost completely to the President under the constitution and Congress should hesitate to interfere unless such policy "involves us in the danger of an unnecessary war, or proposes to drain the resources of our taxpayers and our productive labor to an unreasonable degree. I believe it is a field where Congress should not, except with great provocation, give foreign countries a picture of a divided America."

Ideals Seen Abandoned

He asserted through agreements made at Teheran and Yalta by the late President Roosevelt and at Potsdam by Mr. Truman, "we practically abandoned all of the ideals for which the war was fought."

"We created an impossible situation in which freedom is supressed throughout large sections of Europe and Asia," he added. "In Germany our policy has wrecked the economy of Europe and now we are called upon for cash from our taxpayers to remedy the breakdown. The whole policy has created an impossible situation, which only a strong executive policy can hope even to alleviate. Certainly it is beyond the power of Congress, which cannot initiate foreign policy."

The launching of the Taft-for-President boom attracted hundreds of the party faithful for a climactic "recognition dinner" tonight, at which Taft made his half-hour radio address.

Taft Weighs Chances

First off today, Taft held a news conference, at which he said he wants to make certain "there's a good chance to win" before deciding whether to accept the promised pledge of Ohio's 53 delegates to the June national convention in Philadelphia.

Next, the 44-member Republican State committee unanimously indorsed him for the presidential nomination and called on Ohio's national committee members to "take all steps necessary and help to bring to the attention of Republicans of other States Senator Taft's unusual qualifications and availability for the Presidency." In accepting the resolution, Taft said at the present time the prospects of winning "look pretty good."

Taft dictated this comment on the committee's resolution:

"I'm greatly complimented by the action of the Ohio State central and executive committee inviting me to become a candidate for President and tendering me their support.

"I owe any progress I have made to the hard work and assistance of the Republicans of Ohio and I cannot adequately express my gratitude to them.

Plans Canadian Vacation

"I'm planning a vacation in Canada and then a speaking trip to the Pacific Coast. In the meantime I shall try to sound out public sentiment throughout the country to determine whether there is a good probability of my nomination and election. I shall make a definite reply to the committee early in October."

Taft said the recent session of Congress was a "great success" and urged all Republicans to take the record to the country in speeches. He asked them again to speak upon all public questions and when asked if he included Gov. Thomas E. Dewey replied, "I imagine so."

He asserted the Republican Party is entitled to the support of the people in 1948 on the basis of its record in Congress.

Taft begins his speaking trip in California after a five weeks' vacation at the family retreat at Murray Bya, Canada.

Speaking Itinerary Announced

His itinerary as of today was announced as follows:

September 12—Speach at Santa Cruz, Calif., before Bar Association convention; 14—Visit to San Francisco, no meeting; 15—San Diego, no meeting; 16—Speech at Los Angeles Republican gathering; 17-18—Visit to Hoover Dam and California water projects; 19—Speech before Commonwealth Club at San Francisco; 20—Reno, Nev.; 21—Lake Tahoe, Calif.; 22-23—En route to Seattle; 24—Speech to Seattle Rotary Club; 25—Foreign policy speech at Takoma before World Affairs Council; 26—Speech to Gearhart, (Oreg.) Republican Club; 26—Portland, probable speech; 28—En route to Idaho; 29-30—Two speeches in State, places not yet set; October 1—Speech in Wyoming, place not set; October 3—Return to Cincinnati.

Taft has three other speaking engagements after that not connected with the Western trip. He will address the Iowa Bankers Association at Des Moines City Club October 25 and the Ohio Society of New York at New York City November 10. The Senator said these speeches would have been made even if he had not arranged his sentiment-sounding trip West.

car lines Tuesday for an indefinite period and its truck assembly line Wednesday for a week.

Both the Studebaker closing, affecting 10,000 workers, and a proposed cutback Monday in Dodge truck production, affecting 1,300 employes, as well as most of the current layoffs, were attributed to the CIO United Auto Workers strike at the Murray Corp. of America.

Highland Park Plant Closed

The Ford Motor Co. today shut down its Highland Park truck assembly lines, sending home 300 workers and boosting Ford's total idle list to 26,800. Some 20,000 engaged in manufacturing operations at the big Rouge plant, 4,500 in the company's Mercury and Lincoln divisions and 2,000 at its Iron Mountain, Mich., plant already had been laid off.

The U. S. Rubber Company's 7,500 Detroit employes remained on strike for the fifth day in a dispute over production standards.

Back to work went 8,000 men at the Hudson Motor Car Co., who walked out because of hot weather and 6,760 at Chrysler Corporation's Dodge main plant after a shutdown caused by a ventilating system failure. Another 4,500 ended their walkout over a working condition dispute at Kaiser-Fraizer Corp.

The 7000 Murray strikers also are demanding contract protection against possible financial and other penalties legalized by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Richard T. Leonard, UAW vice president and director of the union's Ford department, disclosed the Ford-Murray New York meeting.

His statement was confirmed by a company spokesman without elaboration.

Leonard said Ford asked Murray to intervene in the dispute with top officers of the auto union. Leonard said Murray had advised him of this in telephone calls from New York.

"I told Phil," Leonard said, "that if peace were to be arranged between Ford and the UAW, it would have to be achieved in the hargaining room here in Detroit by the democratically elected top negotiating committee."

Higgins Strike Ends

New Orleans, July 31 (AP).—A week-old strike at two plants of Higgins, Inc., ended today when CIO union officials told striking workers to "return to work unconditionally."

The back-to-work move came two days after the strikers advised Andrew J. Higgins, sr., they had changed their minds and would accept a wage increase offer they had previously refused. Higgins announced he had withdrawn the offer when it was refused.

Bethelehem Offers Raise

New York, July 31 (U.P.).—Bethlehem Steel Co. announced today that it had offered a 12-cent-an-hour wage increase to workers at its nine shipyards who have been idle for more than a month in a Nation-wide strike of 70,000 men.

E. G. Grace, chairman of the board of Bethlehem, said the offer was made in meetings with the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (CIO) and United States conciliation officials.

Paice and Martin wore flannel slacks and white undershirts. Their heads were sheathed in their own shirts, which were tied about their necks. The breeze moved them gently. They were about two feet from the ground.

On their trousers were pinned the "communique" from Irgun's tribunal. It said, "British spies, Martin and Paice, held in underground captivity since July 12, have been executed, not as hostages for the three Irgunists hanged Tuesday, but for five listed 'crimes'."

VEPCO Rate Slash Is Announced Effective Sept. 1

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—A rate reduction and discount system effective September 1 which will result in a saving of an estimated $1,400,000 to most Virginia customers of the Virginia Electric & Power Co. was announced today by the State Corporation Commission.

The plan calls for a permanent reduction of about $375,000 per year in the rates charged residential consumers under VEPCO's schedule No. 1.

Also, during the year beginning September 1, the SCC and VEPCO officials agreed to inaugurate a discount system under which commercial and industrial consumers will receive a 5 per cent reduction on their monthly bills.

Officials estimated the discount will produce savings to these consumers of $1,025,000 during the 12-month period during which the plan will be in effect.

Disciples Told U. S. Schools Fail to Develop Principle

Buffalo, N. Y., July 31 (AP).—The international convention of the Disciples of Christ was told today that America's educational system has "measurably failed in creating moral and spiritual foundations for life."

Dr. Riley B. Montgomery, president of Lynchburg (Va.) College, declared:

"In America we have developed an educational system that in organization and outreach is phenomenal. It has startled the world by offering educational opportunities to a high percentage of our people.

"The educational program has contributed greatly to our scientific, technical and industrial advance. It has helped us to develop a high standard of living and to become a Nation of fabulous wealth.

"This great educational system is now being weighed in the balances of God. It is being found to have measurably failed in creating moral and spiritual foundations for life. The home is deteriorating, crime is increasing, citizenship is paralyzed by indifference and religion is passed by as a nonessential."

Luther Shao, Nanking, administrative secretary of the Disciple churches in China, reported to the convention that despite physical losses "the Christian movement in China has gained in recognition and prestige."

Texas American Legion Hits 'Atheism' in U. N.

Fort Worth, July 31 (AP).—Texas Legionnaires want Julian Huxley, director of the United Nations' Education, Science and Culture Division, ousted from office on the grounds that he is "the leading atheist of Europe." The legion also recommends that the U. N. "turn to God for guidance."

These proposals were contained in a series of resolutions adopted at the annual convention of the Texas department here yesterday.

Fort Smith, Ark., July 31 (U.P.).—A tough-talking 22-year-old gun girl tried to hold up the City National Bank in this old Southwest frontier town today but lost her nerve at the pay window and fled. She was captured less than an hour later.

The girl, toting a .38 revolver, said she was Verona Tinney, of Ponca City, Okla. She readily confessed the attempted stickup.

U. S. Envoy to Denmark Cut in Plane Crash

Oslo, Norway, July 31 (AP).—An American military plane carrying Josiah Marvel, jr., United States Ambassador to Denmark, tipped and crashed today after landing on a runway of Fornebu Airfield near Oslo. None of the four persons aboard was seriously injured. Marvel suffered a slight cut.

Both engines of the DC-3 caught fire, but the ground crew and the pilot subdued the flames quickly.

The pilot was Colonel Tomlinson, United States Air Attache at Copenhagen.

Cleric Admits Bigamy, Due To Amnesia

Salisbury, England, July 31 (AP).—Police today reported the case of an Anglican clergyman who surrendered voluntarily and admitted he made a bigamous marriage with a corporal in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force while suffering from war shock.

The clergyman, the Rev. Charles Henry Cunningham Lamb, 36, was charged with marrying Joan Ellen Boddie, 25, in 1944, while he was a chaplain with the RAF. He had been married before in 1941.

Lamb went voluntarily to police after the Bishop of Sodor and Man told him he had reason to believe he had committed bigamy.

"There is a period of my life for which I cannot account, and lately I have been troubled with the thought that all was not well with me," Lamb was quoted by police.

The statement detailed Lamb's worries over the deaths of his father and pilot comrades and his own injuries as the result of a bomb blast.

"Then I met a WAAF named Joan Boddie," his statement said. "All I can remember was her goodness and gentle kisses. I have no recollection of being physically attracted to her in any way, but remember tremendous gratefulness for supporting me. From that time my memory seems to have failed.

"Now that all that is missing has been explained to me . . . remorse will be mine to the end of my days," Lamb was quoted as saying.

Leave Bonds Can Be Cashed Sept. 2, Veterans Are Advised

The Treasury advised ex-GI's last night that they can cash their terminal leave bonds at any bank on or after September 2, simply by showing their discharge papers.

But it urged ex-servicemen not to cash their bonds unless it was "absolutely necessary." About $1,800,000,000 worth of bonds are outstanding.

Procedure for cashing the bonds will be the same as that for redeeming war bonds, the Treasury said. Under the law passed by Congress and signed by President Truman, veterans have the option of turning their bonds in for cash at once, or holding them for five years and getting 2½ per cent interest.

"There is no limit within which the bonds must be cashed," the Treasury emphasized. "Interest does not stop until the bonds mature in five years, and the longer a veteran holds his bonds the more money he will receive when he does cash them."

The Treasury said it expects to cash about one billion dollars worth of the bonds at once. It hopes the remaining 800 million dollars will be held for a while.

The Treasury statement emphasized that:

1. Banks, or other financial institutions authorized to cash Federal bonds, should require each veteran to present his original discharge papers as a means of identification. If such papers are not available, paying agents should "exercise exceptional care to see that the right person is getting the cash."

2. Veterans who mail their bonds to the Treasury, War and Navy Departments, or Veterans' Administration for cashing, are just wasting their time and causing unnecessary work. They will just be mailed back, after a considerable delay. Bonds must be cashed at local banks or other authorized redemption agents of the U. S. Treasury.

Paris Police to Probe Fire That Killed 22

Paris, July 31 (U.P.).—Prefect of Police Roger Leonard today ordered an investigation of the Tourelles prison fire last night which killed 22 women inmates.

Prison officials said lightning flashing down a chimney set off a pile of celluloid and created a fire that spread so rapidly guards didn't have time to save the women.

Treason

The crime of treason for which Douglas Chandler was convicted a month ago by a Boston jury and for which he was sentenced on Wednesday to life imprisonment carries with it a unique odium. Justification of some sort may be found for most other crimes—in the maleducation of the criminal or in the desperation of his need or in the provocation of passion. But treason, which the Constitution specifies "shall consist only in levying war against them (the United States) or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort," can be condoned on none of these grounds. It can be condoned only when, as in the case of the anti-Nazi underground fighters in Germany, it is motivated by values to which civilized men subscribe.

Douglas Chandler sought to have his treason condoned on this basis. "If I must die because I dared to speak the truth as I see it," he declared just before sentence was imposed upon him, "then let me die. If I die for my beliefs, they will not die with me, and there may be a rebirth of freedom." Perhaps the statement was nothing more than the theatrical appeal of a man conscious of his guilt. Perhaps, however, it was quite sincere—the utterance of a mind warped yet not insane.

Douglas Chandler believed that democracy was decadent, that the Government of the United States was responsible for instigating war against the German Reich, that the Nazis were right in their assumptions of racial supremacy and that the welfare of Americans depended upon a German triumph. These beliefs were as much a betrayal of the values cherished by the country in which he claimed citizenship as his expression of them under the auspices of the German propaganda ministry was a betrayal of the country itself. But we think he had no basis whatever for his complaint that he was convicted "not for what I had done but for what I believed in."

The Constitution of the United States takes great care that men should not be convicted of treason on account of their beliefs. It stipulates that "no person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court." The safeguard is a valuable one; because of it convictions for treason are extremely rare. Chandler did adhere to the enemies of the United States, giving them aid and comfort. And it was for this that he has been sentenced to imprisonment for life. His conduct was criminal. The beliefs that prompted it simply make it seem the more abhorrent.

Bull's Run

Fleet Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey does his prestige no service by the amazingly frank disclosures of personal pique in his current series in the Saturday Evening Post. After reading his account of the Battle of the Philippine Sea of October, 1944, one gets the impression that he regarded the whole affair as something of a grandiose Naval Academy football game, and that his chief concern now is the glory he missed because his touchdown run was interrupted. Indeed, the reader can almost visualize Admiral Halsey as the star halfback berating the coach for taking him out in the middle of the winning play.

The particular focus of Admiral Halsey's chagrin is the fact that his plan to obliterate the remnants of a Japanese carrier force off Luzon was upset by the necessity of aiding American units farther south. While Halsey's powerful, modern Third Fleet was gamboling north (away, incidentally, from the over-all supervision of General MacArthur), units of Admiral Thomas Kinkaid's more obsolete Seventh Fleet were meeting a several-pronged Jap attack and were supporting the ground force invasion of Leyte. One of Kinkaid's units, a group of escort carriers under Admiral C. A. F. Sprague, was severely beleaguered. Kinkaid radioed Halsey repeatedly for help. Then, after Kinkaid's pleas seemed to get nowhere, came a radiogram from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, at that time commander in chief in the Pacific. "The whole world wants to know," it read, "where is Task Force 34." Admiral Halsey's reaction is a startling confession of petulance:

> I was so mad I couldn't talk. It was utterly impossible for me to believe that Chester Nimitz would send me such an insult. He hadn't, of course, but I didn't know the truth for several weeks. . . . To increase the difficulty of breaking our codes, most dispatches are padded with gibberish. . . . "The whole world wants to know" sounded so infernally plausible that my decoders read it as a valid part of the message. Chester blew up when I told him about it; he tracked down the little squirt and chewed him to bits, but it was too late then; the damage had been done.

The damage to which Admiral Halsey refers, apparently, was jolting him into the realization that he was not fighting a strictly private war. He leaves no doubt that he now considers his reluctant decision to turn back a wrong move. He describes his torment thus:

> At that moment the (Japanese) Northern Force, with its two remaining carriers crippled and dead in the water, was exactly 42 miles from the muzzles of my 16-inch guns, yet I turned my back on the opportunity I had dreamed of since my days as a cadet. For me one of the biggest battles of the war was off and what has been called the Battle of Bull's Run was on.

The god of missed opportunity has a strong grip on men's hearts, and perhaps Admiral Halsey may be forgiven his obeisance. But while it is possible to sympathize with his disappointment, the petty tenor of his remarks leaves a bad taste. One cannot but admire the rather stubborn honesty that prompted Admiral Halsey's egregious admissions of frustration. But Americans have come to expect more of their military leaders than mere courage and prowess; they expect, in addition, a sense of responsibility and a recognition of the necessity for teamwork. For the benefit of Admiral Halsey's personal niche in history, this part of his story would have been better left unsaid.

How Much Was Saved

In another week or so the experts of the Bureau of the Budget will be ready with revised estimates of receipts and expenditures. Meantime the public has been bombarded with more or less ex parte statements—designed chiefly for political effect—of what has been saved by the pruning activities of the Eightieth Congress. Estimates of the prospective surplus for the current fiscal year likewise range from a negligible figure to an impressive number of billions.

At this juncture it is impossible for the most impartial of experts to offer reliable estimates of total expenditures. For the amount and timing of our foreign relief outlays in connection with the Marshall Plan and other obligations remain wrapped in obscurity. All that can be said with certainty is that those outlays will probably be substantial, though a good part of them may be spread over a period of years. It would be unfair, however, to judge the efficacy of the Eightieth Congress' budget-cutting program by offsetting against bona fide savings the unanticipated outlays already voted or likely to be incurred for foreign relief.

Representative Taber asserts that 2.7 billion dollars in direct appropriations have been cut from the 1948 budget estimates. That figure should be the most reliable measure of the success of the economy drive. But it, too, is unsatisfactory, for not all the reductions are in the nature of bona fide savings. For instance, an item of 800 million dollars is included, representing a reduction in the amount requested for tax refunds. If that sum proves inadequate, deficiency appropriations will have to be voted. In any event no saving is involved in cutting the allowance. Thus the 6 billion dollars that the House and the 4½ billion dollars that the Senate set as the goal of their budget paring endeavors have been whittled down to less than 2 billion dollars by disallowing that one dubious item.

But Mr. Taber claims that another 442.5 million dollars has been saved by rescission of funds that would otherwise have been spent. Large savings, in his opinion, have also been effected by the rescission of appropriations amounting to 2.7 billion dollars that would otherwise have been available for obligation. However, Mr. Taber admits that he does not know whether the sum in question would have been spent. So-called recoveries of funds, such as amounts returned by Government agencies that have been held as revolving funds, are likewise listed among the savings for which Mr. Taber takes credit. It all adds up to a quite respectable total, if one accepts the premises of the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

We do not doubt that Mr. Taber's ardor for economy has had a certain restraining effect on Government spending by agencies in possession of excess funds. But, on the whole, the economy showing tends to bear out claims that the President and his advisers had done a thorough job of budget paring before Mr. Taber began his operations.

Maniu's Turn

The right of opposition is going progressively under eclipse in the Balkans. The latest example is the jailing of Romania's redoubtable Agrarian leader, 74-year-old Juliu Maniu. Like Petrov in Bulgaria, Maniu stood in the way of what the Nazis used to call "harmonization," which is what Moscow is practicing under the Molotov plan. He represented the hard core of resistance to the goose-stepping order by Moscow to the tune played by the pro-Communist Petru Groza's government, whose vice premier, George Tatarescu, incidentally, used to be a Hitler stooge. Along with Maniu his lieutenants have been taken off to jail, and the party newspaper, Dreptatea has been suppressed. Soon there will be no Agrarian Party left in Romania except in the minds of Romanian peasants. All Romania will have been "democratized" in a police regime.

If there were a free election in Romania today, Maniu's party would undoubtedly head the polls, and by an overwhelming majority. It was demoted to the position of minority party at the rigged election last November.

This Agrarian strength is the reason that Moscow had to retire Maniu from public life. Another reason is that when the peace treaty is ratified, the Red Army is due to leave Romania. Maniu in jail will leave the Romanians in darkness except for American British broadcasts. In every village in Romania there is at least one shortwave set. The peasants all stay up one night a week to listen to it. Why should we not now give the Romanians news about Romania? This could be phoned out and put on the air. That is about the only way we can curb the terrorism which is growing in Romania under cover of censorship and suppression of opposition.

Construction Costs

Representatives of the building trades unions, contractors, private financial interests and city officials have been summoned by Mayor O'Dwyer of New York to discuss plans for stabilizing wages in the building industry. Although long-term agreements have been negotiated between the New York City Building Trades Employers Association and the AFL Building and Construction Trades Council, subsequent revisions of wage schedules and pending demands for further increases necessitate constant revisions of cost estimates by contractors. If construction wages, which constitute a large part of building costs, could be stabilized by a binding long-term agreement Mayor O'Dwyer concludes that bids on city contracts, even at existing high-cost levels, could be lowered, since contractors would no longer find it necessary to inflate their bids to offset unforeseen additions to wage outlays. Mayor O'Dwyer's efforts to stabilize building costs will, we trust, bear fruit, for the insatiable wage demands of building workers, combined with featherbedding union practices, have already contributed to a serious slowdown of building activity that has deprived thousands of New York City workers of jobs.

Stabilization of the wages of organized construction labor in large cities like New York would not, however, remove the impediments to building resulting from the over-all high level of building costs, which are primarily responsible for the disappointing showing in all branches of the construction industry. It is "in the area of residential construction," according to the President's Midyear Economic Report, "that activity has fallen most short of needs, whether these are measured by consumers' needs or by the role that home building should play in an economy stabilized at high levels." At present cost levels, indeed, many would-be home owners have been priced out of the market, making the backlog demand for housing an utterly ineffective stimulus to building activity. Hence as the Economic Report warns, "It is none too early to be concerned about a possible relapse of housing into its prewar state of chronic ill-health and instability." In other words, a revival of this lagging industry calls not only for the stabilization of building costs, but for reductions of both labor and material costs, as well as adoption of more efficient construction methods that would effect economies in the use of materials and increase the productivity of high-priced building labor.

Cut-Rate Loyalty

Half a loyalty investigation is likely to be worse than none at all. Yet this is what the House ordered (and the Senate accepted) when it cut to a bare 11 million dollars the $24,900,000 appropriation requested by the President to carry out the loyalty investigation program he outlined some months ago. The funds sought for the portion of the program to be executed by the Civil Service Commission were reduced by approximately 80 per cent.

A pair of makeshift alternatives confronts the CSC under this pruned appropriation. Either the agency must limit its investigation to a select number of job applicants slated to fill more or less sensitive positions or it must reduce the thoroughness with which it scrutinizes the records of applicants. There is some virtue, we think, in the latter course. The commission could eliminate the check of names against the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities without any serious threat to security and with a good deal more protection for the reputations of the individuals involved. But of course a partial probe would satisfy no one—neither the members of Congress who supported the Rees bill nor those who are opposed in principle to the President's order and the legislation alike.

Perhaps this is precisely what the proponents of the reduced appropriation desire. If they can show that the President's order operates unsatisfactorily—as it must if the funds for its execution are inadequate—then they can argue that the Rees bill must be substituted for it when Congress reconvenes. Of the two programs, the President's is, in our judgment, the less offensive if only because it respects the authority of executive agency chiefs to hire and fire and because it lacks the permanence of a legislative act. Its standards of evaluating loyalty are, however, identical with those in the Rees bill, and its review procedure reveals an equal disregard for the rights of individuals and for the traditional safeguards of American justice.

MUSIC

Why are voices, calling to one another in the evening,
Lovelier than at other times . . .?
Rising and falling across the fields,
Like a flock of bells—
Is it the wind after sunset,
Lifting the sound in delicate gushes,
Letting it float,
Then carrying it high among the branches
Of stirring trees?
Is it the quivering boughs sliding the words downwards
Over cool, green cataracts of leaves—
Or, is it the dews and the damp
Under the sky, moulding the shape of words
Into music?

I will remember these voices
Calling across the meadows at evening
On cold, winter nights,
When the flame eats into the log,
And a gale is shaking the spruces.

Lincoln Sidelights

So far as I was able, I have inspected with some care the files of the Robert Todd Lincoln collection relating to the life and times of his famous father. I knew Robert Todd Lincoln for 30 years or more.

Amusing indeed it is that preliminary press reports say that nothing is revealed in this collection either adding to or subtracting from the sum total of existing Lincoln knowledge. I have in my possession corroborative evidence showing that President Lincoln considered that Grant was a "military misfit, a chronic imbiber and wholly an irresponsible man." He said of General McClellan: "He is the best man to end the war early and successfully but I am restrained from helping him." This bears out my conversations with Robert Todd Lincoln in the late 90s and the early years of the new century. LORA K. HACKER.

"Mars And Neptune"

Your editorial of July 28, "Mars and Neptune," is both timely and appropriate in applauding the President's selection of Mr. Forrestal as the first Defense Secretary. However, within the body of the column The Washington Post, which has been a strong proponent of the unification legislation, takes the first step toward undermining the very law whose passage it has so vigorously espoused. I refer to the description of the United States Navy as the "home of hidebound traditionalists," describing those who opposed the merger as "die-hards" and pointedly employing the expression "loyalty to the national instead of the service interest" in a fashion that may be interpreted as a unilateral indictment of the United States Navy.

It is true that the majority of the open opposition to the original merger bill came from officers of the Navy—senior officers, moreover, whose loyalty to their country stands beyond question. These officers took issue with the measure because of their considered convictions, even when so to do exposed them to ridicule and attack. They are, however, honorable public servants, and for you to describe them as "hidebound traditionalists" and "die-hards," thereby implying that they will not loyally and unreservedly support the provisions of the merger, now that it is the law of the land, is an unwarranted affront to them and a disservice to the very unity which the new law attempts to promote. V. H. KRULAK,

Lieutenant Colonel, USMC.

Quantico, Va.

Editor's Note: Colonel Krulak is too touchy. We, of course, did not dub the Navy "die-hard," but simply referred to die-hards in the Navy.

"Patterson's Departure"

In the departure of Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the distinguished former Secretary of War, for her home in New York State, Washington has lost the services of another "good soldier." The splendid tributes paid to Judge Patterson by the President and in your editorial of July 20, "Patterson's Departure," remind me that she, too, exhibited a rare devotion to the cause of the service men and women on the home front. She, too, deserves high praise and commendation for her tireless work in their behalf.

Perhaps closest to her heart of all her varied interests was the Junior Army-Navy Guild Organization (JANGO), of which she and Mrs. Ralph Bard, wife of a former Undersecretary of the Navy, were cofounders. Through its constructive program of volunteer service for girls and young women, she made a great contribution toward promoting a feeling of responsibility by the wives and daughters of service personnel for the recreational needs of the armed forces in this city and for other worthwhile community endeavors. By helping to establish and maintain this link between service families and the civilian war and peace service programs, she rendered great assistance to the over-all effort in the hospitals, canteens and service clubs of Washington.

Despite her active participation in the planning and management of many other community groups far too numerous to mention, Mrs. Patterson always found time to lend an individual word of encouragement to service men and women wherever she met them. She was never too busy to visit regularly the sick and wounded at Walter Reed Hospital or to take them to parties in her car or entertain them in her home. Many lonely boys had their days brightened by her thoughtful acts of kindness.

May I, therefore, paraphrase one sentence of your fine editorial by saying, "There were few couples like them in wartime Washington." They both will be missed.

SARAH LUCAS DANFORTH.

Washington.

Double Standard

It is difficult to understand the machinations of governmental planning and policy. In the armed services, civilian, military and naval personnel work side by side. Congress, in cutting the appropriations, made it necessary to reduce the personnel, so civilian employes in Grades 2, 3 and 4 were given "walking papers" and their positions were filled with military personnel in the first and second pay grades whose pay plus subsistence is equivalent to the salary of CAF's 9 and 10.

Civilian employes who work for 30 and more years beside military personnel stew at governmental inertia in not having as equitable a retirement plan for them as for the military. Military personnel retire at half pay after 20 years of service and at three fourths after 30 years of service regardless of age; the civilian sitting beside them must work until he is 62 regardless of the number of years of service. When he does retire, his retirement pay is a small pittance.

While a civilian has to deduct every minute of leave he takes from his 26 days a year, the military man takes 72-hour passes twice and three times a month.

Military orders confuse civilian supervisors by making separate regulations for military personnel who are in the same office doing the same work with civilian personnel; they change the job number in order to maintain high-ranking enlisted personnel in low civilian grades.

And now the hue and cry that civilians must be laid off Government payrolls in order to meet reduced budgets. Where is governmental economy?

Russia As A Food Exporter

Many abroad take it that Soviet Russia is looking forward to a bountiful harvest, bigger even than the prewar ones. This, of course, implies that the Soviet agricultural productive apparatus is in good shape and that is exactly what the Soviets want the outside world to believe.

It is now a matter of historical record that millions of peasants died from starvation in Russia's best grain areas in the early 30s, especially in the winter 1932-33—the peak of the compulsory collectivization drive. Yet Soviet Russia, where foreign trade was the state's monopoly, was exporting food on a relatively large scale in those years. On the average in 1932 and 1933 it exported 1,980,000 tons of grain, 164,000 tons of oil seeds, 58,000 tons of sugar, 74,452,900 pounds of butter, and 5,162,000 dozen eggs. Those exports obviously were not genuine surpluses.

In 1945 Soviet Russia sold France 550,000 tons of grain. The agricultural output at that time was a closely guarded secret, but enough was known of the food situation in that year to conclude that the wheat was not a genuine surplus. The Russian population was indeed starving. The daily caloric intake of the rations in Moscow was as follows in 1945: manual workers in heavy industry, 1950; other manual workers, 1750; employes, 1300; dependents, 750; and children under 12 years, 950. Potatoes and vegetables were practically the only foodstuffs to supplement the rationed foodstuffs for everybody except the few with exorbitant incomes.

The Fourth Plan, approved in March 1946, promised abolition of bread rationing in the fall of 1946. Actually one group of consumers was entirely deprived of a bread ration in the fall of 1946, while the rations of others remained unchanged. The prices of rationed food were raised 2.1 to 3.4 times, the price boost of black bread being the largest.

The poor 1946 harvest had to be officially recognized to justify the failure of fulfilling the promise. However, rather than stating that the production apparatus was in deplorable shape, the responsibility for the poor crop was pushed on the weather god.

The failure to fulfill the promise of abolishing rationing in the fall of 1946 compelled the government to lift the curtain with reference to the status of agricultural production. This was done, by no means fully and mostly in a very ambiguous way, in the resolution of the Central Committee of the Communist Party on measures of raising agriculture of February 1947.

The disclosed amount of devastation of Soviet agriculture exceeded the most pessimistic appraisals known to the present writer. With reference to grain, Russia's most important crop, Andreev said in his report to the Central Committee that to reach the Fourth Plan's goal for 1950, 1945 acreages would have to be increased by 24 per cent and yields by 54 per cent. This obviously implies that the output in 1945 was 48 per cent below the 1950 goal. But this goal is short of prewar by several million hectares in acreages, while the ordered average yield is only little higher than in prewar. All in all, the 1945 grain output appears to have been little more than half of prewar. However, roughly 90 per cent of the prewar grain crop was used for the current domestic consumption in Soviet Russia and yet the country could afford almost no white bread.

Similarly gruesome was the 1945 situation with reference to most other foodstuffs, except potatoes and vegetables. Considerably less than half the meat produced in 1940 was produced in 1945 when the output (prewar boundaries) was 30 per cent below 1928 on a per capita basis. The per capita production of meat was certainly below 20 pounds in 1945.

While officials finally had to recognize a great recession in agricultural output during the war, the situation, specifically in the never enemy-occupied territories, is still a secret. First, they wanted it believed that agriculture of that area continued to expand even during the war. A setback was officially recognized only for the enemy-occupied territories because of direct destruction of means of production by the Germans.

But the huge decline in agricultural production is not limited to the enemy-devastated areas of prewar Russia. It is only true that these areas are farther back from the prewar level than Russia as a whole (present boundaries). However, in certain annexed territories the decline may have been less than this average. Official evidence leaves no doubt that agriculture in the never occupied territory was hit almost as strongly as in the whole of Russia in present boundaries.

Russia may be exporting food in the next few years. But this will be as much surplus as were the food exports of 1932, 1933 and 1945. The acute shortage of draft power and machinery will be relieved only slowly. The labor scarcity may not be relievable at all under the present methods of paying the collective peasants for their labor. NAUM JASNY.

Washington Calling

Pressure On Bradley

CONGRESS, in adopting the G. I. Bill of Rights, had the best intentions in the world. The basic idea was to make it up to every young American, insofar as that was possible, for the years he spent fighting for his country.

He was to get a free education if he wanted it. Or if he wanted technical training on the job or on the farm, then he was to get that and be paid while he learned.

But, as Gen. Omar N. Bradley has discovered, even the best intentions are not enough. As director of the Veterans' Administration, Bradley has struggled for two years to keep the benefits within the framework laid down by Congress. He has not always succeeded.

On-the-farm training is one phase of the VA program. The veteran back on the farm has been able to go to school four hours a week, take two hours of "personal counseling" from a vocational agricultural teacher, and draw $65 a month if single and $90 a month if married.

Bradley became convinced that this program was in large part a perversion of the intention of Congress. Veterans who grew up on the farm and learned about all there was to know of farming before they went to war came back to the family farm and went through the motions of on-the-farm training in order to draw their monthly allowance.

TO BRING this down to a fair and reasonable basis, Bradley a year ago issued an order which would grant the allowance in proportion to the number of hours spent in training. The objective was to compensate the veteran on the farm for the actual time he spent in study. It was felt that a full subsistence allowance, such as is granted to students in college, would in reality be a pension for the veteran on the farm.

Shortly after the order was issued, the farm bloc descended on the White House. Representing the most potent political group in the country, farm-bloc leaders demanded that the full allowance for on-the-farm training be restored.

As a result of this pressure, Bradley rescinded the order. He let it be known that he was retreating, provisionally, until Congress decided whether the full allowance was to be paid.

Shortly before adjournment, Congress sent to the White House a bill requiring the Veterans' Administration to pay the full farm allowance. The measure does, however, set up certain training standards which, if they are enforced, will end some of the worst abuses. The farm bloc had won a major victory.

SINCE LAST September, when the Bradley order was rescinded, the number of on-the-farm trainees has expanded three times. As of a month ago, it was 173,000. The expansion has been particularly rapid in the South. This means annual payments up to 200 million dollars a year, which is not small even when measured against the vastness of the VA over-all program. Congress appropriated for veterans for the coming fiscal year, $6,964,457,000.

Farm-bloc Congressmen resent the suggestion that on-the-farm training is an abuse of the GI bill. They reply that, if it is an abuse, there are many other abuses just as bad or worse. A conspicuous one is the flight-training program, which costs approximately $140 million a year. Here is another instance in which the intention of Congress seems to have been perverted.

In offering air training to returning veterans, the idea was to give them a skill which would enable them to enter a new field where they could improve their earning capacity. A secondary objective was to provide a reserve of trained pilots and technicians in the interest of national security.

But the overwhelming majority of veterans taking the training are taking it merely because they think it would be a nice idea to know how to fly. They will make no practical use of it. They fall, for the most part, in the same age group as the former AAF pilots, of whom there is already an excess, and so the contribution to national security is negligible.

General Bradley's successor as director of the VA will have to stand up to great pressures. That is why the search for a successor is likely to be long drawn out.

Haitian Loan

A Communication

YOUR CONTRIBUTOR, James L. Tuck, in The Washington Post of Sunday, July 27 (editorial section), shows a highly praiseworthy sympathy with the efforts of the Haitian people to free themselves from debt and to raise their standard of living. What is not so commendable, however, is his more than careless handling of facts and his uncritical acceptance of propaganda statements. These lapses are especially noticeable in his reference to Export-Import Bank transactions in Haiti.

The bank has two Haitian credits, one to the J. G. White Engineering Corp. (guaranteed and later taken over by the Haitian government) for road construction costs in the amount of $5,500,000, and the other of five million dollars to SHADA (Societe Haitiano-Americaine de Development Agricole) for the development of rubber and other tropical products. The first was granted in July, 1938, and the second in August, 1941.

THE COINCIDENCE that one of the purposes of SHADA was to experiment with rubber culture may have led your contributor to confuse SHADA's rubber plantings with the cryptostegia program carried on by the Rubber Reserve Co. in 1942, 1943 and 1944. He presents the picture of assets of SHADA being wasted and the Haitians victimized in the cryptostegia experiment, but says that the Export-Import Bank still insists on being repaid.

The fact is that, although the SHADA organization supervised the cryptostegia program for Rubber Reserve Co. at that company's request, not a penny of the Export-Import Bank loan or of SHADA's assets was expended on it, but on the contrary SHADA benefited from the payment of a portion of the salaries of its officers by Rubber Reserve while the program was in operation. Rubber Reserve bore the cost, both of the operation of the program itself, including rentals at $5 an acre (not $3), and the later compensation of property owners who claimed damages consequent to the use of their land.

These damage awards were approved at the time by the Haitian government. If there is now dispute as to their adequacy, it is not a dispute to which the Export-Import Bank is a party nor does it have any bearing on the validity of the bank's expectation of payment of the five million dollar SHADA loan. The bank has the best of reasons for expecting full repayment of that loan, including the important reason that the loan is now being repaid out of the profits of SHADA's operations—for, contrary to the implications of your article, SHADA is today a profitable and not a losing enterprise.

SHADA'S ventures were three, rubber plantations, forest development and sisal culture. The first, which consisted of the planting of groves of hevea rubber (not cryptostegia) was a failure; the trees did not thrive in the Haitian soil. The second, forest development, was successful, more than carrying itself. The third, under the direction of Mr. Robert L. Pettigrew of Virginia, manager of a similar privately owned enterprise, has produced excellent results.

Mr. Tuck makes other extravagant and inaccurate statements, such as that by the cryptostegia program "100,000 peasants were dispossessed from 300,000 acres of the most productive land." when in fact the program's planned limit was 100,000 acres, of which 40,000 only were planted, not all of it, by any means, the best agricultural land. The writer gives "6 to 30 cents" as the Haitian plantation laborer's wage for a 10-hour day; but in fact the present legal minimum wage is 3 gourdes, or 60 cents, and this rate is paid by SHADA and other corporations operating in Haiti.

Mr. Tuck writes that although the J. G. White projects were "guaranteed for 20 years," roads built by that corporation are impassable, 17 of 21 bridges are down and three of the five water-supply installations are not functioning. These charges are seriously unfair to this reputable American engineering firm, which was selected to do this work by the Haitian government, the selection having been approved by the Export-Import Bank.

This bank has no evidence, nor has it ever received a complaint, that this contractor's work was not well done; but on the contrary, on the best of evidence believes that it was. This bank knows of no provision in the contract which would make the corporation responsible for neglect of proper maintenance that may have occurred since the works were built and since the company's contract was terminated in May of 1942.

I DON'T think it possible that members of the Haitian delegation, including Minister of Finance Margron, who called on officers of the bank early this year, would support your writer's statement that they were "rebuffed at every turn," because the statement is grossly false. I feel sure that its members would testify that the delegation was received with courtesy and full consideration given to all its requests.

I should like to suggest that when you again assign a man to write of matters in which the Export-Import Bank is concerned or when a contributor submits an article dealing with Export-Import Bank activities you ask this bank for the information it possesses on the subject. The directors of the bank approve heartily your desire to pursue a friendly policy toward our southern neighbors. They also believe that activities of agencies of the United States in other countries should be constantly under public scrutiny, but they do not believe that any good purpose is served by careless reporting or uncritical acceptance of loose and inaccurate stories reflecting on those acties. WM. McC. MARTIN, Jr.
Chairman, Export-Import Bank,
Washington.

Slum Clearance Bill Signed

By the United Press

President Truman, working through the huge pile of bills left on his desk by Congress, yesterday signed a far-reaching measure which clears the way for completion of 100 low-rent and anti-slum housing projects in 75 cities.

The bill—one of almost a score initialed by Mr. Truman during the day—permits the Government to continue these housing projects, even though construction costs exceed the legal limit.

Under the National Housing Act, the Government is forbidden to contribute to any project which would cost more than $4,000 per family unit in small cities or more than $5,000 in cities of more than 500,000.

The new bill would permit the Government to finish already-started projects, if the municipal government agrees to pay the difference between the construction cost and the legal NHA limit.

All in all, Mr. Truman signed 18 bills yesterday—leaving an estimated 180 to go. The White House said President Truman expects to complete his task "by the middle of next week."

Flood Control Bill Signed

Among the bills approved was the $502,123,912 War Department civil functions bill, providing funds for flood control and navigation projects. Another was the second deficiency appropriation bill of 107 million dollars for various Government agencies.

Another will make it possible for the Government to sell an estimated six billion feet of timber on public lands.

The President vetoed two measures. They were:

1. A bill to authorize the coinage of special 50-cent pieces in commemoration of Wisconsin's statehood. Mr. Truman said in a statement that he opposed such coinage because "special money tends to create confusion and increase the possibilities of counterfeiting."

2. A measure to grant income-tax refunds to 100 Oklahoma Indians. Mr. Truman noted that the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the courts had ruled against these specific claims and he saw "no satisfactory reason for overruling them.

Timber From Public Lands

Authority for Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug to sell some $25,000,000 of timber from public lands was contained in a bill which lifted present restrictions on disposal of Government holdings.

The President also signed bills:

Authorizing the Government to include warehouses, maintenance shops and other "revenue-producing facilities" in its gifts of surplus airports to local communities.

Authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to limit the importation of nursery stock into this country for the purpose of pest control.

Authorizing the Government to dispose of housing facilities, built in the wartime farm labor supply program, to non-profit farm associations.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Herter Experiment

THE HOUSE of Representatives has just launched a scientific experiment even more significant than Professor Yerkes' famous inquiries into the psychology of chimpanzees. Under the leadership of Representative Christian Herter, 19 members of the House are to set off for Europe this summer. Their aim will be not to investigate the delightfully scabrous habits of the wicked Europeans, nor even to be richly entertained in the manner befitting their high stations, but to have a look at the grim facts of the world situation. When they return in the fall, we shall have the answer to that often debated question: Can Congressmen learn?

Speaking more seriously, the significance of the so-called House committee of 19 deserves much more emphasis than was given when this body was named by Speaker Joseph W. Martin.

There have been times in the recent past when it seemed that Congressmen were incapable of learning, or at any rate of reasoning from known facts to sensible conclusions, about foreign policy. But there has been an excuse for this seeming obtuseness. The facts have always been hastily transmitted by officials of the State Department and other leaders of the executive branch. And the facts have always seemed unbelievably remote and unreal to many members of the House and Senate, who are more preoccupied with the immediate affairs of their districts.

Now a thoroughly representative group from the House will see the facts for themselves. They are not to junket. They are genuinely to explore the situation in the manner of an academic study group. Whatever the results—and it is entirely possible that some of the results may be very bad indeed—they will tell us a great deal about the character of the legislative body that rules this country.

THE IDEA of the committee originated in the mind of Representative Herter, a serious, able Massachusetts conservative who is approximately a middle of the roader in matters of foreign policy. He had been helped by on-the-spot investigations conducted by himself last year. As a member of the all-powerful Rules Committee, he was also perhaps impressed by the decreasing influence of the House Foreign Affairs Committee—the only body to which the Administration regularly talks about foreign policy in the House.

By long contact with the facts, the Foreign Affairs Committee has been wholly won away from isolationism. But the average House member is not affected by the committee's views. The stupider Representatives even publicly attribute it to the corruption of diplomatic entertaining—those tepid but free drinks, those desiccated sandwiches those effortful conversations among caterers' set pieces—to which the members of the Foreign Affairs Committee are dangerously exposed. Herter offered his resolution establishing the Committee of Nineteen as a corrective of this situation. The idea was that if the facts impressed ordinary members known to have been previously uncorrupted, then their friends on the House floor would be swayed by their judgments.

There ensued the natural jurisdictional tangle with the House Foreign Affairs Committee. (This committee's natural habit of keeping its business to itself is one reason for its loss of influence.) Eventually, however, the wise Representative Eaton of New Jersey agreed to the Herter plan, and the Herter Committee was authorized.

THE MANNER of its appointment was significant. Herter made only two requests of Speaker Martin; first, he asked that none of the House good-time Charlies or professional baby-kissers or incorrigible victims of the terrible oratory habit be named to the committee. He wanted only men who would work and were ready to take a hard trip in order to work. Second, he wanted a committee which would be a cross-section of the House as a whole.

Martin's choices fulfilled Herter's desires. In character, the committee ranges from such a hard-shell isolationist as August H. Andresen of Minnesota to the progressive, far-seeing A. S. Monroney of Oklahoma. Besides being reasonably representative, the committee also meets Herter's other, equally important specifications.

Its trip, moreover, is to contrast strangely with the average junket. It will begin in New York in late August, with a long and serious preliminary briefing from the State Department's new Counselor, Charles E. Bohlen. It will be illuminated along the way by the explanations of a staff of experts headed by Prof. William Yandell Elliott. It will consist of a long seminar aboard ship as the first stage; a visit to the Ruhr by the whole committee, and then visits by subcommittees to the rest of Germany and Austria, England, France, the Low Countries, Italy and Greece as the second stage, and a prolonged shipboard meeting to prepare a report on the way home.

The committee has even agreed that Herter is not to approve vouchers for pleasant side expenditures, and one member who wished to go to Europe by air has already been refused. Embassies everywhere have been alerted to show the Representatives the real face of European life. Seeing the facts and weighing them is to be the sole object. If the House Committee of Nineteen, after all this, succeeds in learning nothing, it will be time to be rather disturbed about what is commonly called the "American way."

Nonpartisan Vote Urged for School Board

An appeal to Arlington Republicans to keep school board elections on a nonpartisan level was issued yesterday by Dr. Oscar R. LeBeau, chairman of the Arlington School Board Nominating Conference.

LeBeau made his statement in view of a Republican poll to be conducted today and tomorrow to determine whether party members wish to sponsor party candidates for the school board.

LeBeau found this action "difficult to reconcile with the constructive policy adopted last year when the party went on record as favoring nonpartisan election for county board members."

When the action was taken, school board positions were not elective, as they are now.

LeBeau said he felt it was equally important to "keep the schools free from unhealthy political pressures" by nonpartisan election of school board members.

The conference will nominate candidates for the school board on August 7 and 9.

Meanwhile, State Senate Candidate Frank L. Ball, jr., stated that while he favored the complete abolition of the poll tax he was opposed to a pending amendment to the State constitution which would abolish the tax and at the same time compel voters to register 120 days before election date.

Ball attacked the amendment as "machine subterfuge." He claimed its real purpose was "to cut down even to a lower number the present ridiculously low qualified electorate."

'Voice of U. S.' Planning Beam To Near East

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The State Department yesterday charted new fields for its foreign information service, even while it instituted drastic economies to meet Congressional budget cuts.

Assistant Secretary William Benton said broadcasts in Arabic and Turkish probably would be started in October. Like the new midnight broadcasts to Russia, however, addition of the new languages would be at the expense of other programs.

Furthermore, Benton said, "drastic reductions" would be made in the staffs of his information service here and abroad. Staffs of the radio service, "Voice of America," will be cut from 1013 to 649 here and in New York, Benton said, and from 1813 to 897 overseas.

Austria Grant Announced

In another move directed toward war-racked and uneasy Europe, the Export-Import Bank announced the grant of $13,005,000 to finance shipments of material and equipment for enterprises in Austria. The credits will be extended to two Austrian banks, but will be guaranteed by the Austrian government.

The bank said the funds would be used to finance "minimum import requirements" of enterprises in the fields of alloy steel, electrical machinery and apparatus, non-ferrous metals, vehicles and machinery, and chemicals.

With regard to the foreign information service, Benton told a news conference that even though funds for the information activities had been cut, he was "encouraged" over prospects for next year. He was especially hopeful that the Mundt bill to give his wartime agency permanent status would be enacted. It already has passed the House.

Staffs Cut Heavily

Because of reduced funds this year, offices have been closed in 10 countries in addition to staff cuts elsewhere.

Benton said he was glad special House and Senate committees would go abroad this fall to investigate the foreign information work of his agency.

"I feel confident," he said, "that they will return convinced of the need for giving to the rest of the world a full and fair picture of America."

From Moscow, the Associated Press reported that the second midnight "Voice of America" broadcast was heard "fairly clearly" in Russia Wednesday night. Although the musical portion was distorted by interference, the dispatch said, the news was clearly audible.

The Gallup Poll

3 Out of 4 Favor $2400 Salary For Public School Teachers

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 31.—An overwhelming majority of American voters believe that public school teachers should be paid at least $2400 a year.

A national cross-section was asked:

"It has been suggested that the lowest yearly wage which could be paid to any teacher in a public grade or high school anywhere in the United States should be $2400 a year—that is, $200 a month. Do you agree or disagree with this idea?"

The reponse:

Agree	74%
Disagree	20
No Opinion	6

California voters in 1946 approved a constitutional amendment fixing at $2400 the minimum salary of all teachers in that State, which is the highest anywhere in the country. The actual California vote 74 per cent for approval—exactly parallels the results of the Intsitute's current national poll. Several other States are planning to establish the same minimum.

When it comes to raising funds to make the minimum possible, 58 per cent of the cross-section say they would be willing to pay higher taxes if necessary to pay teachers in their communities at least $2400 a year. This response from almost six out of ten voters is primarily a measure of the intensity with which people feel about higher wages for teachers, and is not related to any specific tax proposal.

Approval of the $2400 minimum wage proposal is wide-spread throughout all parts of the population. Farmers give it a slightly higher majority than other occupational groups; more women than men approve it.

Those favoring the proposal cite the high-cost-of-living as a principal reason. They also point out that establishing a minimum salary is probably the only way to raise teaching standards and that teachers have been underpaid for years.

Those disagreeing with the suggestion say that $200 a month is too high a figure, that living costs vary in different parts of the country, or that wages should be based on ability, training and experience.

Previous Institute surveys revealed that school teachers gained widespread public sympathy in their drive last winter for wage increases. In February 64 per cent of the voters believed school teachers in their localities were not getting enough pay, compared to only 44 per cent who held that view in September, 1946.

Today teaching is far from a lucrative profession, with the average teacher receiving less than $45 weekly and 200,000 getting less than $25 a week. Educational authorities believe that $200 a month minimum will help reduce the shortage and turnover of teachers and attract more qualified applicants for openings.

Sanitary Board to Open Bids

Bids will be opened today at the office of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission at Hyattsville for construction of the proposed Potomac River interceptor trunk sewer in Montgomery County.

The new sewer, a spokesman for the commission said yesterday, will run from the District of Columbia line to Brookmont, Md., and eventually will eliminate pollution conditions in the Cabin John area.

He said the District is expected to extend its own sewer lines to the Maryland line, where it will join the new section.

The project, according to the commission, will necessitate construction of a bridge 84 feet in length over Little Falls Branch to carry the sewer pipeline over the stream.

The commission also announced it would open bids today for construction of an estimated 2 miles of water and sewer lines in Brookside Forest and Highland View, to served 45 proposed GI homes, and for water and sewer construction for 25 proposed houses in the Nimitz and Newport Mill rd. areas in Kensington.

Bids on these projects will be received: water line to Chillcoate, la., Beltsville; water and sewer to Clark st. in Cedar Valley; sewer line to serve a five-apartment building at Flower ave. near Domer st., Takoma Park; water and sewer lines to Russell ave. Avondale Grove, Chillum, and water to Spring st., Forestville.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1947

Moppets' Happy Haven

AS ANY youngster will tell you, there's nothing like a "Jungle Jim" for fun and frolic. The little patients convalescing at Children's Country Home delight in this modern playground contraption which usually scares the wits out of grown-ups. It's quite safe, however, and serves a dual purpose: It builds strong bodies and self-confidence. Here the big, brave 4-year-old males, James and Eugene, climb to the top. But their more timid playmates, Patsy and Kathleen, settle for a traditional tricycle

THIS young fellow had a bit of trouble with his foot and ended up wearing a miniature plaster cast. While he is recuperating at the home, he gets tender care from Nurse Grace Taylor. The home, operated by funds from the Community Chest, offers a haven for sick and undernourished children from infancy to six years of age

Children's Country Home Is 59 Years Old

Famed Institution Has Anniversary

By Peggy Preston

THIS summer one of Washington's most worthwhile charity institutions—Children's Country Home—marks its fifty-ninth anniversary. And many a local youngster, with good cause, is wishing it a "Happy Birthday!"

In fact, the town has quite a quota of little citizens who can continue celebrating their own birthdays because of treatment and care received at the home. Over the years hundreds of sick and undernourished babies from impoverished families have found a haven there. When the children leave, rosy and healthy, their chances for growing to adulthood are upped about 50 per cent.

Established in 1888 as a summer camp for mothers and children who had no other means of getting a vacation, Children's Country Home was soon turned into a year-round institution for convalescent youngsters only.

In 1929 the present building was erected and every provision made to care for approximately 40 children from infancy to the age of 6. Only those with non-communicable diseases are accepted at the home, but ailments range from broken bones to malnutrition. A quart of milk a day for each child, nutritious food, expert medical care, pretty new clothes, tender attention from staff members and the pleasing facilities of the home add up to a quick recovery in almost every instance.

Some From Hospitals

CHILDREN come to the home from hospitals where beds are needed for more seriously ill patients. Or they may come directly from homes where they cannot be cared for. In every case, they are referred to the home by social service departments of District hospitals or the District Board of Public Welfare.

The home is maintained through Community Chest funds, plus an amount from the Thrift Shop. But this year, due to a smaller allotment and increased maintenance costs, officials are having to slash their budget to the bone.

They are hoping that more Washingtonians will recall an old policy at the home, that of accepting "paying guests" at an extremely nominal fee. By taking advantage of this plan, many a family problem would be eased.

For instance, a mother who works has a child recuperating from a serious illness. The child needs only expert care and nursing, yet the mother must return to her job in order to keep the bills from piling up. For a comparatively small sum she may leave her child at the home with the knowledge that he will receive the best possible attention.

Visitors Encouraged

TO ACQUAINT Washingtonians with the physical aspects of the home, officials encourage visitors. For here is truly a case of "seeing is believing."

Children's Country Home looks exactly the way a home in the country for children should. Situated in a wooded section of the city, it is a beautiful, white brick, Normandy-type structure. It rambles over a grassy plot like a story-book house and is surrounded by white stretches of lawn where the children play all year 'round.

The building contains 25 rooms, each one more immaculate than the other, yet with none of the dreary atmosphere of an "institution." The walls are painted in cheerful pastel shades and the playroom and dining hall equipped with miniature furniture, just big enough to accommodate the tiny guests.

The nurseries, with shining white cribs, are spotless. They are lighted by ultra-violet lamps, a precaution against any wayward germ foolhardy enough to enter this castle of cleanliness. Gleaming little tubs are in the tiled bathrooms and other foot-high gadgets there look more like toys than the real working McCoys that they are.

To Reopen Classes

MISS ELIZABETH VAN WAGNER, a graduate nurse, is superintendent of the home. Her staff consists of several nurses, a kindergarten teacher who supervises the playground, housekeeper and cook.

In September Miss Van Wagner will reopen the classes in a nursery aides training which were discontinued during the war. Under this program, a young woman may take a year's training in child nursing and receive a diploma which qualifies her as a dependable children's nurse.

Dr. William A. Howard is chief-of-staff for the home and four other prominent pediatricians lend their services regularly. Two resident physicians reside at the home and attend to the children's immediate medical needs.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

"CAN'T a lady have any privacy around here?" But Baby Elaine obligingly poses, anyhow, during her daily "weighing-in" period. Plenty of milk, nutritious food and expert medical care soon bring the roses back to the cheeks of these toddlers

'Waiting List' Club Set Plans Spread of Own

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IT'S ALMOST easier to squeeze a camel through a needle's eye than to become a member of the Chevy Chase Country Club. The waiting list is filled for eight years. Earnest parents have almost come to the pass of putting up their kids at birth, as is often done for Groton School, the Union Club in New York, the Somerset in Boston.

So two groups of athletically minded Washington residents are seriouly playing 'round with the idea of a new, less pretentious club conveniently smack in Georgetown. One plan is to have a pair of indoor tennis courts, a pool which would open out in summer, a sort of snack bar. Pushing this project is Asa Phillips, who once worked in the State Department but now lawyers in Boston, plus the State Department's Mary Morrison and Bob Breckinridge.

The second plan is a trifle more elaborate, involving not only sports appurtenances, but a casino effect with a few bedrooms and full meals. Harold Payson is one of the prime movers, as is Dr. Walter Wells, who would like a colonial inn-type building where he could get a good dinner without trekking downtown.

So far the real estate problem has been the main stumbling block. It's hard to obtain sufficient acreage without going too far out of town. Of course, both groups have thought of the late Mrs. McLean's house. Meanwhile, it's rumored, within the past few weeks an assortment of builders have snapped up much of the unencumbered land along Wisconsin ave.

Advertising Blurb

AFTER TESTIFYING in the Brewster investigation, aviation expert Grover Loening pulled out for California. Sober Grover was delighted with the answers he had prepared in anticipation of senatorial questions. His especial pride was the statement that on his own he knew enough Hollywood girls to provide the requisite amount of relaxation any busy executive needed. This remark, he hopes, will pique sufficient feminine interest to "agreeably extend my activities!"

In this month's Reader's Digest there's an absorbing story by G. M. Dimitrov called "The American Minister Stood by His Guns." The Minister is Maynard Barnes, for the past few years our representative in Bulgaria. G. M. Dimitrov, who mustn't be Confused with Georgi Dimitrov, today's Soviet-trained boss of Bulgaria, is one of Washington's most prominent exiles.

G. M. Dimitrov, who is secretary general of the Bulgarian Peasant Party, escaped from Communist imprisonment in Sofia, sought refuge in Mr. Barnes' villa. Barnes, plus six machinegun-armed American GIs, stood off a detachment of Communist militia, later a determined troop of Russian soldiers, in saving Dimitrov's life.

Months later the Peasant leader and his wife were brought to the United States. Now they're settled in a small Connecticut ave. apartment. Like most political exiles, they make ends meet by writing and lecturing. Their personal tragedy is that so far they have been unable to get their children out of Bulgaria. Dimitrov is a good looking spellbinder who speaks a variety of languages. His sweet wife has learned English in less than a year.

The real story is not so much Dimitrov as Mme. Dimitrov. Few who meet her at dinners or cocktail parties realize that

Girl Has Met Man Who She Thinks Would Be Ideal Husband for Her; But in a Few Weeks His Manner Changed From Love to Insolence

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I met Don about a month ago, when he moved into the apartment house where I live with my family. I've had several boy friends with whom I went out occasionally, but before long I would lose interest,—I don't know why.

However, I always figured that some day maybe I'd meet "the right man" and then I'd be okay. Well, I met him when I met Don. Don is right for me. For the first time, I think, I really want to get married.

Now for the problem: I come from a very old fashioned family,—not coldly disapproving of the ways of the modern younger set, but quiet and reserved. To put it plainly, not very "hep." I've always been that way: a little shy and very quiet.

Tells Coarse Jokes; Laughs at Her Shock

WHEN I first started dating Don he told me he loved me. He said I was the type of girl he' always wanted. Sweet, he called me But in the last 10 days his attitude has changed. He tells me jokes so coarse that actually I feel ill. He knows it and laughs at me.

The other day we saw the movie "Homestretch." A girl in the picture caught his fancy,—a very adorable girl, I thought too. Since then he has been comparing her to me. He says he wishes he had a girl like that,—small and all full of mischief as she. I'm tall and he thinks I haven't much personality because I can't make him laugh all the time.

I try, but I just can't. If I try to be funny, it sounds just plain loud and awkward coming from me. I've had no such trouble before, but now I'm beginning to see how stupid I must seem to a few of my friends,—all of whom are of the best, I'm proud to say, and can hold their own with anyone.

Still I really think if Don understood about me, he wouldn't feel the way he does. But I can't make him understand, so will you please tell me what to do,—and soon. V. A.

Unsavory Lout; Feels Inferior

Dear V. A.: This is a case of a gentle lady abasing herself to a bounder, heaven knows why. Maybe he has sex magnetism; otherwise Don is an unsavory lout with a lewd sadistic mind which is, at best, of moron caliber.

You are in very bad company with Don. In disparaging your looks, deriding your personality as dull, singing the praises of allegedly more charming girls, affronting your feelings with dirty stories and laughing at your shock, etc., he is deliberately grinding his heel in your face.

He is treating you shamefully as a cruel form of sport, because it makes him feel fine—builds up his ego in a perverse way—to verbally kick a lady around and watch her take it in meek, confused misery, still struggling to please him.

Weighed one against the other in the scales of human decency, Don isn't fit to latch your shoe, as he knows; yet here you are licking his boots! That's the main reason why he thinks you're stupid. The veriest trollop with any spirit wouldn't tolerate from him the insolence that you've endured.

Girl Is Foolish To Run After Him

DON HAS a perfectly terrible inferiority complex in relation to "nice people," and you're amongst those whom he unconsciously rates as his betters. Thus, mean little fellow that he is, he has to figuratively trample you—or your sort—in the dirt if possible, to achieve the transient consolation of feeling ersatz-superior in mutual dealings.

Of course he isn't aware of this. He hasn't the sense, sensitivity or honesty to figure it out. He is attracted, uneasily, to "class" in the way of girl companions now and then, I suppose—but every move he makes in that direction is keyed to fear of being snubbed, rejected, hurt; so that involuntarily he starts being vicious as a defense mechanism.

At least that's how I decode his loutish assault on your self esteem, which signifies nothing to your discredit actually, except that you are an awful fool to put up with, much less run after, him. M. H.

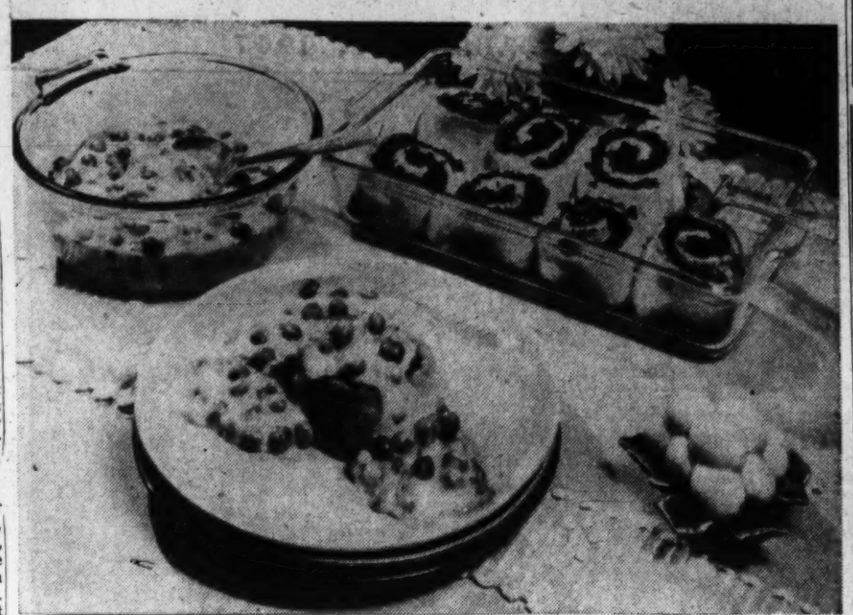
Best Vitality Formula Is Restful Slumber

Tales are told in England of Lady Anne, an 84-year-old dowager whose vitality and vigor never seemed to fail. It was found that her secret lay in spending a whole day of each week in bed. For 24 hours straight she stayed in bed in a quiet, dark room. Although a fine idea, few Americans can do the same. They can, however, reap the benefits of regular and sufficient sleep each night on a good modern mattress and bedspring which are far more comfortable than the finest available in Lady Anne's day.

It Isn't Always Bologna

Cold Cuts Good in Hot Dishes, Too



ATEMPTING main dish for a midsummer meal is this combination of pinwheels and peas. It's inexpensive, too, for the meat is of the canned luncheon vaiety and it's "stretched" by the biscuit dough and canned peas

By Lucia Brown

IF YOU'VE thought of bologna, salami, and such as strictly sandwich material, cast your mental pictures aside and listen to the latest from the school of spiced meat cookery.

An appetizing variety of hot casseroles, creamed dishes, and stews can be made with cold cuts and canned luncheon meats. These products of the packer's art combine well with vegetables, macaroni, and sauces in tasty, substantial main dishes. They're easy on the pocketbook, too—an appealing point with fresh meat prices soaring like Halley's comet.

One example is a casserole made of bologna, liver sausage, or thuringer, combined with corn. Make it in the cool of the morning, when you're feeling pert and fresh, and take a load off dinnertime chores. Keep the prepared dish in the refrigerator until dinner, then top with buttered crumbs and place in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit). Left-over stewed corn can be used in making this casserole, or a No. 2 can of cream-style corn.

Sausage and Corn Casserole

1 pound liver sausage, thuringer, or bologna.
1 cup medium white sauce.
1 cup grated cheese
2 tablespoons minced onion.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
½ teaspoon each garlic salt and celery salt.
2½ cups cooked corn.
1½ cups cooked noodles.

Melt cheese in hot white sauce. Add corn, onions, and seasonings. Cut several slices ¼-inch thick from the sausage and save. Cube remainder of sausage. In a greased casserole, arrange alternate layers of noodles, cubed sausage, and corn mixture. Bake in moderate oven 15 minutes, then top with sausage slices and bake 10 minutes longer.

Pinwheels With Creamed Peas

Especially good for a light summer meal are pinwheels made of canned luncheon meat and biscuit dough, covered with creamed peas.

Make the meat filling by combining 1½ cups of canned luncheon meat (chopped) with 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 2 teaspoons prepared mustard.

A recipe for the biscuit dough follows:

1 cup flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons shortening.
1/3 cup milk.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Cut in shortening, then add milk slowly, mixing in with fork. Turn on lightly floured board and knead gently for half minute. Roll into a rectangle 8½ by 11 inches. Spread with meat mixture and roll up like jelly roll. Cut into eight slices and place in well-greased pan. Bake in moderate oven (400°F) for about 25 minutes.

Serve with creamed peas, using 1½ cups cooked peas and 2 cups white sauce.

Fiesta Bologna and Cabbage

½ pound bologna.
4 cups shredded cabbage.
1 tablespoon lard.
2 eggs.
¼ cup vinegar.
2 teaspoons sugar.

Boil cabbage in salted water 7 minutes. Drain. Cut bologna in small cubes. Brown in lard. Beat eggs, add vinegar and sugar, and pour over cooked cabbage. Heat and serve at once.

Market Memo

By Lucia Brown

TOP bargains on the local market are peaches, tomatoes, and snapbeans. Most of them grown nearby . . . though some tomatoes still arrive from down South . . . and peaches from as far north as New Jersey. Now's the time to buy these three for canning or preserving.

Have you noticed that more bananas are on sale? Imports are constantly increasing. Loads of cantaloupes around, too. Extra good are Salmon Meat cantaloupes from California . . . also higher in price. White seedless grapes featured by many stores . . . as well as pears and watermelon.

Good quality white and yellow corn coming in now . . . and the price has fallen a bit. Fine potatoes of the "cobbler" type are plentiful. Other root vegetables also smart buys . . . carrots, beets, radishes, turnips, and green and dry onions.

Meat prices are discouraging as ever. However, one store in this area is featuring fine sirloin and porterhouse steaks at 69 cents a pound. It's taking a loss on steaks . . . but doing a land-office business.

Straight from the Alps: The first Swiss cheese imported since the war . . . has arrived at a local store. The supply is small but the flavor's superb!

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a coffee table that I would like to do over. The wood is much darker than my other furniture, and I am wondering if there's any way of bleaching it. K. B. M.

All solid woods can be bleached and some veneers which are thick enough can be bleached successfully. Here's the way to do it at home: First remove all the old finish with paint remover and sand paper. Then either use a commercial bleach or a solution of one ounce of oxalic acid crystals to one pint hot water. The homemade bleach is not quite as powerful as the commercial bleaches, but is satisfactory unless you want to change dark woods to a very light tone. Since these bleaches are quite strong, be sure to wear rubber gloves while using them. Protect the clothing, too, and cover the floor with a thick layer of newspapers. Apply the bleach with a brush or rubber sponge. The oxalic acid solution usually has to remain on overnight, after which it must be washed off with borax dissolved in one quart of warm water. A second coat of bleach may be applied before washing if a lighter color is desired. In using a commercial bleach, follow the directions that come with it. After bleaching and drying the wood, sand it smooth, as the bleaching process raises the grain somewhat. Then finish with shellac or wax.

What sort of houseplants will thrive in a window where there is no sunshine? H. A. T.

A number of plants grow well without direct sunlight. Here are a few:

English Ivy, which grows well in both water and earth. The earth used should be of acid content. Besides the plain variety, there are variegated and dwarf types of ivy.

The Rex Begonia, which is one of the numerous varieties of begonia. It has spotted hairy leaves, which do not like to be wet, so the plant must be watered from the bottom. It does not thrive in too dry an atomosphere.

Philodendron, a very popular hardy vine which adapts itself to almost any condition. It's leaves are dark green and heart-shaped, and it grows in either soil or water.

Aspidastra, a coarse-leaved plant grown for its foliage. One variety has green and cream striped leaves which are quite ornamental. This plant endures considerable heat and dryness, but the center crown should not be wet.

I have a light blue jersey dress with black stripes. After several successful launderings, I soaked it too long and there are now imprints of the stripes all over it. Is there any way to remove them? Also, how can I remove tar from a white cotton dress. The dress has been washed since it was stained and the tar has settled in the fabric. M. P. S.

I'm afraid there's not much you can do about the dye stains on your dress. Any treatment you use will undoubtedly affect the dye in the dark stripes, too. The dye might even run more than it has already. Stripping all the color from the material with a commercial bleach, then dying it a solid color would reclaim the dress for you, however. Be sure the bleach you use is recommended for use on this type of cloth.

Tar is difficult to remove, especially if the stain has been on the material for some time. Rub lard into the spot and set it aside to soften. Then wash thoroughly with soap and water. Repeat the treatment several times.

Our Greenhouses are overflowing with these beauties—so we repeat this offer!

she underwent Communist torture three times and was so badly beaten up that her mother fainted when her unconscious daughter was returned home. Among the cruelties Mme. Dimitrov weathered was having red hot needles pushed under her nails—until they burst off.

While Maynard Barnes saved her husband's life, Winston Churchill was responsible for saving Mme. Dimitrov. Hearing of her arrest, the Prime Minister wired his insistence upon her release. The Bulgarian Communists tried to stall but Churchill, plus his minister in Sofia, refused to be stood up. Within an hour or so Mme. Dimitrov, though scarcely alive, was out of prison.

Emily Post Is 'Best Seller' Among English-Reading Japs

By Genevieve Reynolds

"ANY books today, lady?"

If you happen to have biographies of famous American women or a few editions of Emily Post, please drop them in the basket which Mrs. Hazel Moore is carrying around in her campaign to educate the Japanese gentler sex.

It all started a year ago, when Mrs. Moore sent a packet of magazines and other publications of American women's clubs to the sub-section, Civil Information and Education Department of the general headquarters, Supreme Commander, Allied Forces, Tokyo.

In no time at all, came word from Wac Lieut. Ethel Weed, chief of women's civil information:

"Please send more—all you can get. As things are now it's a mad scramble to keep up with demand . . . we are trying to help women work out constructive club programs to give them standards to develop a sense of responsibility toward society that has been lacking. I bless you and so do the Japanese women for all you have sent and all your efforts."

Demand Grew

FROM that first small packet grew a demand for more and more information about American women's activities. The General Federation of Women's Clubs sent a sizable library of books and other materials.

Other individuals and organizations also began to contribute material, and so heavy was the volume that Mrs. Moore lost count because many, as she had directed, were sent directly to Tokyo.

An analysis of the replies and expressions of appreciation handled by Mrs. Moore indicate that books on parliamentary law, biographies and editions on etiquette are the most highly prized.

A copy of a book on etiquette is one of the most popular in the lot. Dog eared and ragged from constant perusal, the Japanese women are asking for more on modern manners, according to a letter from Lieutenant Weed.

Subsequent letters from Lieutenant Weed to Mrs. Moore bring further requests for additional books and pamphlets.

Stresses Woman's Angle

EVERYTHING sent goes first to interested individuals, eventually returning to the War Department's civilian library in Tokyo where it is made available to anyone in the area. While the War Department has supplied the library with general materials, it has not been able to do the specific "woman's angle" job which Mrs. Moore has undertaken.

In town this month, Mrs. Moore is making her headquarters at the Washington Club, 1701 K st. nw. She's persuaded an organization to mail all books and pamphlets she can garner during August. So search your shelves and pass the findings on to the hard working book gatherer. It's all in the interest of democracy.

Frequent Rest Periods Are Doctor's Order

By Ida Jean Kain

Do put off until tomorrow what cannot be done today. That's the answer to the desperate letters from young mothers who write that they are so weary at the end of the day that life seems hardly worth the while.

I took this problem to a kindly and wonderful doctor and asked him what he could suggest. Here's his prescription, the same as he gives his patients who are overworked and weary. Take 10 minutes out of every hour for rest. After breakfast, when the head of the house is off to earn the living, and the children have had breakfast, lie down for 10 minutes.

Now wait . . . don't say you can't. Those are doctor's orders! But refuse to let your mind dwell uneasily on the dishes. Just let go, with your mind and your muscles and luxuriate in 10 minutes of complete and unworried rest. You can woo peace of mind by dwelling on the comforting thought that 10 minutes out of each hour will make you equal to the tasks ahead, and restore your strength.

Don't Increase Pace

Then resume the work, but don't try to make up for lost time! That would ruin everything by building up tension. Then toward the end of the next hour, take 10 minutes rest. You'll be surprised to find at the end of the day that you have accomplished practically as much as if you had kept doggedly at it. And oh, the blessed relief of not being worn to a frazzle!

How can such a simple plan accomplish miracles? The complete relaxation helps to break the strain and the tension that otherwise tends to mount as the hours go by. It's tension that piles up fatigue. Also, by resting before you become tired, it doesn't take nearly as much rest to revitalize the body as it does when you have dipped into reserve energy.

Believes in Exercise

Our doctor is a great believer in exercise for new mothers. In fact, he subscribes heartily to the revolutionary theory that a new mother should be up and about 12 hours after the baby arrives! The 12 hours is for normal cases. If the mother has had a difficult time, she should rest for 18 hours before getting up and about. This new plan is based on the theory that women are stronger at the end of the confinement period for using their muscles than they are by staying in bed the whole time.

Our doctor has his patients start simple corrective exercises the third day after the baby arrives, to help restore tone and strength to the stretched abdominal muscles. These easy exercises, plus the 10 minutes rest out of each working hour on returning home are the best prescription I've heard in a long, long time.

Ringside Table — With Mary Harris

CONFUSION AND BLUSHES assailed Pat Whitney, pretty Chicagoan who sings with Stephen Kisley's band at the Carlton's Congo Room, when she was called to the table of an elderly and important lady. "My dear, you should pull your dress up at the neck," said the august dame. "I thought you ought to know." Poor Pat picked at her decolletage the rest of the evening, feared that with every note she was likely to burst forth in a state of what our British friends call "cleavage." . . . The Congo's Maestro Kisley is now skimming around town in a blindingly beautiful new red Pontiac.

Athletics have the call in the Lotus' new revue. The Paxton Brothers, circus hand balancers, head the show. Nils and Nadine do smooth but strenuous adagio while June Harvey contributes fast tapping. Songs by Buddy Shaner and Al Sakol's music.

THE "PICCOLO PETE GIRL," chubby and jovial Nora Williams, is raising the roof at Merry-Land. She's doing English music hall songs, hit parade numbers—anything the customers' little hearts desire. New at Merry-Land, too, is Jack Norman, crack singing guitarist and showman . . . The Roman Singers, due at Griffith Stadium on Sunday, will dine and lunch at Merry-Land.

INNOVATIONS IN DUBONNET. Beginning tomorrow the Dubonnet Room or the Sheraton Hotel will be the scene of widened activities. Breakfast, luncheon and dinner will be served in this suave spot. James A. Patterson, the Sheraton's new manager, has revamped the cuisine, introducing novelty dishes new to Washington, also some very practical and easy prices. George Berg and his band will continue to play for cocktail and dinner dancing.

JOE DOSH, radio star, has made a flock of new recordings with accordionist Dick Bailey and bassist Worth Lane, both members of Sammy Ferro's Tidesmen playing in the Neptune Room. The new platters include two lovely tunes from "Brigadoon"—"Almost Like Being in Love" and "There But for You."

Carmen Miranda, Martha Raye, Ted Lewis and Eleanor Powell are all on the impressive 1947-48 agenda of Sam Shanker's Club Cairo which is due for a triple-gala fall opening in September.

DELICACY DEPARTMENT. Seedless grapes preserved in creme de menthe are used to garnish some of the fine cold dishes at Ciro's. They were prepared personally by Major Domo Armando . . . Preserved lychee nuts and golden limes are exotic dessert items at Ruby Foo's . . . A cheering dessert is "California Romance" at the Water Gate Inn. It's made of orange ice and gin! . . . Smoked Pinebridge turkey with asparagus tips is one of the happy midsummer inspirations of the chef at the Muses . . . One of the prides of the Old New Orleans menu is their macedoine of fruit with kirsh. . . .

M'AMSELLE. Gazelle - eyed Toni who plays accordion and piano at Michel's will receive a master's degree in music from Catholic University just as soon as she gives an organ recital. Right now she has so little time to practice organ, but she's going to do that recital,—yes sir . . . Dona Mason of the King Cole Room is singing a Mexican ballad about hot weather, "Vereda Tropicale." . . . Nini Baker pianist-arranger with Sammy Seymour's Skyliners on the Starlight Roof, is cool as a cucumber (and a hundred times prettier!) in chartreuse chiffon draped Grecian style.

Glen Echo's Jack Corry is a human perpetual motion machine. After leading his big band all evening in the Echo ballroom, he takes off for the Culinary Arts Club with small group, plays for the rest of the night.

MEMORY LANE STUFF. Jimmy Nichols, bandleader in the Rainbow Room, gets a touch of nostalgia every time he looks at a big airplane. He worked on Douglas plane production during the war, became a directional gyro expert. . . . remember Jimmy Hall, the likeable chap who used to manage Olmstead's years ago? He became a captain of Marines, is now running the Coca Cola agency in Tangiers.

New Defense Secretary Post Puts Poser: How Many Guns?

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

If the Secretary of the Navy is entitled to a 19-gun salute (and he is), how many guns will the new, higher ranking Secretary of Defense be entitled to?

This obviously is a pressing naval problem (j.g.), and some of the best minds in Washington are hard at work on it.

You see, the President is entitled to a 21-gun salute, both when he comes to the ship and when he leaves. The same goes for a foreign President, a member of a royal family or a former President.

A Vice President, an ambassador or a cabinet officer other than Secretary of the Navy gets a 19-gun salute upon leaving the ship.

Dilemma in All Directions

The Navy, which knows which side its anchors are buttered on, thinks the Secretary of the Navy is something pretty special. It gives him the 19-gun works coming and going.

Obviously, the Secretary of Defense should get everything the Secretary of the Navy gets—and a little more, too. Yet he can't be allowed as much attention as the President.

Of course, the Secretary of the Navy could be reduced. But that would mean the Navy would make more racket over the Secretary of, say, the Interior than over its own boss.

What to do?

You're All Wet

Hush your mouth, clever little you. Don't you know the Navy never gives even-numbered salutes? Nobody knows why. But it may be because even numbers once meant the captain had died en route.

Fortunately, at least two other customs won't be disturbed. Leland P. Lovette, in his book "Naval Customs," points out that all big shots are entitled to four ruffles (on drums, not dresses).

The Secretary of Defense also will get eight side boys. Years ago the side boys would lift visiting dignitaries aboard during rough weather. Special gangplanks have ended all that, but the men still are there.

The British go even further. As the visiting fireman walks briskly aboard, they still yell, as they did during storms 300 years ago:

No Rate Cut Is Possible Vepco Holds

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—An "absolutely amazing" demand of Virginia residents for electric power has launched the Virginia Electric & Power Co., into a four-year construction program so costly that no rate reductions should be granted now, Vepco spokesmen said as rate talks were resumed with the State Corporation Commission today.

Company representatives conferred again with the SCC on the question of lowering Vepco's rates in the 68-county Virginia system, as a special utility committee of the Virginia League of Municipalities prepared to discuss probable league action in the rate proceedings at a meeting here this afternoon.

J. G. Holtzclaw, president of Vepco, told the commission that 90 million dollars will have to be spent by the end of 1951 to meet unprecedented demands for power. Of this sum, less than a third will be productive of direct new revenue to the company; the balance simply is being plowed into expansion of generating and distributing facilities, he said.

Power consumption in Vepco's territory has soared to a point where a public plea for conservation has been considered, generating equipment operates at a lower efficiency in hot weather than in cold, and the company's production facilities are "loaded to the limit," the company president declared.

Holtzclaw and T. Justin Moore, general counsel, offered memoranda to show that Vepco faces a period of expansion which will demand the expenditure of 90 million dollars in the next four years. Of this sum, Holtzclaw said 62 million dollars is nonrevenue-producing," that is, it will merely provide beter and more extensive service to existing consumers.

At a closed session yesterday afternoon, Holtzclaw told members of the commission that the demand for electric power has overloaded the company's generating facilities to a point where a public plea for conservation has been considered.

Air Forces Have Gasoline For 90 Days

By The Associated Press

The Air Forces disclosed yesterday that it has only about 90 days supply of aviation gasoline and oil. The reason for the shortage was attributed by AAF officers to heavy commercial demands.

This came out when AAF representatives were asked about reported severe shortages at air bases throughout the country and how the AAF, under the circumstances, will be able to stage its elaborate celebration today in honor of the AAF's fortieth anniversary.

It was explained that for some time the Air Forces has been curtailing its operations to conserve fuel, and its mission in observance of Air Force Day, while spectacular, is routine in nature.

The AAF said it has had bids on the markets for aviation gasoline since January 1 and had so few offers it has taken them all.

An AAF representative said AAF supplies of 100 octane gasoline now are about 32 per cent of normal and 91 and 98 octane gas used by small aircraft about the same percentage. Jet fuel, a special mixture, also is short.

The Air Forces said its training program and its research and development program are being retarded due to the shortage. Cross-country flying for training has been eliminated.

When a plane does land at a base it is given only enough gasoline to get back home "and that isn't safe," remarked one pilot.

The increase in commercial flying and the export of gasoline were seen by AAF among the reasons why more gasoline has not been sold to the Government. AAF officials said they feel that a percentage of supply should be reserved for the military forces.

Ex-Newsman Wounds Wife, Kills Self, Girl, 2

Reno, Nev., July 31 (AP).—Harvey Graham, 40 former New York and Philadelphia newspaperman, shot and killed his 2-year-old daughter at his dude ranch early today, wounded his wife and then committed suicide, Sheriff Ray Root reported.

Sheriff Root's report blamed the tragedy on "marital and financial" troubles.

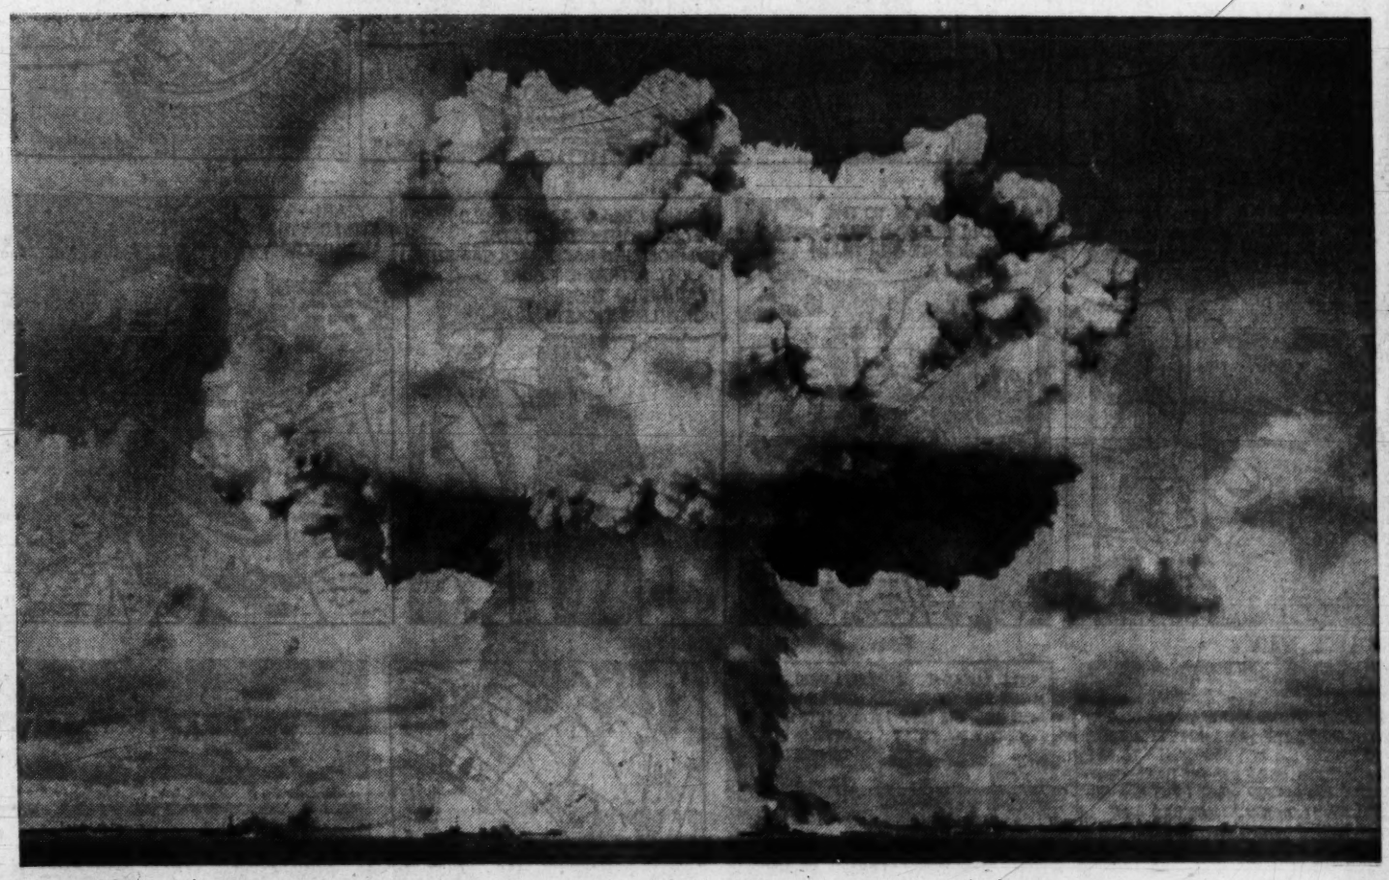
THE WASHINGTON POST BRINGS YOU A 12-PAGE ATOMIC ENERGY SECTION

WITH STATEMENTS BY EINSTEIN, LILIENTHAL, AND 24 OTHER AUTHORITIES



What do YOU advise doing about Atomic Energy?

"WHO, ME?" you say. "What would I advise?"

Yes, you. You and all the rest of us. What our government does is determined, in the last analysis, by what the majority of us want done. About taxes, tariffs, world co-operation, peace and war—and now, atomic energy.

Most of us already have ideas on most of the matters on which our government makes decisions. Now comes something brand new—atomic energy—on which most of us don't have enough information to build our ideas. Yet it's the most important subject on which we will ever have to make a decision.

To aid the citizens of the Nation's Capital to form their opinions about atomic energy on the solid foundation of factual information, The Washington Post will publish a special section on atomic energy. This section will contain 12 full-size newspaper pages of articles and illustrations. The articles will take up every phase of this important question for you: Scientific, political, international, military, historic, legal, medical. The articles are written with you in mind—you'll find them as readable as they are informative and valuable. And there's a special glossary of scientific terms, which you'll want to save. But, then, you'll want to save this whole section, to refer to over and over.

The special atomic energy section will appear as part of the Sunday edition of The Washington Post August 3. A sell-out is expected. Order your copy now.

WHAT YOU WILL FIND IN THIS SPECIAL SUNDAY WASHINGTON POST ATOMIC ENERGY SECTION

EINSTEIN . . answers four questions put to him by The Washington Post

WM. HIGINBOTHAM . . executive director, Federation of American Scientists, gives a bibliography of atomic literature

CALVIN B. HOOVER . . economic adviser to General Clay, writes on Russian attitude toward world control

EDWARD U. CONDON . . director, Bureau of Standards, tells of atomic power plants

LIEUT. COL. DAVID PARKER . . authority on atomic weapons, discusses radio-active poison dust and contamination of water

PAUL C. AEBERSOLD . . head of Oak Ridge isotope laboratory, deals with peaceful uses of atomic energy

WM. WAYMACK . . former Des Moines editor, now atomic energy commission member, discusses agricultural research phase

PLUS articles by former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts, chemist T. R. Hogness, N. J. Bell Telephone Co. president Chester A. Barnard, radio-biologist Dr. Austin Brues, naval strategist Bernard Brodie, Dutch physicist Dr. Samuel Goudsmit, Atomic Energy Commission chairman David E. Lilienthal, patent attorney Wm. H. Davis, Senator Brian McMahon, British physicist H. L. Oliphant, FRS, former Senate committee counsel James R. Newman, U.N. atomic energy commission's U. S. deputy Frederick C. Emily Post Is 'Best Seller' Among English-Reading Japs

By Genevieve Reynolds

"ANY books today, lady?"

If you happen to have biographies of famous American women or a few editions of Emily Post, please drop them in the basket which Mrs. Hazel Moore is carrying around in her campaign to educate the Japanese gentler sex.

It all started a year ago, when Mrs. Moore sent a packet of magazines and other publications of American women's clubs to the sub-section, Civil Information and Education Department of the general headquarters, Supreme Commander, Allied Forces, Tokyo.

In no time at all, came word from Wac Lieut. Ethel Weed, chief of women's civil information:

"Please send more—all you can get. As things are now it's a mad scramble to keep up with demand . . . we are trying to help women work out constructive club programs to give them standards to develop a sense of responsibility toward society that has been lacking. I bless you and so do the Japanese women for all you have sent and all your efforts."

Demand Grew

FROM that first small packet grew a demand for more and more information about American women's activities. The General Federation of Women's Clubs sent a sizable library of books and other materials.

Other individuals and organizations also began to contribute material, and so heavy was the volume that Mrs. Moore lost count because many, as she had directed, were sent directly to Tokyo.

An analysis of the replies and expressions of appreciation handled by Mrs. Moore indicate that books on parliamentary law, biographies and editions on etiquette are the most highly prized.

A copy of a book on etiquette is one of the most popular in the lot. Dog eared and ragged from constant perusal, the Japanese women are asking for more on modern manners, according to a letter from Lieutenant Weed.

Subsequent letters from Lieutenant Weed to Mrs. Moore bring further requests for additional books and pamphlets.

Stresses Woman's Angle

EVERYTHING sent goes first to interested individuals, eventually returning to the War Department's civilian library in Tokyo where it is made available to anyone in the area. While the War Department has supplied the library with general materials, it has not been able to do the specific "woman's angle" job which Mrs. Moore has undertaken.

In town this month, Mrs. Moore is making her headquarters at the Washington Club, 1701 K st. nw. She's persuaded an organization to mail all books and pamphlets she can garner during August. So search your shelves and pass the findings on to the hard working book gatherer. It's all in the interest of democracy.

Frequent Rest Periods Are Doctor's Order

By Ida Jean Kain

Do put off until tomorrow what cannot be done today. That's the answer to the desperate letters from young mothers who write that they are so weary at the end of the day that life seems hardly worth the while.

I took this problem to a kindly and wonderful doctor and asked him what he could suggest. Here's his prescription, the same as he gives his patients who are overworked and weary. Take 10 minutes out of every hour for rest. After breakfast, when the head of the house is off to earn the living, and the children have had breakfast, lie down for 10 minutes.

—Now wait . . . don't say you can't. Those are doctor's orders! But refuse to let your mind dwell uneasily on the dishes. Just let go, with your mind and your muscles and luxuriate in 10 minutes of complete and unworried rest. You can woo peace of mind by dwelling on the comforting thought that 10 minutes out of each hour will make you equal to the tasks ahead, and restore your strength.

Don't Increase Pace

Then resume the work, but don't try to make up for lost time! That would ruin everything by building up tension. Then toward the end of the next hour, take 10 minutes rest. You'll be surprised to find at the end of the day that you have accomplished practically as much as if you had kept doggedly at it. And oh, the blessed relief of not being worn to a frazzle!

How can such a simple plan accomplish miracles? The complete relaxation helps to break the strain and the tension that otherwise tends to mount as the hours go by. It's tension that piles up fatigue. Also, by resting before you become tired, it doesn't take nearly as much rest to revitalize the body as it does when you have dipped into reserve energy.

Believes in Exercise

Our doctor is a great believer in exercise for new mothers. In fact, he subscribes heartily to the revolutionary theory that a new mother should be up and about 12 hours after the baby arrives! The 12 hours is for normal cases. If the mother has had a difficult time, she should rest for 18 hours before getting up and about. This new plan is based on the theory that women are stronger at the end of the confinement period for using their muscles than they are by staying in bed the whole time.

Our doctor has his patients start simple corrective exercises the third day after the baby arrives, to help restore tone and strength to the stretched abdominal muscles. These easy exercises, plus the 10 minutes rest out of each working hour on returning home are the best prescription I've heard in a long, long time.

Ringside Table — With Mary Harris

CONFUSION AND BLUSHES assailed Pat Whitney, pretty Chicagoan who sings with Stephen Kisley's band at the Carlton's Congo Room, when she was called to the table of an elderly and important lady. "My dear, you should pull your dress up at the neck," said the august dame. "I thought you ought to know." Poor Pat picked at her decolletage the rest of the evening, feared that with every note she was likely to burst forth in a state of what our British friends call "cleavage." . . . The Congo's Maestro Kisley is now skimming around town in a blindingly beautiful new red Pontiac.

Pat Whitney
Congo Room Singer

Athletics have the call in the Lotus' new revue. The Paxton Brothers, circus hand balancers, head the show. Nils and Nadine do smooth but strenuous adagio while June Harvey contributes fast tapping. Songs by Buddy Shaner and Al Sakol's music.

THE "PICCOLO PETE GIRL," chubby and jovial Nora Williams, is raising the roof at Merry-Land. She's doing English music hall songs, hit parade numbers—anything the customers' little hearts desire. New at Merry-Land, too, is Jack Norman, crack singing guitarist and showman . . . The Roman Singers, due at Griffith Stadium on Sunday, will dine and lunch at Merry-Land.

INNOVATIONS IN DUBONNET. Beginning tomorrow the Dubonnet Room of the Sheraton Hotel will be the scene of widened activities. Breakfast, luncheon and dinner will be served in this suave spot. James A. Patterson, the Sheraton's new manager, has revamped the cuisine, introducing novelty dishes new to Washington, also some very practical and easy prices. George Berg and his band will continue to play for cocktail and dinner dancing.

JOE DOSH, radio star, has made a flock of new recordings with accordionist Dick Bailey and bassist Worth Lane, both members of Sammy Ferro's Tidesmen playing in the Neptune Room. The new platters include two lovely tunes from "Brigadoon"—"Almost Like Being in Love" and "There But for You."

Carmen Miranda, Martha Raye, Ted Lewis and Eleanor Powell are all on the impressive 1947-48 agenda of Sam Shanker's Club Cairo which is due for a triple-gala fall opening in September.

DELICACY DEPARTMENT. Seedless grapes preserved in creme de menthe are used to garnish some of the fine cold dishes at Ciro's. They were prepared personally by Major Domo Armando . . . Preserved lychee nuts and golden limes are exotic dessert items at Ruby Foo's . . . A cheering dessert is "California Romance" at the Water Gate Inn. It's made of orange ice and gin! . . . A pleasing hot weather dish is the cold eggplant Imambaildi served at the New Athens. It is delicately savory with olive oil and herbs . . . Smoked Pinebridge turkey with asparagus tips is one of the happy midsummer inspirations of the chef at the Muses . . . One of the prides of the Old New Orleans menu is their macedoine of fruit with kirsh. . . .

M'AMSELLE. Gazelle-eyed Toni who plays accordion and piano at Michel's will receive a master's degree in music from Catholic University just as soon as she gives an organ recital. Right now she has so little time to practice organ, but she's going to do that recital,—yes sir . . . Dona Mason of the King Cole Room is singing a Mexican ballad about hot weather, "Vereda Tropicale." . . . Nini Baker pianist-arranger with Sammy Seymour's Skyliners on the Starlight Roof, is cool as a cucumber (and a hundred times prettier!) in chartreuse chiffon draped Grecian style.

Glen Echo's Jack Corry is a human perpetual motion machine. After leading his big band all evening in the Echo ballroom, he takes off for the Culinary Arts Club with small group, plays for the rest of the night.

MEMORY LANE STUFF. Jimmy Nichols, bandleader in the Rainbow Room, gets a touch of nostalgia every time he looks at a big airplane. He worked on Douglas plane production during the war, became a directional gyro expert. . . . remember Jimmy Hall, the likeable chap who used to manage Olmstead's years ago? He became a captain of Marines, is now running the Coca Cola agency in Tangiers.

New Defense Secretary Post Puts Poser: How Many Guns?

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

If the Secretary of the Navy is entitled to a 19-gun salute (and he is), how many guns will the new, higher ranking Secretary of Defense be entitled to?

This obviously is a pressing naval problem (j.g.),and some of the best minds in Washington are hard at work on it.

You see, the President is entitled to a 21-gun salute, both when he comes to the ship and when he leaves. The same goes for a foreign President, a member of a royal family or a former President.

A Vice President, an ambassador or a cabinet officer other than Secretary of the Navy gets a 19-gun salute upon leaving the ship.

Dilemma in All Directions

The Navy, which knows which side its anchors are buttered on, thinks the Secretary of the Navy is something pretty special. It gives him the 19-gun works coming and going.

Obviously, the Secretary of Defense should get everything the Secretary of the Navy gets—and a little more, too. Yet he can't be allowed as much attention as the President.

Of course, the Secretary of the Navy could be reduced. But that would mean the Navy would make more racket over the Secretary of, say, the Interior than over its own boss.

What to do?

You're All Wet

Hush your mouth, clever little you. Don't you know the Navy never gives even-numbered salutes? Nobody knows why. But it may be because even numbers once meant the captain had died en route.

Fortunately, at least two other customs won't be disturbed. Leland P. Lovette, in his book "Naval Customs," points out that all big shots are entitled to four ruffles (on drums, not dresses).

The Secretary of Defense also will get eight side boys. Years ago the side boys would lift visiting dignitaries aboard during rough weather. Special gangplanks have ended all that, but the men still are there.

The British go even further. As the visiting fireman walks briskly aboard, they still yell, as they did during storms 300 years ago:

No Rate Cut Is Possible Vepco Holds

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—An "absolutely amazing" demand of Virginia residents for electric power has launched the Virginia Electric & Power Co., into a four-year construction program so costly that no rate reductions should be granted now, Vepco spokesmen said as rate talks were resumed with the State Corporation Commission today.

Company representatives conferred again with the SCC on the question of lowering Vepco's rates in the 68-county Virginia system, as a special utility committee of the Virginia League of Municipalities prepared to discuss probable league action in the rate proceedings at a meeting here this afternoon.

J. G. Holtzclaw, president of Vepco, told the commission that 90 million dollars will have to be spent by the end of 1951 to meet unprecedented demands for power. Of this sum, less than a third will be productive of direct new revenue to the company; the balance simply is being plowed into expansion of generating and distributing facilities, he said.

Power consumption in Vepco's territory has soared to a point where a public plea for conservation has been considered, generating equipment operates at a lower efficiency in hot weather than in cold, and the company's production facilities are "loaded to the limit," the company president declared.

Holtzclaw and T. Justin Moore, general counsel, offered memoranda to show that Vepco faces a period of expansion which will demand the expenditure of 90 million dollars in the next four years. Of this sum, Holtzclaw said 62 million dollars is nonrevenue-producing," that is, it will merely provide beter and more extensive service to existing consumers.

At a closed session yesterday afternoon, Holtzclaw told members of the commission that the demand for electric power has overloaded the company's generating facilities to a point where a public plea for conservation has been considered.

Air Forces Have Gasoline For 90 Days

By The Associated Press

The Air Forces disclosed yesterday that it has only about 90 days supply of aviation gasoline and oil. The reason for the shortage was attributed by AAF officers to heavy commercial demands.

This came out when AAF representatives were asked about reported severe shortages at air bases throughout the country and how the AAF, under the circumstances, will be able to stage its elaborate celebration today in honor of the AAF's fortieth anniversary.

It was explained that for some time the Air Forces has been curtailing its operations to conserve fuel, and its mission in observance of Air Force Day, while spectacular, is routine in nature.

The AAF said it has had bids on the markets for aviation gasoline since January 1 and had so few offers it has taken them all.

An AAF representative said AAF supplies of 100 octane gasoline now are about 32 per cent of normal and 91 and 98 octane gas used by small aircraft about the same percentage. Jet fuel, a special mixture, also is short.

The Air Forces said its training program and its research and development program are being retarded due to the shortage. Cross-country flying for training has been eliminated.

When a plane does land at a base it is given only enough gasoline to get back home "and that isn't safe," remarked one pilot.

The increase in commercial flying and the export of gasoline were seen by AAF among the reasons why more gasoline has not been sold to the Government. AAF officials said they feel that a percentage of supply should be reserved for the military forces.

Ex-Newsman Wounds Wife, Kills Self, Girl, 2

Reno, Nev., July 31 (AP).—Harvey Graham, 40 former New York and Philadelphia newspaperman, shot and killed his 2-year-old daughter at his dude ranch early today, wounded his wife and then committed suicide, Sheriff Ray Root reported.

Sheriff Root's report blamed the tragedy on "marital and financial" troubles.

Graham was on the Philadelphia Record, the New York Post and Time and Newsweek magazines.

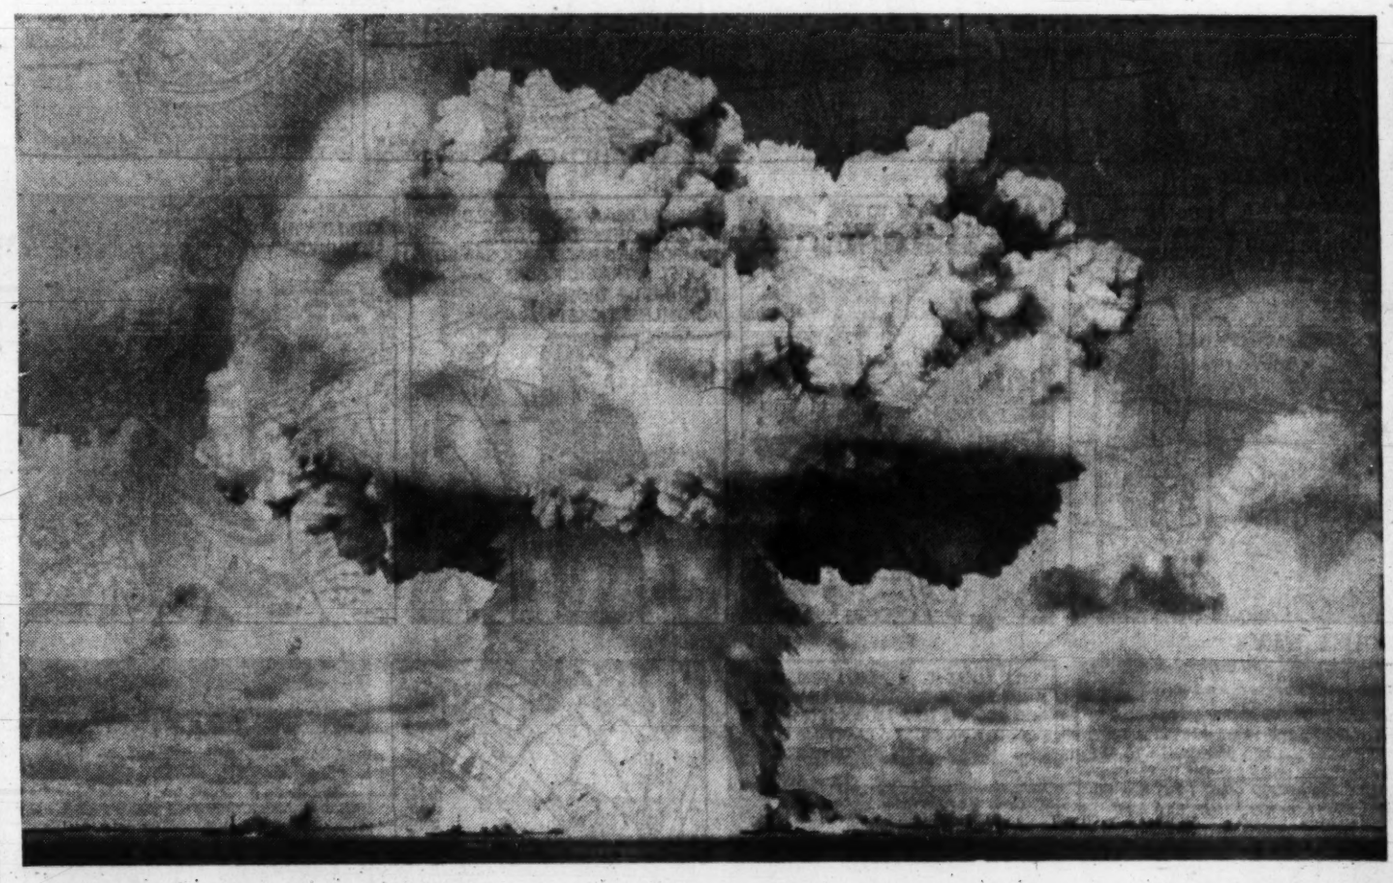
ON THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF THE DESTRUCTION OF HIROSHIMA,

THE WASHINGTON POST BRINGS YOU A 12-PAGE ATOMIC ENERGY SECTION

WITH STATEMENTS BY EINSTEIN, LILIENTHAL, AND 24 OTHER AUTHORITIES



What do YOU advise doing about Atomic Energy?

"WHO, ME?" you say. "What would I advise?"

Yes, you. You and all the rest of us. What our government does is determined, in the last analysis, by what the majority of us want done. About taxes, tariffs, world co-operation, peace and war—and now, atomic energy.

Most of us already have ideas on most of the matters on which our government makes decisions. Now comes something brand new—atomic energy—on which most of us don't have enough information to build our ideas. Yet it's the most important subject on which we will ever have to make a decision.

To aid the citizens of the Nation's Capital to form their opinions about atomic energy on the solid foundation of factual information, The Washington Post will publish a special section on atomic energy. This section will contain 12 full-size newspaper pages of articles and illustrations. The articles will take up every phase of this important question for you: Scientific, political, international, military, historic, legal, medical. The articles are written with you in mind—you'll find them as readable as they are informative and valuable. And there's a special glossary of scientific terms, which you'll want to save. But, then, you'll want to save this whole section, to refer to over and over.

The special atomic energy section will appear as part of the Sunday edition of The Washington Post August 3. A sell-out is expected. Order your copy now.

WHAT YOU WILL FIND IN THIS SPECIAL SUNDAY WASHINGTON POST ATOMIC ENERGY SECTION

EINSTEIN . . answers four questions put to him by The Washington Post

WM. HIGINBOTHAM . . executive director, Federation of American Scientists, gives a bibliography of atomic literature

CALVIN B. HOOVER . . economic adviser to General Clay, writes on Russian attitude toward world control

EDWARD U. CONDON . . director, Bureau of Standards, tells of atomic power plants

LIEUT. COL. DAVID PARKER . . authority on atomic weapons, discusses radio-active poison dust and contamination of water

PAUL C. AEBERSOLD . . head of Oak Ridge isotope laboratory, deals with peaceful uses of atomic energy

WM. WAYMACK . . former Des Moines editor, now atomic energy commission member, discusses agricultural research phase

PLUS articles by former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts, chemist T. R. Hogness, N. J. Bell Telephone Co. president Chester A. Barnard, radio-biologist Dr. Austin Brues, naval strategist Bernard Brodie, Dutch physicist Dr. Samuel Goudsmit, Atomic Energy Commission chairman David E. Lilienthal, patent attorney Wm. H. Davis, Senator Brian McMahon, British physicist H. L. Oliphant, FRS, former Senate committee counsel James R. Newman, U.N. atomic energy commission's U. S. deputy Frederick C. Osborn, public opinion pollster George Gallup, physics professor Philip Morrison, historian Wm. Shurcliff, business economist Summer G. Turtle Takes Leisurely Stroll, Rides Home in Packard

Up to yesterday, I had no occasion to doubt the veracity of the periodic contributions of Tom Beesley of the Dorchester House.

But now I think I'm entitled to a healthy skepticism. Tom says there's a turtle-walker in his neighborhood.

Or maybe it's a tortoise-walker. He's not too clear on the point.

At any rate, a charming young lady frequently makes her appearance on the anchor end of a fly-casting line. The other end is looped around the turtle (or tortoise).

The procedure is quite similar to walking a dog. The turtle makes for the nearest grass, bushes or "keep off" sign, while the walker gazes absently up and down the street, as if waiting for somebody.

And pretty soon "somebody" arrives, in the form of a 1946 Packard bearing diplomatic license No. 735.

Investigation reveals that the Packard is owned by Capt. P. A. Fernando Hernandez Vega, assistant military attache at the Mexican Embassy.

The turtle's name is not recorded.

RECORD BREAKER

Mrs. Helen Nichols, of 1385 Potomac ave. se., needs some help.

She had an Andrews Sisters recording of "Toy Balloon" (Decca) but broke it. She's tried several music stores in an effort to get another copy, but they tell her they never heard of the piece.

Do the ever-resourceful District Liners have any suggestions?

OBVIOUSLY

The current interest in the life and times of Abraham Lincoln moves Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie, of 2511 Q st. nw., to report this incident:

As the Guthries started down the steps of the Lincoln Memorial after a recent visit, a party of newcomers passed them on the way up. Puffing ponderously, one portly gentleman was overheard to say:

"No wonder he's sitting down, Mother—he must have climbed all these steps, too."

ADD NAMES

George G. Jaffe, of 1224 Raum st. ne., is just back from a trip that took him through Greensburg, Pa.

He reports that a men's wear store there bears the sign: Gungaware and Long.

George thinks the "and" should be eliminated, and the names should be reversed

LIKE MY ANCESTORS

The morning mail brings a postcard which says:

"Your column today says '. . . readers don't grow on trees'."

"SHABBY WORST"

The other day we ran a complaint from an 11-year-old who was tired of being elbowed out of his proper turn at the grocery store.

Mrs. G. F. M. adds a few choice observations from a mother's viewpoint:

"Very often I send one of my children to the store for something that I need to start dinner—and an hour later I have to go after the child.

"I find him still waiting patiently, while the clerks and the grownup customers are behaving at their shabby worst by taking advantage of his reticence.

"These cowards wouldn't dare to try those tactics on a fellow grownup, but they seem to have no conscience about bullying a child out of his proper turn."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

A furloughed government worker observes pensively:

"Congress didn't have enough money for paychecks, but I notice they appropriated quite a sum for 'loyalty checks.' Wonder if the bank will cash them?"

Grin and Bear It

"I can see us now—me, worn out, tired, getting the kids to bed—you, out playing poker with the boys, telling them what a swell wife you got!"

Leonard Lyons

Lyons' Share of Pulchritude

Hollywood—"Has it occurred to you," writes Eugene Lyons in response to my man-bites-bear column, "that my fate is worse than yours? You are mistaken for Gene Lyons but I am mistaken for Leonard Lyons, which obviously is the short end of the bargain. You get dirty looks from Stalin's New York agents but I have to face your victims and they are legion rather than agents thrice-removed. Of course I do make up for it by a little social profiteering at your expense. I refer to the occasions when beautiful babes on the make for columnar publicity devote themselves ardently to me for a whole evening under the misapprehension that I am you. It does occur to me to set them right, but in the end, being too tender hearted to disappoint them, I accept their attentions in long-suffering silence."

Ira Gershwin witnessed this at the Hollywood Park race track: Before the first race, a big bettor asked the cigarette girl for her choice. "The bottom horse," she said. She meant the twelfth horse in the race and didn't know that it had been scratched. The man bet the bottom horse, No. 11, and placed a $2 across-the-board bet for her. No. 11 won and the girl collected over $200 for the long-shot . . . Before the second race the man again asked her to pick the horse. "Just a moment. I'll be right back," she told him, went to the $100 window and asked the teller for a horse. He advised her, "Bet the favorite." She gave this advice to her benefactor, who heeded it. The favorite won. The bettor couldn't find her again until the fifth race when just before the betting closed he asked for her choice. "I'm sorry," said the bewildered, desperate girl, "but I can't think anymore."

Henry Morgan was about to be screen-tested at Paramount for the newspaperman's role in the film adaptation of "State of the Union." The test was called off by Morgan because he is under contract to an independent producer who will star him in Ring Lardner's "Big Town" and who wants this to be Morgan's first screen role . . . Martin Gabel, the director, was exhibiting a gold cigarette case at Romanoff's. The men at the next table then started to display their gold cases and lighters. It spread from table to table—the display of gold cases, lighters, pencils, etc. Harry Kurnitz described the event: "Not since Mussolini called in the wedding rings has so much gold been seen at one time."

Harry Brand, the New York movie exhibitor visiting in Hollywood, discussed the release of the documentary film "The Roosevelt Story." Brand revealed that after the film shots and material had been collected, Mrs. Roosevelt was approached for the job of assisting in the editing. She was too busy, of course. Then Mrs. Roosevelt was asked to designate a member of her family to help edit the film—work which naturally would be paid for. Mrs. Roosevelt designated her son Elliott.

George Cukor, the director, was discussing Tallulah Bankhead's generosity and told of the day Tallulah sent her secretary to Valentina, the renowned designer, to select a gown which Tallulah would present to her. The excited secretary phoned for an appointment, went to Valentina's and started to select a gown. To asure prompt and good service she kept repeating Tallulah's name— Tallulah said this to me, Tallulah said that, etc. Valentina stared at her haughtily and asked: "Tallulah who?"

Sudden date

Sometimes when I have done my work . . . I meet some friends of mine . . . And we begin to have some fun . . . We think is really fine . . . I call my wife and tell her I . . . Will be a little late . . . Because my friends and I have made . . . An unexpected date . . . And so I join the group again . . . And there we sit and talk . . . And solve the problems of the world . . . With pencil, pen or chalk . . . The minutes fly, the hours pass . . . And every now and then . . . I leave the circle of my friends . . . To phone my wife again . . . And when at last I head for home . . . Without my being told . . . I know that my reception and . . . My dinner will be cold.

A Statement By

General Carl Spaatz

on the occasion of AIR FORCE DAY, AUGUST 1, 1947

The American people, through their Congress and their President, have shown the world an example of democracy in action. By making the National Defense Act of 1947 a law, our representative form of government has proved itself responsive both to the living lessons of recent history and to the needs of the future.

The United States Air Force is proud to stand beside the Army and the Navy in the new National Military Establishment. We look to the fine traditions of the senior services for inspiration while we recall with satisfaction our own contributions to the distinguished record of American arms in two World Wars.

The Air Force faces a new obligation and a new challenge. We are today charged with the development and maintenance of America's air power. We are obligated to fulfill the trust the nation has placed upon us. We must accept the challenge to fulfill the promise of our past.

The framework of the National Military Establishment creates the most favorable medium in our nation's history for the economical development of efficient armed strength. A small and compact, but highly-trained air-force-in-being can provide our country with security in the air and sustain our firmly held conviction that air power is peace power. A vigorous program of research and development can provide our air-force-in-being with equipment second to none and can insure the successful accomplishment of its mission.

Granted the active backing of every citizen, the United States Air Force can do its part to assure our national security and further the cause of world peace.

Carl Spaatz

Commander United States Air Force.

War Department Here 'Regains' 1800 Jobs

WAR: A breakdown of its budget indicates the department will have 1800 more jobs here than first provided by the House. About 1600 will be in the departmental service, and 200 additional in the field establishments here and nearby.

It's estimated that 1000 employes who were laid off the last week in June on the basis of the House budget will be recalled to their jobs over the next week or so. However, the offices at headquarters will have about 1600 fewer jobs than the department requested.

Over the entire country, the department will have 17,000 more jobs than was first voted by the House. In all, it will have 58,000 fewer civilian jobs than was requested in the President's budget. Here are the figures:

The department requested funds for 495,034 civilian jobs which includes 16,583 in the departmental service here; 368,031 elsewhere in this country, and 110,420 overseas. The House allowed funds for 420,000 jobs.

But as finally enacted, the War budget will provide for 437,000 jobs broken down as follows: 15,000 in department; 318,000 elsewhere in this country, and 104,000 overseas.

Meantime, War's budget and manpower offices are making a new study of the money and personnel needs of the department's many bureaus. The difference between the House figure and that finally enacted—17,000 more jobs—will be allocated on a showing of need rather than on a proportionate basis. Some of the money and personnel will be allocated to joint board such as the research and munitions boards.

WAA: This is the last work day for some 700 War Assets employes who were given layoff notices a month ago. A few employes yesterday were given 30-day extensions. The layoff will bring the WAA staff here down to about 2700 people.

Despite WAA's large budget cut, officials hope to prevent another large-scale layoff before December. However, dismissals will be made gradually in the 35,000 field staff. The office here plans to either replace or "civilianize" the 80 Army officers on its force. Only a few regulars in top spots will be kept on.

OHE: A small layoff will be ordered today at the offices of the Housing Expediter and Rent Control. Both offices are under Frank Creedon.

Only about 100 employes will be fired. The only reason the figure isn't considerably larger is because the offices haven't yet figured out where they stand under the new budgets. But this much is certain—big layoffs must be made very soon in both offices.

Congress made a 33 per cent cut in funds for the expediter, and it knocked out four million dollars for salaries in the rent control office.

This is the last work day for 325 of OHE's employes. Less than 400 employes remain in the central office here.

PEOPLE: Dr. Wayne C. Grover will be sworn in today as the assistant archivist of National Archives. He has been chief of records management in the War Department . . . Clarence R. Bradshaw is the new chief of Interior's Bureau of Land Management adjudication division . . . Bob Hannegan, the Postmaster General and Democratic chief, has been accepted for law practice here by the local bar.

LOYALTY: The President yesterday signed into law an appropriation bill that carries 11 million dollars to carry out his Federal worker loyalty plan. The FBI will get $7,500,000; Civil Service Commission, $3,500,000. However, it will be several weeks before the program reaches full speed. About 4000 people must first be recruited and trained.

MARITIME: An attorney here yesterday told me this story of how the so-called "economy" program is affecting the work at Maritime. He said he had negotiated the purchase of a two-million-dollar boat for a client. He called July 10 to say he was ready to put up $600,000 to close the deal.

However, the Maritime official with whom he had been dealing said he would be glad to close—if the attorney would bring his secretary to type up the contract. The attorney brought along his own secretary. The official had no help.

During the course of the signing a call to New York was required which threatened to delay the closing. The official had no money for the call. The attorney made it and charged the cost to his phone. But other papers were necessary, too, before the deal could be closed and the attorney's girl stayed on until 4:30 p. m. to pound them out. Otherwise the deal would have been delayed.

The attorney said he was for economy in Government—but not economy of that variety.

Incidentally, after the layoff now under way is completed, only 33 people will remain in the small vessel sales division. And the office has more than 7000 barges, yachts, landing craft, etc., to sell.

The big layoff will cut down the Maritime and War Shipping staffs to between 2200 and 2300 employes, more than a 75 per cent slash compared to June 30 a year ago when there were about 10,000 employes.

A big batch of notices went out yesterday. More will go out today and Monday. When it's all over, only 535 of the 1653 employes on war shipping work will be kept, a reduction of 1118.

However, the commission yesterday ordered five days' notice given to each dismissed employe. It had been planned to fire the employes without notice because of the deep slash made by Congress in its budget.

Only 1750 employes will be left in Maritime proper, and it may become necessary to whittle down that number a few more. The commission yesterday decided tentatively not to recall any of the 1100 Maritime proper employes who were laid off as of July 1. It had been hoped that funds could be stretched to recall about 150.

Health Dept. Approves GSI Food Places

More Than Half Of 40 Cafeterias And Snack Bars Comply With Rules

More than half of 40 Government Services, Inc., cafeterias and food bars which failed to qualify for District licenses May 9 have now complied with health department regulations.

This was revealed yesterday by Commissioner John Russell Young after receiving reports from health officials.

District License Superintendent Edward E. Bailey, jr., said he would issue licenses for the cafeterias as soon as he received notification of approval from health department inspectors.

Improvements Being Made

Young said it would be up to health officials to set a deadline for making necessary changes in the remaining cafeterias.

Public Building Administration officials, whose request for $200,000 for cafeteria repairs was turned down July 18 by the House Appropriations Committee, said some improvements were being made with regular operating funds.

"We'll continue to do everything we can with available money," Charles A. Peters, PBA's deputy commissioner for buildings management, promised.

GSI officials said they were making necessary nonstructural changes with their own funds.

They said the following GSI units had been approved by Health Department inspectors:

Cafterias—Federal Trade Commission; Commerce Department; Office of Procurment; National Gallery of Art; Washington Tourist Camp; Federal Office Building No. 1; Temporary Building No. 8; Interior Department; a temporary Government building at 14th st. and Constitution ave.; and one at 59 M st. ne.

Snack Bars Approved

Snack bars—Navy Department; Temporary Office Buildings Nos. 4 and 5; Federal Power Commission; Veterans Administration; Munitions Building; Navy Buildings C and N; and at these addresses: 1540 I st. nw.; 6th st. and Adams dr. sw.; 1818 H st. nw.; 1331 U st. nw.; and 21st st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Major changes still are needed, they said, at Coast Guard and Government Accounting Office cafeterias, which health officials have ordered relocated and remodeled; Civil Service Commission cafeteria, which must be remodeled; and cafeterias at Langston Terrace and the former SPAR Barracks, 7th st. and Independence ave. sw., which need ventilating systems.

C. H. Bradshaw Heads Interior Decrees Branch

Oscar L. Chapman, Undersecretary of Interior, announced yesterday the appointment of Clarence R. Bradshaw, Herndon, Va., as chief of the adjudication branch of the Bureau of Land Management.

He succeeds Thomas C. Havell, who recently was appointed assistant director of the bureau.

Bradshaw has been assistant chief counsel in the bureau since July, 1946.

One of the longtime employes of the General Land Office in the Interior Department before that office became a part of the Bureau of Land Management, Bradshaw entered Government service in the homestead division in 1917.

Highway Stretch Is Near Completion

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—Spokesmen for the State Highway Department said today that an important link on a key north-south highway through central Virginia should be open to the public by late September if "favorable weather holds out."

The project will provide a 9-mile stretch of a 24-foot type macadam roadway where previously there had been soil and gravel. Completion of the job will provide a short-cut between Charlottesville and Lynchburg, will connect the county seat of Amherst and Nelson Counties, and is expected to speed interstate traffic between the Carolinas and the North.

Traffic between Lovingston and Amherst now follows Route 29.

Still Country

D. C. Revenue Area Makes Most 'Shine'

More moonshine bubbles from stills in the Fifth Supervisory District of the United States than in all of the other 14 districts in the country.

Oh, yes, the district also takes in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

Our reporter wondered if Rock Creek Park might be hiding a few moonshine stills. The Revenue Bureau said "no."

So it would appear that the stills are bubbling somewhere in the hills of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue said the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit during June seized stills in the Fifth District with a daily producing capacity of 5836 gallons, more than the total of all stills seized in the other 14 districts of the country.

The report said 118 stills were seized in the Fifth District in June, which is second only to 204 seizures in the Sixth District, which covers Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. The Sixth District stills, however, had a daily run of only 2796 gallons.

3 Fugitives Are Returned To Road Gang

Fairfax County police yesterday literally tracked down and captured three prisoners who escaped from a Camp 30 road gang Wednesday.

After an all-day search Wednesday by State guards, dogs, and county police had proved fruitless, Officer James Thomas received a call at county headquarters yesterday morning that three men dressed in khaki had been seen crossing a clearing in Vienna near Buelah rd.

A searching party rushed out to search the area. Officer John Wahl came across some footprints, followed them, and found the convicts. He said he caught up with them while two were trying to cut the step chains from the third, Charles Lee.

Police said Lee had been hobbled because of three previous escapes.

The three men, Charles Calvert, Lawrence Fields and Lee, were returned to Camp 30. They will face grand jury action at the next session of the county Circuit Court.

A fourth prisoner who escaped from a road crew Tuesday is still at large.

Quitclaim Authorized For Muirkirk Church

President Truman has signed legislation authorizing the Agriculture Department quitclaim two acres of land near Muirkirk, Md., to the Queens Chapel Methodist Church for $100. The land is to be used as a site of a new church building.

NCHA Raises High Income Family Rents

560 Told to Move By Sept. 1 or Start Paying Nearly Double Rates Now in Effect

The last of 560 high-income families renting homes from National Capital Housing Authority were notified yesterday they must give up the homes by September 1 or start paying rents nearly double the present rates.

Another 1325 tenant families were notified their rents were being increased to bring rates more in line with their salaries. Such increases, however, were not set at "private housing rent standards" nor designed to discourage tenancy, as in the case of the 560.

For 506 tenant families, notices were sent informing them their rents would remain unchanged.

And 756 other families, in lower income brackets, were notified their present rents would be reduced somewhat, beginning September 1.

The action was taken by NCHA in line with the recently-revised rent scale which established 20 "steps" of family income to determine rents to be charged by the low-rent, Federally-aided housing set-up in the District.

Basis of Action

Bernard E. Loshbough, NCHA deputy director in charge of operations and present acting executive director in the absence of John Ihlder, explained the action last night.

"Frankly," he declared, "we must discourage continued occupancy by high-income families. The top-level rents we are asking from these families were established after we received figures from the District rent administrator (Robert F. Cogswell) on what would be comparable rents permissible in private housing."

Loshbough said the action was not contrary to a congressional bill which provides that high-income tenants of NCHA be given till next March 1 to find new homes before eviction action is taken. He said the rent raise notifications mailed to the 560 families Wednesday and yesterday were not "eviction notices."

"The rents (in the 560 cases) were set," he said, "to discourage tenants who can afford private housing from remaining in homes operated for those who cannot."

Incomes Exceed $3000

The 560 tenant families all have annual incomes in excess of $3000 he said.

NCHA, which operates 10 housing projects within the District, provides housing for 3147 families, of which 2587 have incomes within eligibility requirements of the project, Loshbough explained.

The projects, and number of family tenants in each, are: James Creek, 279; Carrollsburg, 314; Barry Farm, 442; Langston, 274; Frederick Douglass, 313; Kelly Miller, 169; Parkside, 373; Lincoln Heights, 440; Ellen Wilson, 217, and Fort Dupont, 326.

NCHA war housing units were not affected in yesterday's action.

Loshbough cited as examples of rent increases for the 560 tenant families with incomes over $3000: One bedroom units were raised from $34.50 to $55.50; two bedroom units, from $36 to $65.50; three bedroom units, from $37.50 to $73, and four bedroom units, from $39 to $78. All rentals include utilities.

Death of Boy In Alexandria Pool Probed

Budwesky Asks Report From City Attorney On Operating Procedure

Investigation of the death apparently by drowning of a 9-year-old boy in the Alexandria Municipal Pool Wednesday was ordered yesterday by City Manager Carl Budwesky.

Budwesky called for a report from City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast to "determine if there are any loopholes in the operating procedure at the pool."

Center of the tragedy was James H. Watson, 1314 Princess st., Alexandria, whose body was found at the bottom of the pool just five minutes before closing time Wednesday. A bruise on the boy's forehead suggested that a blow from the side or floor of the pool might have contributed to his death.

Acting Coroner Dr. John E. Roberts certified death resulted from accidental drowning.

VA Appoints Two To Perry Point Posts

Baltimore, July 31 (AP).—The Veterans' Administration today announced the appointment of Dr. Richard T. Shackelford as chief of surgical service and Dr. William H. Fisher, jr., as his assistant at the Perry Point Hospital.

Dr. Shackelford is on the faculty of Johns Hopkins and the University of Maryland. Dr. Fisher has been chief resident at Salisbury's Peninsula General Hospital since last year.

Dr. Kraushaar Elected Goucher College Head

Baltimore, July 31 (AP).—Election of Dr. Otto Frederick Kraushaar, a member of the faculty of Smith College, to be president of Goucher College, was announced today by the Goucher board of trustees.

Dr. Kraushaar will succeed Dr. David Allan Robertson, who will retire as president of the Baltimore institution for women in July, 1948.

Dr. Robertson will have completed 17 years as head of Goucher when he retires.

17% Increase

Mental Case Jump Laid To Housing

The housing shortage is an important reason why 17 per cent more persons were institutionalized for mental diseases this year than last year, a leading authority said yesterday.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, head of St. Elizabeths Hospital, made the assertion when asked to explain the sudden increase after a stationary period during the war.

1942—1019 cases.
1943—1054 cases.
1944—1044 cases.
1945—1098 cases.
1946—1056 cases.
1947—1239 cases.

The way the housing situation becomes involved was explained this way by Dr. Overholser:

Old age is often coupled by mental diseases due to senility. When there is enough room, people tend to care for their old folk where possible. But with the housing shortage, relatives are more willing to allow institutionalization for the senile.

Other reasons for the increase, Dr. Overholser said, were the return of service men to new situations of civilian life, the let-down of the war stimulus, and the general recognition that early care is advisable in cases of mental diseases.

Half Billion Bill For Flood Control, Navigation Signed

President Truman yesterday signed a $502,123,912 appropriation bill for flood control, navigation and other nonmilitary activities of the War Department.

One of the last measures approved by the Eightieth Congress before the July 26 recess, it carries $298,334,825 for flood control construction and maintenance, plus $116,718,700 for navigation improvements and maintenance during the year ending next June 30.

The measure provided funds for two reservoirs which are part of a series of power-flood control-navigation dams designed to harness the Roanoke River basin. These were Buggs Island, $4,800,000, and Philpott, on the Smuth River, $250,000.

Several smaller navigation projects also were included in the bill. Appropriations for these were:

James River, $80,000; Newport News Creek, $145,000; Oyster Creek, $54,000; Onancock Creek, $25,000; Tangier Channel, $13,200; Herberts Creek, near Hampton Creek, $15,000.

Rockville Firemen Spending $7000 On Carnival Site

A 10-acre site near Rockville on the Rockville Pike, is being improved at a cost of $7000 by the town's volunteer fire department for its annual carnival to be held August 15-23.

Included in the attractions will be two public weddings, one on August 15 and the other August 21. Each bridal couple will receive wedding rings, bridal gowns and a suite of furniture.

The firemen will also give away four new automobiles and seven automatic combination radio-phonographs.

Chief W. Valentine Wilson, chairman of the committee in charge, said yesterday the ground improvement costing $7000 would have cost twice that amount had not most of the labor and materials been donated by members of the department and Rockville citizens.

The carnival, eleventh in a series, was interrupted by the war.

2 Dead, 1 Hurt In Collision at Emmitsburg

2 Ohioans Victims In Smashup of Automobile, Truck

Two persons were killed and a third seriously injured when their car crashed head-on into a truck driven by a Vienna, Va., man on Highway 15, 3 miles north of Emmitsburg, Md., yesterday afternoon.

The victims were: Ronald Sabine, 12, of Euclid, Ohio, killed instantly; Harry Stoneman of Cleveland, who suffered a fractured skull and died in the Gettysburg, Pa., hospital, and Paul Torbet, 55, of Euclid, who suffered chest injuries and a fractured leg. He was admitted to the Gettysburg hospital.

Walter Buhl, who was driving a tractor-trailer truck loaded with 13 tons of brick, was not injured.

Howard Mackert, Maryland State trooper said, Torbert was either not paying attention or lost control of his 1947 sedan when he drove into the truck. The accident occurred on the Maryland-Pennsylvania line.

No charges have been placed against Torbert or Buhl pending outcome of an inquest tonight by the Adams County, Pa., coroner.

Group Denied Pleas in Person For Policeman

The Commissioners yesterday told Georgetown businessmen to put clemency pleas for suspended Police Pvt. James A. Stewart, jr., into writing.

They turned down a request by a committee, headed by Charles D'Andelet, of the Colonial Furniture Co., 3275 M st. nw., to appear on Stewart's behalf.

Commissioner John Russell Young explained it was not the custom of the Board of Commissioners to hear clemency pleas by interested groups after completion of trial board hearings.

A police trial board recommended July 25 that Stewart be dismissed from the force. It took the action after hearing charges that Stewart maltreated Daniel J. Fitzpatrick, a Georgetown University student.

Young said the Commissioners had not received the trial board's recommendations.

Written requests for leniency will be considered by the Commissioners when they act on the trial board's decision, Young promised.

These will include letters already received from Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), and Senator Clyde A. Hoey (D., N. C.), asking that Stewart be given another chance, he said.

$3,000,000 Park Budget To Be Asked Again for '49

D. C. and Maryland Commissions Seek Speedy Completion Of Highway Project

A three million dollar budget request for 1949, to extend District parks into Maryland, was agreed upon yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The estimate, already rejected by Congress once, was made at a joint meeting of the local commission and the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The two groups also discussed the "necessity for completing" the Montgomery County portion of the George Washington Memorial Parkway "as soon as possible," Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the local commission, said.

The Maryland commission was asked to match the $200,000 already available for the project, General Grant added.

A $200,000 certified check was delivered to the NCPPC by the Maryland Commission in payment of a loan advanced for the Anacostia River Park in Prince Georges County. The transaction was made eight years ago, as provided by the Capper-Cramton Act.

At a "very harmonious" conference with the District Recreation Board, General Grant said, tentative approval was given to proposed sites for five playgrounds and one neighborhood park.

At a morning conference, opening a two-day session, the NCPPC announced acquisition of a 30-acre strip near the Taylor Naval Testing Basin for extension of the projected George Washington Memorial Parkway on the Maryland side of the Potomac River.

Extends to River

Norman C. Brown, land purchasing officer for the NCPPC, said it was the second largest area purchased for the parkway in the last seven or eight years. The plot is situated on both sides of MacArthur blvd. in the vicinity of what was formerly the Anglers Club, now owned by the Government.

Brown said the acreage extends "not only from the boulevard to the C. & O. Canal, but also from the Canal to the Potomac River," running along the river's edge some 1700 feet.

Condemnation of a small parcel of land to complete the Dakota playground at Channing st. and South Dakota ave. ne. also was authorized by the commission. The playground will cover slightly more than 2½ acres.

Today the commission will consider sites for the District Medical Center and the Veterans Administration Hospital, a reclamation project for the Anacostia River and plans for a small airport for private planes on the Anacostia.

Virginian Dies Of Rabies Without Bite by Animal

Richmond, Va., July 31 (AP).—A Mecklenberg County resident has died of rabies despite the fact that he aparently never was bitten by an animal afflicted by the disease, Dr. W. A. Browne, director of the State Health Department's bureau of communicable disease control, disclosed today.

The victim, Dr. Browne said, died in a North Carolina hospital in May, but no report was made to State public health authorities at that time.

As a result of the report, the bureau chief issued a warning for all persons who have come in close contact with rabid animals to undergo preventive treatment even if they have not been bitten.

Dr. Browne, who did not disclose the name of the victim, said the incidence of rabies without animal bites is rare, declared that nevertheless numerous cases show that persons never bitten can contract the disease through open cuts.

One Driver Is Held for Grand Jury Action, Another Cleared in Traffic Death Inquests

A District coroner's jury yesterday held one driver for grand jury action and released another in inquests in two pedestrian traffic deaths.

Jack Otis Anderson, 20, Route 2, Baileys Crossroads, Va., was held in connection with the death of Atlee A. Austin, 30, 1318 35th st. nw., on July 27.

Wilbert A. Poole, 36, 309 4th st. ne., cab driver, was released in the death of David W. Appling, 60, Occoquan, Va., who was struck Monday as he was crossing in the 200 block of Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Testifying in behalf of Wilbert Pool was Representative Robert E. Jones, jr. (D., Ala.), who was a passenger in the cab.

The Congressman said it was impossible to see Appling until they were right on top of him. He said Poole's driving was competent in every respect. The jury ruled that the death was accidental.

Anderson, who was charged at the time of the accident with leaving after colliding, reckless driving and bad brakes, was released on $2500 bond pending grand jury action.

During the inquests, conducted by Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, Corpl. Francis H. Dunn of the investigation unit testified that Anderson, driving his father's truck, was in an accident with another car before striking Austin.

Dunn said Anderson had never admitted that he struck Austin but did admit an accident with a car operated by Fred S. Roberts of Fairfax, Va., in front of 2919 M st. nw. about 12:30 July 23.

Austin was struck by a vehicle shortly after 12:30 as he was crossing at 35th and N sts. with a friend, Walter A. Sailor, 29, 5144 Fulton st. nw., who was injured slightly.

Dunn contended it was while Anderson was taking his passenger, James Kelly, 23, 502 Duke st., Alexandria, Va., to Georgeton Hospital that he struck Austin. Kelly's face was cut when his head went through the windshield.

Anderson, arrested at his home in Virginia by Washington police, said he didn't return to the scene of the accident on M st. because the owner of the other car told him he could take Kelly to the hospital.

6 Police in Baltimore Draw Fixing Penalties

Baltimore, July 31 (AP).—Lieut. Carroll Simmons and five other members of the Baltimore County Police were either fined or reduced in rank today on charges of fixing traffic tickets, Christian H. Kahl, president of the County Commissioners, announced.

Kahl said an investigation confirmed the ticket-fixing accusations. He said Simmons was accused in three instances and fined $50 on each.

The others fined $50 each were Patrolman Lawrence J. Heinle and Patrolman Eldred C. Tinder. Sergt. Clarence Todd was reduced to corporal and Corporals Charles Miller and Lawrence Kahl to patrolmen.

The six officers also were transferred to different posts. Kahl reported that Frank C. Blackburn, clerk of the Essex police magistrate, also has been removed.

Work Your Horses, Men

Baltimore, July 31 (AP).—Patrolmen got the word at roll call today: Start enforcing the new city ordinance which provides a $10 fine for riders who gallop their horses through the streets.

The law is predicated on the proposition the horse is a dangerous vehicle. It does not apply to draft horses, nor those on bridle path. But on the streets, horsemen will proceed at a walk, please.

Proponents argued: You have to pass an examination to get a driver's license. Any fool can ride a horse.

Winchester, Va., July 31.—A contest in every district of Frederick County for membership on the Board of Supervisors is the only one controversy involved in the Democratic primary on Tuesday.

Drier Used on Wheat

Hagerstown, Md., July 31 (AP).—Faced with the loss of his wheat crop, a farmer here said today he had saved the entire crop of wet wheat by airing it out in his electric hay drier.

Herman Stockslager, president of the Washington County Farm Bureau, said this improvised method might be the answer to the problem of restoring "tough," water-soaked wheat—especially serious this year because of heavy rains.

He said his entire crop of 950 bushels had been combined and sacked before the siege of wet weather. No grain elevators would accept the wet wheat because their drying facilities were overtaxed, he said.

Stockslager poured the grain into his electric hay mow to a depth of 3 feet. Streams of air, pumped through ducts in the lower part of the mow by an electric fan, were forced into the wheat.

The crop, now dry, will be rebagged and sent to the elevator for sale, Stockslager said.

Mrs. Mary McDaniel, driver, who was not hurt, told police the car veered into the pole when the steering mechanism failed. The wire fell clear of the car into a nearby field.

Thief Has the Laugh

Salisbury, Md., July 31 (AP).—After one costly try as an amateur detective, Mrs. Joseph Naples is going to stick to being a beauty shop operator.

Someone stole a pocketbook and $16 from Mrs. Naples' shop. She dug up an old purse and put it on the cash register as bait. Then preparing to leave with a friend, she remarked in the best Sherlock Holmes manner:

"Oh, I left my pocketbook in there with $50 in it. But we'll be back soon, so I guess it's safe."

The thief fell for the trick. When Mrs. Naples returned the purse was gone. So was a $20 brooch which Mrs. Naples had forgot was in it.

35 Years Apart Give Couple Some Language Trouble

Great Falls, Mont., July 31 (AP). Mr. and Mrs. George Napjus are together again, after heartbreaking separation for 35 years.

Napjus, now 71, left Holland in 1912, intending to establish himself in America, then send for his wife. This was prevented by adverse conditions, including two world wars, illness and lack of money.

Arrangements were made last spring for Mrs. Napjus to fly to the United States, so she could celebrated her sixty-eighth birthday here, but excitement sent her blood pressure soaring and physicians advised cancellation.

At last, a 14-day ocean trip brought Mrs. Napjus here, and a family reunion followed.

Mrs. Napjus speaks little English and Napjus' Dutch is "rusty," so the two have some conversation difficulties. But, smiled Napjus, "we understand each other."

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday announced the promotion of 37 men in his department. They will be sworn in to their new ranks at Police Headquarters today.

Carver

At the same time he announced the retirement of Detective Sergt. Charles C. Carver, 51, of the general assignment squad, for physical disability incurred in the line of duty. Carver's retirement ends nearly 24 years of service in the Police Department.

Barrett also announced transfers for 33 men and precinct assignments for 22 rookies who have just completed work at the police training school. He emphasized that the large number of transfers did not indicate a shakeup in the department, but was ordered to distribute members of the force more evenly throughout the precincts.

Among the men to receive promotions was Precinct Detective Ernst H. Winter, 35, of the Second Precinct, who was assigned as a detective sergeant to the detective bureau.

Worked on Strieff Case

In 1935 he was promoted to precinct detective and in 1939 to detective sergeant, at which time he was assigned to the homicide squad. He played an active part in solving the Betty Strieff murder case and was commended in nine times for outstanding work during his years on the force.

Carver was injured five times in the line of duty, the most serious injury incurred in 1943 when he fell into a manhole and injured his back while on a homicide case. He lives with his wife, Mrs. Ada Carver, at 2212 Randolph pl. ne. They plan to return to his native home in Harrisonburg, Va., where he will help his brothers in their produce business.

Msgr. Guilday, Catholic U. Historian, Dies

Right Rev. Msgn. Peter Guilday, prominent church historian and member of the Catholic University faculty since 1914, died yesterday at Providence Hospital.

Msgr. Guilday

Monsignor Guilday, 63, had been a patient at the hospital for about three weeks. He had been in ill health for the past two years, however, and had been forced to curtail his teaching schedule.

He had been professor of church history at the university since 1923, and was author of a number of works on the Catholic church in the United States.

He was made a domestic prelate with the title of "Right Reverend Monsignor" in 1935. His investiture took place at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Ordained in Louvain

He was ordained in Louvan, Belgium, in 1909.

Msgr. Guilday was born in Chester, Pa., March 25, 1884. When 18, he entered St. Charles Seminary at Overbrook, Pa., and there he won a scholarship to Louvain University. After studying in the American College he went to the University of Bonn, Germany, and returned to Louvain for graduate work.

In June, 1914, he received his doctor's degree from Louvain with a dissertation, "The English Colleges and Convents in the Catholic Low Countries (1558-1795)."

The outbreak of World War I interrupted work on a similar volume on the Irish colleges and convents, and he returned to the United States, joining the Catholic University faculty.

His attention thereafter was given to American Catholic history. In 1915 he founded the Catholic Historical Review and in 1919 the American Catholic Historical Association, now the foremost learned society among American Catholics.

Decorated by Belgium

He was the author of the "Life and Times of John Carroll, First Bishop of Baltimore," the "Church in Virginia" and other learned works.

In 1926 he was decorated by Belgium for his work in the restoration of the war-damaged Louvain library. He was also the recipient of a number of honorary degrees from various universities.

He was a member of the American Historical Association, Maryland Historical Society, Academy of Political Science, Mississippi Valley Historical Association, Catholic Record Society of London, Canadian Historical Association, and others.

Msgr. Gilday's body will lie in state in Caldwell Hall at the university, from 8 p. m. today until 4:30 p. m. Sunday, and then be transferred to the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. The Office of the Dead will be held there at 8 p. m. Sunday and the requiem mass read at 10 a. m. Monday. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Surviving are five brothers and sisters: Miss Margaret M. Gilday and Delaney Gilday, both of Washington; Sister M. Pierre, I. H. M., West Chester, Pa.; Felix Gilday, Chester, Pa., and Thomas Gilday, Mount Holly, N. J.

Jay-Walking Ganders Warned Off Street

New York (U.P.).—Mrs. Sophie Hahn heard two of her geese honking in distress and hurried to the street to find her pedigreed gander, James IV, lying in the gutter.

"I cried, 'Jimmy, speak to me,' but he did not," Mrs. Hahn told Justice Harold Crawford in Small Claims Court. "He was dead."

She blamed Joseph Levine, a milk-truck driver, in her suit for damages.

"While the court's sympathy is with the plaintiff in the death of her pet," Justice Crawford ruled, "the law favors the defendant. The case is dismissed."

He pointed out that ganders walk the city's streets at their own risk.

Confederate Army Widow Is Dead Here

Mrs. Martha D. Anderson, 85, a resident of Washington for more than 60 years, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Kathryn C. Barnes, of Chevy Chase, following a short illness.

Mrs. Anderson was born in Fauquier County, Va., during the Civil War. Her husband, the late Alucke A. Anderson, served with the Confederate Army. He died in 1913. Her father, also a Confederate soldier was killed in the war.

Her first Washington home was on a farm operated by her husband at what is now 3d st. and Missouri ave. nw. Five children were born during the 20 years she lived there.

She was the descendent of a family which had settled in Virginia before the Revolution, and she told her children that "every war of the United States had a member of the family in it." Five grandsons served in the armed forces during World War II.

Mrs. Anderson recalled visiting the old sixth st. Depot—scene of the assassination of President Garfield in 1881—and she was present at the inaugurations of many Presidents.

She had made her home at 1113 Potomac ave. se. for the past 20 years, and was a member of the Victory Unit No. 4 of the American Legion Auxiliary. The unit will hold services tonight at 8 p. m. at the Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia ave nw.

Besides Mrs. Barnes, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Irene Bryan of 1113 Potomac ave. se., and Mrs. Dora Funk of Hyattsville; two sons, Lewis M. Anderson of Branchville, Md., and Ray C. Anderson, 3443 Clay st. ne., and a stepson, Edward Anderson of Fairfax, Va. Twenty-six grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the Deal funeral home at 2 p. m. Saturday. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

I. Thurston Dryden

Portland, Me., July 31 (AP).—I. Thurston Dryden, Westover, Md., native and for many years an Atlantic Commission Co. executive in Montreal, Toronto and Portland, died last night at his home here.

Dryden was in charge of Canadian operations of the commission company, an affiliate of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., before coming to Portland.

Garland B. Keen

Grundy, Va., July 31 (AP).—Buchanian County Sheriff Garland B. Keen, 61, serving his first term, died last night in a hospital here after a long illness.

Keen was a lifelong resident of Buchanan County and had been active in civic affairs here.

His wife, seven sons and a daughter survive.

NLRB Trio Given Interim Appointments

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday gave interim appointments to the National Labor Relations Board to his three candidates on whom the Senate failed to act.

The appointees are Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray, for membership on the board, and Robert Denham, as general counsel.

In the adjournment rush, efforts to reach a Senate vote on their confirmation were unsuccessful. The men can hold their jobs on a recess status until the end of the next session of Congress.

The key job is Denham's. He will administer the NLRB field activities and determine what complaints are to be heard, investigated and processed. Denham is a former NLRB trial examiner.

Murdock was Democratic Senator from Utah until the late election. Gray is a labor relations consultant from Buffalo, N. Y. They will join with Chairman Paul M. Herzog, John M. Houston and James J. Reynolds, jr., to constitute the expanded five-man board prescribed by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Meantime, there was a question of how much work they would have to do inasmuch as both the CIO and AFL have instructed member unions to steer clear of the law, the board and all its processes.

The number of petitions filed with the NLRB in July is expected to run to only about 200, compared with a usual monthly figure of about 1000. It may be, however, that the drop is only temporary and that unions, whether they want to or not, will be obliged to conduct their disputations, as before, through the mechanics of the labor law.

Counting Pennies with Carolyn

It's Heigh Ho and off you go by bus from 11th and E or Pennsylvania at 12th Street, right to the beautiful new business center at Shirlington. There, modern shops of every description, concentrated in a block, offer enticing week-end bargains . . . stay open Friday night till nine and Saturdays till six all year round for the convenience of week-end shopping, far from the madding crowd, where clerks who are eager to please, serve you in exceptionally attractive surroundings.

By bus or car, the trip is so easy you'll want to take the youngsters along this week-end to "have their pictures took" while Charles Baptie's wonderful mid-summer special is in force. Just think. You can have six different poses taken for $9.75. Quite a buy.

This week-end, too, the Clothes Horse, Shirlington's exclusive dress shop and the oldest one there, is having a summer sale. You'll surely want to save from $4 to $8 on the cotton and rayon shantung summer dresses now being cleared, and pure silk prints that were formerly $25 and are now selling for $18 are bargains a few lucky first-comers will get. Very much of a bargain, too, are bathing suits, one-piece rayon jersey and two-piece lastex models, reduced to approximately cost price. This Virginia fashion store carries merchandise featuring such famous fashion names as Ceil Chapman, Mil-Jay Originals, Bornstein, Paul Parnis and others.

Remember those wonderful buys in $2.99 umbrellas at A. S. Beck we told you about a couple of weeks ago? Well, a brand-new shipment of the same expensively made 16-rib rayon taffeta bumbershoots in exciting Fall plaids has just arrived. Just a few of those good white handbags, now reduced to $1.99 are left. If you don't need one for the rest of this summer, it would be a good investment for the future.

Ann Lewis, always out front with new fashions, is displaying the newest thing in fall suits. They're rich wool gabardine, stunning with their rippled-back jackets and new, much longer skirts. Choose yours in wine, pine green, October blue, grey or black . . . then pick a chapeau in velvet or felt to match its rich tones. You can also get your new undies in matched sets . . . nighties, panties, slips, half-slips, tailored or lacy and "out of this world." While you're there, ask to see the new longer slips, just in. This shop, you'll find, has just about everything you need, from "the skin out!"

If you need a dressy little hat to wear to a party with your new dark sheer, John Simon has it. The collection of fascinating cocktail hats in satin and velvet, and plumed felts is something to see. Prices on millinery at this high-fashion shop, featuring such names as Howard Hodge, start at an extremely reasonable $5.

When you've done all your shopping you'll want to cool off with a long, tall, delicious soda at the air-conditioned Shirlington Hot Shoppe . . . better still enjoy one of their tasty luncheons, courteously served in luxurious surroundings. On your way out, pick up a layer cake, pastries, or cookies from the bakery at the food-to-take-home section.

It's a dandy idea to time your shopping tour so you can take in the show at Shirlington Theater, one of the finest modern theaters in the country. This is a first-run motion picture center where you find the newest and finest in film entertainment.

Each trip you take to Shirlington, we think you'll find, as we have, that this modern business center is a lucky find for thrifty shoppers.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

JOE LOUIS IS supposed to defend his title every six months under the rules of both the National Boxing Association and New York Athletic Commission, both of which recognize him as champion, but neither is insisting on it. In the public interest, they're winking at their six-month rule.

POVICH

It's been 11 months now since Louis last defended his title, and nobody is indignant about his lay-off. There isn't any heavyweight in view who could give Louis a contest, and the unequal affair with Billy Conn last year is still too rancid in the public memory to bestir any demand for another push-over opponent.

The champion himself sounded the keynote of his current idleness when he said some time back, "There isn't anybody around worth fighting," and nobody is disputing him. Louis, as usual, was saying the correct thing. He's spurning the tidy sums he might have picked up with another bum-of-the-month tour. Unlike champions of the past, Louis isn't hiding out from any challengers. He's merely looking a fact in the face, and there's no quarrel with his hands-off attitude toward the current crop of challengers.

IN HIS TIME, Louis has been the fighting-est champion in history, defending the title he has held longer than any other man more times than any of his predecessors. If he ever did have any ideas of taking on Joe Baksi in the immediate future, they were blasted by Baksi's loss of a decision to Olle Tandberg, the Swedish heavyweight novice, last month.

Louis never did rate Baksi highly anyway, and there was general concurrence. Too many guys have licked Baksi, including Gus Dorazio, the old trial horse, and an obscure character named Teddy Wint. Baksi was hot stuff in England where he licked the British pride, Bruce Woodcock, holder of the European heavyweight title, but Woodcock is an overfed middleweight, and the European heavyweight title never was much account.

The loss of a decision to Tandberg finished Baksi as a title contender in the American mind. The Swedish champion got strictly a home-town decision, it was reported, but his ability to make it even that close with Baksi is no compliment to the latter. Louis recoiled at the idea of fighting a Baksi licked by Tandberg, as unworthy of the $50 tops Mike Jacobs' men would probably charge.

WHERE LOUIS' NEXT title opponent is coming from is almost anybody's guess. One thing is significant. All those fighting youths who were supposed to come out of the armed services at the end of the war and provide the opposition haven't showed up yet, and probably won't. The Louises, Zales, Lesneviches, Robinsons, LaMottas, Grazianos and Willie Peps, who were the top men in their classes before the war, still are.

Unlike most other heavyweight champs, Louis hasn't ducked anybody. Jack Dempsey for years side-stepped Harry Wills, taking refuge by drawing the color line until Wills was eliminated by advanced years. Gene Tunney took a circuitous path around the menacing Jack Sharkey and chose old Tom Heeney for his last title defense after beating Dempsey. Jimmy Braddock wouldn't fight Max Schmeling, conqueror of Louis, but gave Louis the title shot in return for a percentage of Louis' earnings.

For years Jack Johnson ducked Sam Langford who chased him half way across the world in an attempt to get Johnson in the same ring with him. But Louis has taken them as they came. One year to the day after he won the title from Braddock, he was in the ring against Schmeling, the man who had knocked him out, and wiped out that blot on his record with a one-round knockout.

LOUIS IS 33 NOW, an age at which the heavyweight champion is supposed to be past his peak, but paradoxically his crown is more secure at this time than it ever was. His last two challenges were absurd. The frightened Billy Conn scarcely threw a punch at him, and waltzed out of range until Louis stopped him in the eighth. Tami Mauriello made the mistake of taking a good punch at Louis so the champion belted him out in one.

The present scarcity of good heavyweights indicates that Louis can be champion at 40, if he chooses. He always was a faithful conditioner, and his Army service apparently took nothing away from either his punching speed or authority.

The next heavyweight champion, whoever he is, probably hasn't attained his fifteenth birthday yet. If a contender does appear, the officials won't have to invoke the six-month rule to get Louis into the ring. His attitude always has been lead-me-to-him, or vice versa, and the results are usually the same.

Leonard Hurls 12th Victory In Shutting Out Cubs, 3 to 0

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—Emil "Dutch" Leonard, the former American League knuckleball pitcher, held the Cubs to five scattered hits here today for the 3-0 victory which gave the Philadelphia Phillies their first series of the year over Chicago. It was Philadelphia's third victory in 16 meetings with the Cubs.

Leonard was the complete master in registering his 12th victory of the season against five defeats. He allowed only two runners to reach second, struck out six, and not a one of the Cubs' five hits was for extra bases.

Match Upsets Billy Talbert

Southampton, N. Y., July 31 (AP).—Second-seeded Billy Talbert of New York bowed out of the Meadow Club's 57th annual invitation tennis tournament today, joining three other top-ranked players on the sidelines as the quarter-final round was completed.

Talbert, sixth-ranking player in the country, was eliminated by seventh-seeded Sam Match of San Francisco in the second major upset of the grass court competition. Rallying from virtual defeat in the second set, Match thiumphied with scores of 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

No less surprising was the defeat of Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder, Davis Cup doubles champions, who lost in straight sets in the second round doubles to Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., and Gardner Larned of Chicago, 11-9, 6-3.

Previous victims of upsets in singles competition as hot as the weather were Defending Titlist Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla.; Third-Ranked Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood, Calif., and Fourth-Favored Ed Moyland of San Francisco.

Louis Fights Walcott in Garden Nov. 14

Joe's Title Will Not Be at Stake

New York, July 31 (AP).—Jersey Joe Walcott of Camden, N. J., will climb into the Madison Square Garden ring November 14 to face Joe Louis wihout having, in theory at least, a chance of lifting the heavyweight champion's title.

The match, announced today by Sol Strauss, acting director of the 20th Century Sporting Club, is billed as a 10-round nontitle fight, and inasmuch as a bout must be booked for 15 rounds to be considered as a championship fight in New York, Walcott would seem to be fighting only for any prestige he might attain. That, and what is known as money.

However, the general idea around Jacobs' Beach is that, should Jersey Joe win by a knockout, he would be regarded generally as champion, and even should he win a clean-cut decision he would have at least an unofficial claim to the title.

Supposing Joe is Kayoed

The National Boxing Association also recognizes only 15-round bouts for the championship, except in possible member States where 15-round bouts are not permitted. Prexy Abe Greene said that should Walcott win by a kayo no commission could deny his title claim.

Although, according to the New York rule, it is a nontitle fight, the fact Louis would, in the public mind at least, be considered a former champion were he to be knocked out makes it theoretically his twenty-fourth title defense.

The bout is the first of two 10-round so-called nontitle affairs planned for Louis the coming winter. The other, against an opponent yet to be chosen, is scheduled for next March.

Walcott, a 32-year-old veteran of the ring wars, has probably the best record of eligible Louis opponents and is considered by many as the best of the current crop of so-called contenders.

He Beat Elmer Ray

He has had three fights this year, defeating Joey Maxim twice and outpointing Elmer (Violent) Ray. He had lost close decisions to each of these men previously.

He is a wide-shouldered, well-muscled individual with a fair punch and much cleverness and know-how. His left jab is rated among the best in the business.

Louis last appeared in a bout other than an exhibition when he knocked out Tami Mauriello in the first round at Yankee Stadium September 18, 1946. The dearth of acceptable opponents has kept him idle since.

Louis, Strauss said, will start preliminary training early in September at West Baden, Ind. He has been playing much golf and is reported in fair condition as a result.

Bogley, Yates Eliminated

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 31.—Gilbert Bogley and Jack Yates of Chevy Chase, Md., sole remaining Washington area representatives in the National Junior and Boys Tennis championships were eliminated today in the third round of Junior Doubles competition.

They were ousted by the highly rated team of MacDonald Matley, Princeton, N. J., and Sidney Schwartz, Brooklyn, N. Y., 8—6, 6—4.

The Chevy Chase team, unfortunate in drawing the second-seeded team so early in the tournament, put up a valiant fight, particularly in the long first set. One service break was the difference between a loss and possible victory in the second set.

Earlier the boys doubles team of David Mathey, Princeton, N. J., and Ted Rogers of Chevy Chase, was eliminated by Allen Cleveland, Santa Monica, Calif., and Robert Perry, Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—2 in the third round.

Quinns, Alexandria Play

The first game of a playoff series to determine the second half winner of the Boys' Club of Washington Western Division Midget Class will be played today at 2 p. m. on the East Ellipse between Eastern Quinns, first half winners, and Alexandria Boys' Club. The winner meets Peoples Drug Stores Monday in the final playoff game.

Tribe Sweeps Bosox Series

Boston, July 31 (AP).—Homers by Manager Lou Boudreau and Joe Gordon scored all Cleveland's runs today as the Indians swept a three-game stand by edging the Red Sox, 5 to 4, before a light 5879 crowd at Fenway Park.

Both drives landed barely fair in the left field screen, Boudreau's in the first with Dale Mitchell on base after a single, and Gordon's in the sixth with Eddie Robinson and Hank Edwards ahead of him after a single and a walk.

For righthanded Bob Lemon, it was his first start of the season for the Indians and he was credited with the victory although he left the game in the sixth, when the Sox collected three runs.

Nats Turn on Browns Behind Haefner, 4-1

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Mickey Haefner turned a five-hit performance at Griffith Stadium last night and the Nats defeated the St. Louis Browns, 4-1.

The victory was Washington's only one in the three-game series. It was Haefner's third straight win and his sixth of the season against eight defeats. He fanned six of the Missourians.

Only six thousand fans braved the threat of rain to watch the series finale in which the Nats were trying to avert a clean sweep by the Browns.

Mickey Haefner had Fred Sanford, rookie righthander of the Browns, as his pitching opponent, and it was a scoreless duel between the pair through the first four innings, with each allowing two hits.

Berardino's double with one out in the first inning proved an empty scoring threat by the Browns, and Moss, who led off the third with a single, never advanced past second.

The Nats fluked an inviting opportunity in the fourth when they had men on second and third with none out and failed to score.

Buddy Lewis' single opened the inning, and Robertson drew a walk. They were wild pitched along by Sanford, who then bore down. He retired Vernon on a harmless rap back to the box and walked Spence intentionally. Dillinger grabbed Priddy's grounder for a force play at the plate, and Christman also grounded into a force play.

Sherry Bangs One

The Nats broke loose against Sanford in the sixth to set Haefner up in a 3-0 lead, with Sherry Robertson striking the big blow of the inning.

Lewis opened up with a single to center and, scoring a sacrifice, Robertson bashed a triple to left center. Vernon drew a walk and Spence moved Robertson home with a fly to Brown. With two out, Christman was intentionally passed, and Evans drove in the third of the inning with a single to left.

Going into the seventh, Haefner had yielded only two hits, none since the third inning.

Browns Tally

A sparkling play by Christman on Heath's grounder over second base only halted temporarily a rally of the Browns in the seventh. A double against the center field wall by Stephens and another double to left by Judnich produced one run, but when Judnich tried to score on Brown's single to left, Robertson's throw cut him down at the plate. Moss flied out to end the inning.

The Browns had the tying runs on base briefly with one out in the eighth when Dillinger and Berardino drew consecutive walks from Haefner. The threat ended suddenly when Priddy took a soft liner off Lehner's bat and doubled Berardino off first.

Mickey Vernon singled to left to open the eighth and paved the way for a run that upped the Nats' lead to 4-1. Glenn Moulder was on the mound for the Browns. Priddy singled to left on a hit and run play, and Mark Christman moved Vernon home from third with a fly to Heath.

Rooney Horse Wins Feature

Atlantic City, N. J., July 31 (AP).—A shirt-sleeved crowd of 14,520 persons, using programs and folded newspapers to stir up local breezes in humid air, today greeted a return of racing to this resort's $4,000,000 horse stadium.

With the exception of Band Leaders Harry James and Don Voorhees, it was a celebrity-shy throng that watched Air Patrol win the feature $10,000 added Pageant Handicap, a 6-furlong affair, over a fast track.

The crowd wagered $152,411 on the Pagent in which Air Patrol and Westminster, both owned by Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh National Professional Football League Steelers, were a favored entry. Of the total mutuel handle, $28,873 was bet on the entry to bring backers $5, $2.90 and $2.50 aeross the board.

The 6-year-old Air Patrol, with Bobby Martin up, thrilled with a stretch drive that overtook Lighthouse, the early leader, and Inroc. Favorites failed in earlier races an dAir Patrol's form runing was crowd-pleasing.

The meet runs 21 days. Total mutuel handle fo rthe opening eight-race program was $1,084,617.

Redskins Eat, Hear Farewell, Head for Coast

Eighteen members of the team and five coaches were guests at the Junior Board of Commerce's annual "Farewell to the Redskins" luncheon.

Andy Farkas, one-time Redskin great and now a Washington businessman, made the introductory speech to board members and then George Preston Marshall, owner of the Skins took over and with the help of Coach Turk Edwards introduced members of the team.

Rice Flies Out

Although Dyer sent in the fleet Joffre Cross to run for Moore, Del Rice, batting for Howie Pollet ended the game by flying out to Dixie Walker. Pollet yielded 10 hits but pitched himself in and out of frequent trouble before succumbing to his ninth defeat. It was his first loss this season to the Dodgers.

Brooklyn got to Pollet in the third when Ed Stanky beat out a bunt with one out. Stanky advanced to second on Robinson's infield out, and scored when Pete Reiser singled to right.

For Lombardi it was a sixth victory, three during the current streak.

Marlboro Racing Allowed as Board Reverses Its Decision

'Aress' Scores . . .
Claim of Foul Disallowed in Bel Air Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., July 31.—Hawkwood Aress won today's feature race but backers of the $18.40 shot had some anxious moments before the victory stuck. The 4-year-old son of Hilltown got home by two lengths but there was a foul claim registered against him. After deliberation, the stewards allowed the result to stand.

Jockey Mike Sarno who rode Mrs. D. N. Lee's Pharant into second position registered the objection, claiming the winner impeded his mount on the backstretch. Pharant finished two lengths off the winner with A. Stokes' Manita another two lengths back in the field of nine.

His Third Win of Year

Hawkwood Aress, in winning his third race in 15 tries this year, was clocked in 1:24 for the six furlongs while under the handling of Jockey George Cardoza.

Jockey Jimmy Baird who was aboard four winners today, took Fernlet to the front at the break and set a strong pace. Pharant, Hawkwood Aress and Manita were closely bunched behind the leader. In the stretch, Fernlet faltered and Hawkwood Aress and Pharant moved together. In the final drive, Hawkwood Aress had too many speed guns for Pharant. Manita, a maiden, turned in a fair effort to be third.

Baird had to be satisfied with a dead heat in the first race when the judges, with the aid of the camera, were unable to separate Baird's Cut Sugar, owned by the Blue Bonnet Farm Stable, and Mrs. E. R. Ayres' Little Push. Cut Sugar paid $6 and Little Push returned $8.

Baird took the second with J. W. Ignatowsky's Rakish Jane in a tight photo finish with the Cedar Hill Stable's Cedar Bunnie. Rakish Jane paid $9.40.

Daily doubles off Cut Sugar paid $26 and those off Little Push $27.40.

Longshot players got in on the Baird parade in the seventh race when he got up in the final strides to win with Mrs. W. Cole Byron's Trout Lake at $42.40. James Gross' Alpine Boy was unable to resist Baird and company going into the wire.

Sports Editor:

I get the City edition of your paper. I am as interested in the National League race as most Washingtonians are in the American League championship.

So I am calling your attention to the fact that I did not get a report on the Brooklyn-St. Louis game of Wednesday night in my paper Thursday morning.

(signed) SUBSCRIBER.

Dear Subscriber:

The Dodgers held a lead of 10-0 at the end of four innings.

The Cardinals scored six runs in their half of the ninth inning to tie the score at 10-all.

Brooklyn won out in the tenth inning, 11 to 10.

It took most of the night to complete the game and St. Louis time is later than Washington time.

Sports Editor.

Maricostas, Ryan Meet

George Macricostas, conqueror of Gino Garibaldi the other night, will meet Red Ryan of Philadelphia in the feature wrestling match on next Wednesday night's show at Turner's Arena. Ryan drew with Chick Garibaldi in the co-feature on the same card.

Pigs CAN Swim and They Will Today in Coast Derby

Kirkland, Wash., July 31 (U.P.).—On the eve of the West's annual Pig Derby, you could get almost any kind of a price on your favorite porker. But you couldn't buy his or her chops for love nor money.

Horse racing may be more popular than pig-swimming derbys. But you wouldn't know it around here, even if the guys who are making book on the pigs are "under cover" because of a law that says you mustn't bet except at the parimutuel tracks.

It all stemmed back to Bikini Atoll when pig 311, "just a number" among the thousands of animals assembled to test the atom bomb's action on living matter, was reported swimming around in the lagoon after the first peacetime explosion of the bomb.

Experts "pooh-poohed" the story. They said pigs was pigs and couldn't swim. Pigs, they said, cut their throats with their sharp front hooves when they tried to pig-paddle.

Farmers and other swine observers arose in wrath and said pigs could TOO swim. They said they'd seen them.

The Kirkland Chamber of Commerce decided that a Pig Derby would settle the question. Several pigs swam. A black and white porker named Rose of Normandy swam the fastest and won the first derby.

Last year, the betting raged around whether the pigs could or could not swim. This year it's a straight bet-'em-as-you-see-'em, with Rose of Normandy, of course, the favorite to repeat.

Furgol's 67 Leads St. Paul Open

$40,000 Tops Horse Sales

Lexington, Ky., July 31 (AP).—The day of claiming pet thoroughbred yearling consignments "at any price" may have passed with Norman W. Church's $65,000 bid for Speculation a year ago, but plenty of big money came to Keeneland's 1947 summer auction, figures showed today.

A distinct general slump hit the '47 vendue, as reflected in a decline of better than 30 per cent in prices under last year's unequaled sale, but the top offerings of the first three days and nights found more than a few campaigners willing to take "sport's biggest gamble."

$40,000—Paid by Radio Executives Jay Paley and Leon Levy for a half-brother to Hampden, third in the 1946 Kentucky Derby. Sired by Blenheim II and out of Evening Shadow.

$37,500—Paid by fabulous King Ranch of Texas, owner of Assault, for a half-brother to Twilight Tear. Sired by Whirlaway out of Lady Lark.

$35,000—Paid by Coldstream stud, which has been paying great sums for leading fillies and mares to build up its broodmare herd, for a half-sister to Beaugay. Sired by Count Fleet, out of Risk.

$30,000—Paid by Paley and Levy for a promising son of War Admiral and Bird of Blue, the dam of Ahamo and others.

Worsham, Ferrier in Group at 69

St. Paul, Minn., July 31 (AP).—A 12-foot putt that dropped on the 18th hole for a birdie four, swept Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., professional into a first-day lead in the St. Paul $10,000 Open Golf Tournament today, with a 67, five strokes under par for the Keller Municipal Course.

Furgol's card was one stroke better than those of four other contestants who had visions of sharing the lead, at least temporarily.

Glenn Teal, 28-year-old Jacksonville, Fla., pro was the first of the quartet to turn in a 68. He was followed by Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio's representative in the amateur ranks and low man in that class in last year's St. Paul Open; George Payton of Chicago, and Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., professional and master's open titlist.

Behind them with 69s were such notables as Lew Worsham of Washington, National Open Champion, and Jim Ferrier of Chicago, National Professional Golfers' Association Champion. Two others with 69s were Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, La., and Bill Nary of Los Angeles.

Seasons Fixed For Waterfowl

President Truman yesterday fixed the open seasons and shooting limits on waterfowl in the United States territories and possessions.

The proclamation was issued, as usual, under terms of the treaty governing migratory birds signed with Canada in 1916 and the convention on wild fowl and game animals concluded in 1936 with Mexico.

The open seasons on waterfowl and coot—except for wood ducks, snow geese and brant in Maryland, Virginia and Delaware and excluding Ross' geese and swans—are as follows:

Maryland—November 4 to November 14 and December 23 to January 3.

Rails and gallinues (except coot) may be taken from September 1 to November 30, inclusive, except as follows:

Maryland—September 1 to 30.

On woodcock, the open seasons are established as follows:

Delaware and Maryland—November 15 to November 29.

Virginia—November 20 to December 4.

Maryland—September 1 to October 15.

Virginia—September 16 to October 31.

Polio Vaccine Announced for One Strain

New York, July 31 (U.P.).—An experiment showing that one strain of infantile paralysis virus can be made harmless and at the same time be turned into a vaccine was made public tonight.

The experiment, conducted on rats by a group of Stanford University scientists, was regarded as another step in the long, tedious job of finding a suitable vaccine for humans.

Earlier this year, Dr. Hubert S. Loring had reported success in attempts to purify, or concentrate, the poliomyelitis virus.

In the new experiments, Dr. Loring used the so-called Lansing strain of polio virus, taken from a Lansing, Mich., boy several years ago. There are many other strains of polio virus and a vaccination must be found that will be effective on all types.

England Notes Increase

London, July 31 (U.P.).—Infantile paralysis cases are increasing in London and Wales at a rate that may reach epidemic form, health statistics showed tonight.

Up to July 19 this year 722 cases of polio had been reported, with a death rate of about 10 per cent. At the same time in 1938, only 142 cases had been reported.

(In the United States, the latest polio figures show the disease running far behind 1946, which was the Nation's second worst year. Cases now total 1570 against 3256 at the same time last year.)

WAA Put Out Airplane Rides Too Freely, Rep. Rizley Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Rizley (R., Okla.) yesterday accused the War Assets Administration of using a fleet of planes to haul stenographers, clerks and other "unauthorized passengers," with some of the trips "weekend" affairs.

Rizley told reporters expenses in flying authorized passengers were far above commercial costs.

He cited 37 flights between November, 1946, and March, 1947, on which he said 117 authorized passengers were carried at a cost of $72,572.87, including 28 test flights of planes. He said commercial air transport could have provided the same service for $13,141.48, making a savings of $59,431.39.

Secretary's Case Cited

Rizley is chairman of a House Expenditures Subcommittee which has been investigating WAA flying expenditures.

"For the benefit of the WAA and anybody else," Rizley said, the inquiry includes a finding that "one WAA employe, according to official flight logs maintained by WAA, made five trips at various times during the last year, ostensibly as a secretary.

"WAA personnel records show this person to be on duty status in her office during the time she was on these trips, with one exception. In that case, she is shown as being on annual leave."

Jess Larson, WAA general counsel, said he is familiar in general with the report of Rizley's subcommittee staff, since his office supplied the information.

Larson added, however, that "with some of the conclusions we are forced to take exception."

Littlejohn to Be Called

The subcommittee had planned to question WAA Administrator Robert Littlejohn and his deputy, James A. Mollison, yesterday, but both were out of the city—Littlejohn in New York and Mollison in Kingman, Ariz.

Rizley said both will be heard later at hearings for purposes of a "full, detailed investigation."

In New York, Littlejohn said the WAA was "selling out" its planes and had only about 10 left. He added that the agency was "getting out of the business."

He said it was probable that in some cases when a plane was flying on business to a specific destination "an occasional passenger might have been taken along in an empty seat" but he said it had not been a widespread practice.

'Coast-to-Coast' Flight Takes 10 Minutes

Wichita, Kan. (U.P.)—Pilot Bert Briney's home office in Wichita was puzzled—for a while—when he cabled from Santiago, Chile, that he had flown coast-to-coast in 10 minutes and 6 seconds.

Amplification of his message revealed that while delivering a Beech Aircraft plane to a buyer in the South American country he had crossed the Isthmus of Panama from ocean to ocean in that time.

Briney piloted the single-engined cabin plane from Wichita to the Chilean capital, a distance of 7,000 miles, in 50½ hours flying time.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Freshman Senators Judged on Record

By Drew Pearson

Now that the U. S. Senate has heard the last rap of the gavel and gone home, it is appropriate to let the voters who elected them know something about how their new Senators stacked up in the arena of Washington. This session saw the largest crop of new Senators in years, including seven who previously served as Governors. They were men of broad experience of whom much could be expected.

Ives

Out of the entire crop, however, only four achieved an A-1 rating: Ives of New York and Flanders of Vermont, Republicans; with Sparkman of Alabama and McGrath of Rhode Island, Democrats. All were a credit to their States and justified the confidence of the voters.

On the other hand, four freshman Senators rate in the duncecap class: O'Conor of Maryland, Democrat, with McCarthy of Wisconsin, Bricker of Ohio, and Jenner of Indiana, Republicans. In some respects, Bricker, McCarthy, and Jenner were no worse than two or three of their freshman colleagues, except for one thing—their constant babble of braggadocio brought them more public attention.

Senatorial Boxscore

ZALES ECTON, Montana Republican—Hearty, amiable, country-bred, agrees that you can take the boy out of the farm, but that you can't take the farm out of the boy. His ruddy face and bulky frame would look more at home alongside a cow or behind a tractor. Shy and timid about Washington, Ecton never pretended to be anything but a party hack—which he is. Class D rating.

ARTHUR WATKINS, Utah Republican—Was a little-known small-town lawyer, never taken seriously until the 1946 Republican landslide suddenly swept him into the Senate. He is frank, honest, garrulous in private, but on the Senate floor sits meekly at his desk behaving like a good but very timid Republican. No one can question his sincerity, but no one can rate him high on ability. A Class D Senator.

GEORGE MALONE, Nevada Republican—A former consulting engineer, works hard, does more listening than talking, is not afraid to buck GOP leadership when he thinks they're wrong; has turned out to be a slightly better-than-average freshman Senator. Class C rating.

WILLIAM B. UMSTEAD, North Carolina Democrat—An expert on parliamentary procedure, and a conscientious conservative, Umstead seemed to be right at home among the mediocrities surrounding him. A class C-minus Senator.

WILLIAM E. JENNER, Indiana Republican—a man of convictions—those of the senior Senator from Indiana, Homer Capehart, whom Jenner follows religiously. Never did he deviate from Capehart. Never did he indicate that he had a mind of his own. A great grandstander and breast-beater, Jenner talked big about aiding veterans, but nearly always could be found voting against them. Class E rating.

RAYMOND BALDWIN, Connecticut Republican—a man of intense personal drive, rates next to Ives and Flanders among the abler of GOP freshmen. A moderate independent, Baldwin voted against the wool-grab bill, opposed Taft isolation; let no grass grow under his feet. Class B.

JOSEPH McCARTHY, Wisconsin Republican—came to the Senate with more publicity build-up than any colleague, but fizzled faster. Worked hard for Pepsi-Cola sugar decontrol, preached aid to veterans, but consistently voted with the real-estate lobby against them, talked more and did less constructive work than any other new Congressman except Bricker. Class E rating.

JOHN BRICKER, Ohio Republican—former Governor of Ohio and GOP candidate for Vice President, big things were expected of Bricker but his Ohio colleague, Bob Taft, put him well in the shade. Bricker made his Washington debut with a gridiron speech which struck a universally sour note, and he kept sounding sour notes during most of the session. He worked more for his Ohio banking friend, John Galbreath, and the real estate lobby than for veterans. One real estate lobby even gloated over the fact that Bricker introduced four bills for them. Class E.

EDWARD J. THYE, Minnesota Republican—former Governor of his State, quiet, sincere, unassuming, can be a strong battler for issues that interest him, one of the better members of the new Senate crop. Class B.

Others Discussed

HENRY DWORSHAK, Idaho Republican—after an undistinguished career in the House, Dworshak rode the GOP landslide into the Senate where he has been equally undistinguished ever since. A D-minus Senator.

EDWARD MARTIN, Pennsylvania Republican—former Governor of Pennsylvania, given to haranguing on the Senate floor. Martin may have been a good major general but in the Senate he adds nothing to the prestige of the Nation's second most powerful State.

JOHN J. WILLIAMS, Delaware Republican—a grain dealer and turkey raiser, who pretends to be an expert statesman, Williams is out of place in the Senate. Class D rating.

HERBERT O'CONOR, Maryland Democrat—a former Governor, O'Conor's experience should have rated him among the top Senate freshmen. Instead, his groveling before the Republicans who are probing his election has lost him the respect of both Republicans and Democrats. He has bowed and bootlicked so much that no one knows what his politics and position are—perhaps not even O'Conor himself. He is going no place—unless it is back to Maryland. A class E-minus Senator.

SPESSARD HOLLAND, Florida Democrat—a slow starter, who began to sparkle toward the end of the session. Prior to that, few people realized he was in Washington. A C Senator.

WILLIS ROBERTSON, Virginia Democrat—his presence in the Senate merely means that Senator Harry Byrd now has two votes instead of one. And much of the time those two votes are cast on the Republican side.

JOHN S. COOPER, Kentucky Republican—a rugged independent, Cooper might make a real name for himself if he had more personal drive. A B-minus Senator.

HARRY CAIN, Washington Republican—has ability and a flair for theatrics, but his ability is usually found on the wrong side. During the campaign, his opponents charged that Cain was a tool of the real estate lobby and his voting record unquestionably bears that out. Taft sent $3000 to Washington to help get Cain elected, and Cain has followed Taft's leadership on everything except the Taft Housing bill.

Except for top-rating Ives, Flanders, Sparkman and McGrath, already discussed many times in this column, that is the Merry-Go-Round box-score on new members of the Eightieth Senate.

Katona Case Counsel Seeks 'Whole Story'

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leonardtown, Md., July 31.—"The whole story" of what happened the night Mrs. Julia Katona, 35-year-old Navy wife, was murdered "must still be uncovered," State Senator Paul J. Bailey declared today.

Bailey, who is defense counsel for Seaman 1/c Joseph Daniel Brouillette, charged with the strangulation murder of the woman, said the need for further investigation was the reason for his decision to waive a preliminary hearing here tomorrow morning.

Although not saying so specifically, Bailey implied that the murderer is still at large. He said that his interviews with persons present at the card game the night of July 22 and with neighbors and associates of 22-year-old Brouillette indicated many details required further investigation.

"There is more information on this affair turning up every day," Bailey disclosed. He declined to reveal the new evidence but said much of it would be used if Brouillette is indicted by the St. Marys County grand jury, which will meet September 15.

If the trial is held, Bailey said he plans to ask that Brouillette's case be heard in another county.

Mrs. Jules George Brouillette of Manchester, N. H., mother of the seaman, arrived here about 2 p. m. today and joined Mrs. Marjorie Anne Brouillette, wife of the sailor, in visits to the St. Marys Jail. He has been held there since his arrest at the U. S. Naval Air Station at Patuxent River, Md.

The arraignement is scheduled for tomorrow at 10 a. m. before Trial Magistrate Ralph Abell.

Physician Urges Broad Attack on Rheumatic Fever

Cleveland (U.P.)—The whole field of social medicine—doctors, public health nurses, medical social workers, parents and teachers—should share in control of rheumatic fever, Dr. Alexander T. Martin of New York University School of Medicine, said in an address here.

One of the greatest cripplers and killers, rheumatic fever has nearly one million victims in this country, most of whom contracted the disease in childhood, Dr. Martin said.

An estimated 40,000 persons die each year from the ailment. The average age at death is 30 years, and of the million suffering from the disease, more than 200,000 are school children between 5 and 19 years of age, according to the doctor.

"More intensive research is needed in rheumatic fever," Dr. Martin said. "Community programs should be set up, registries of victims should be started and school health programs established to screen out suspected cases."

Swing Sessions

Write a Letter and Win an Album

By Bill Gottlieb

New York, July 31.—"The thing we have to keep in mind," said the State Department's Charles W. Thayer, "is that these Russian cats are 15 years behind us."

Benny Goodman

The warning was directed at four of us who are to join Benny Goodman in handling the popular music portion of the government's Russian broadcasts. Thayer, who supervises the over-all program, was concerned lest we fire too much modern and "pure" jazz at the Communists.

If you'd like to win record albums by assisting in these programs, listen closely to the following:

Up to now, the daily six-minute shots have been handled by Goodman, alone, and included a mixture of all kinds of popular music. The swing segment proved the most popular part of the entire Russian show. Consequently, while the whole program is being increased 50 per cent (from 1 to 1½ hours), swing is being doubled (from 6 to 12 minutes).

Our short wave audience consists principally of intellectuals, upper-class officials, musicians and a few other types who can afford sets . . . Russians go to bed late; so the air shots would reach Moscow about midnight . . . Benny Goodman is a big name in Russia. All dance bands in urban centers imitate our music, which has infiltrated via short wave from western Europe and via records imported by traveling dignitaries (our records aren't for sale in the U. S. S. R.).

Some of the questions that arose at the initial meeting: Should the programs lead up to be-bop and modernism? . . . If so, how long should it take? . . . Should rumbas be included, since they're part of the American scene though not indigenous to it? . . . Should the most popular American bands be included even though they are artistically inferior?

Each of us "experts" will handle the show every fourth week. That involves choosing records, writing script for a Russian-speaking announcer and, on Sunday, briefly interviewing a big music personality with the help of an interpreter.

The problem also involves preparing something that will do Americans proud, artistically, yet will have enough popular appeal to keep the Russian audience listening and receptive to the serious parts which follow on the program.

Would you like to help?

How about thinking up seven daily programs of three records each. Just list the records, then add a paragraph of less than 100 words explaining what you think should be the guiding thoughts behind the preparation of future programs.

Washington Post readers who submit the five best letters will receive from Benny Goodman and me any available popular album they request, plus written acknowledgment from Benny and a listing in this column. Letters must be mailed before August 16 to Bill Gottlieb, 3415 RKO Building, Rockefeller Center, New York 20, N. Y. Include your album choice in your letter.

Hedy Is Lovely; Picture Is Suds

By Richard L. Coe

"SHE TOLD ME TO TELL YOU," says a character in "Dishonored Lady," at the Earle, "that she was growing a new soul and would you please keep off the grass."

Hedy Lamarr is the star of this one, a mesmerizing melodrama of Lust and True Love, quite like a radio serial with pictures. Since Hedy is in practically all the pictures, it's fetching to watch. If you wonder what the soap operas of television will be like, "Dishonored Lady" should give a close idea.

The film is from a play which Katharine Cornell served valiantly on the stage. We suspect, though without betting our neck on it, that something new has been added.

This is the role of—you've guessed it—a psychiatrist. One of the film's most amusing moments comes when Morris Carnovsky tells clean, noble Dennis O'Keefe, "I happen to be her psychiatrist." You should see Dennis' eyes at that point. They are literally on stalks. Carnovsky might as well have said veterinarian, Dennis is that shattered.

If the soul doc is an added attraction to the Edward Sheldon-Margaret Ayer Barnes play, we've no complaints. Let's be up to date by all means! For the film centers around one of those fashionable ladies who is art editor for a woman's magazine, and you know how modern they are.

"DISHONORED LADY," United Artists release of a Hunt Stromberg production, produced by Jack Chertok. Screenplay by Edmund H. North, from the play by Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes. Directed by Robert Stevenson. At the Earle Theater.

THE CAST

Madeleine Damien	Hedy Lamarr
Dr. Cousins	Dennis O'Keefe
Felix Courtland	John Loder
Garet	William Lundigan
Kranish	Paul Cavanagh
Dr. Caleb	Morris Carnovsky
Ethel	Natalie Schafer
Prosecuting Attorney	Douglass Dumbrille
Defense Attorney	Nicholas Joy
A Landlady	Margaret Hamilton

Hedy is at the top of the professional diamond pile—a gleaming office, elastic hours, a Waldorf apartment and white mink to drip about the night clubs in. From what her associates say, more than what the screen shows us, Hedy is man crazy. She'll have a beautiful fling with anybody.

Troublesome Cigarette Lighter

But even the rich, full life palls, and when Hedy tries to ram her car into eternity she lands in the backyard of psychiatric, insistent Carnovsky. Under his guidance she gives up the old glamour life and takes a small flat where she devotes her time to painting for Art not Commerce.

A neighbor is a fine young doctor, trying to do a little research before returning to the everyday chores of country practice. Love dawns.

But while O'Keefe is out convincing the medicos that his research will shake the world, Hedy runs into her old companions. One of them, an international jeweler, gets fatally conked on the head with a cigarette lighter. Hedy seems to be the murderer, and in the trial which follows all her past indiscretions come tumbling out, to the horror of fine, clean O'Keefe.

As in all good soap operas, the episode ends blissfully. What happens to them after the wedding bells one hesitates to imagine. The only thing the picture has left out is the commercials.

Flossily Produced

It's all flossily done and everyone goes through the familiar paces with assurance. Hedy remains as beautiful as ever and her curious accent is far more palatable than it was when she was playing a Maine type in "Strange Woman."

The aficionados of the fan magazines will find added zest in the role of the murdered playboy, played by John Loder, until recently Miss Lamarr's husband and who, according to his curious testimony in the divorce case, had to pay board to his wife while living in her house. (This seems to be the sort of picture that gets an added fillip from noting such irrelevancies.)

O'Keefe is plausible as the stunned lover, and what intentional comedy there is comes from Margaret Hamilton as the apartment manager. Altogether, "Dishonored Lady" is slick and hollow.

Milland, in Cellu-Lloyd Farce, Joshes the Psychiatric Cycle

By Leo Brady

In "The Trouble With Women" at the Capitol, Ray Milland wears what looks very much like a pair of Harold Lloyd's old spectacles, and Paramount has supplied him with what looks even more like an old Lloyd plot. The prescription is still valid—even if the lenses are scratched and the rims battered. The result is a better-than-average farce-comedy.

Teresa Wright

"THE TROUBLE WITH WOMEN," Paramount release produced by Harry Tugend. Screenplay by Arthur Sheekman. From a story by Ruth McKenny and Richard Branston. Directed by Sidney Lanfield. At the Capitol Theater.

THE CAST

Professor Sedley	Ray Milland
Kate Farrell	Teresa Wright
Joe McBride	Brian Donlevy
Dean Agnes Meeler	Rose Hobart
Ulysses S. Jones	Charles Smith
Dr. Wilmer Dawson	Lewis Russell
Rita La May	Iris Adrian
George	Frank Faylen
Judge	Rhys Williams
Avery Wilson	Lloyd Bridges
Mrs. Wilmer Dawson	Norma Varden
Keefe	James Milligan
Herman	Matt McHugh
Peanuts	Jimmie Smith

The basic story is wild enough to lend itself to broad treatment, the lines are terse, bright and frequently funny, and the cast maintains that air of loud-mouthed indignation that so often distinguishes this kind of film.

Milland is a psychology professor with a theory about women. Like many farce theories, it turns out to be somewhat impractical, especially when stacked up against a flesh-and-blood item such as Miss Wright is supposed to be.

The professor discovers that other things besides texts often rear their heads in a young man's life and the collision of theory and practice set up the usual farce situations: mistaken identity, misunderstood motives, interrupted meetings, and so forth. The whole thing is done with good humor and consistency and reels off likably throughout.

The pace falters here and there as the action hops from the professor's campus to the city room where Donlevy is a scatter-headed editor and Miss Wright a sob reporter. Where here and there it scoops up a stale gag or a clumsy line or a trite situation, moments like these rescue it: Milland keeping scientific record of his reactions in love scenes; Iris Adrian as a blatant burlesque queen; the courtroom ending where love triumphs over hypnotism; the classroom where the student teaches the professor.

Director Sidney Lanfield relaxes your reflexes from time to time—especially just before the final scene when everything tends to wind down—but there's enough good material to overbalance this. If Lloyd was better at this sort of thing, Milland, Miss Wright and Donlevy give it acceptable treatment.

If the recent complainers about misrepresentation of professions on the screen wanted to go to work on this picture, they'd have a field day. But not even Rhys Williams' stupefied judge of the final scene would really consider taking farce as serious social comment.

The butt of much of the humor, by the way, is that same psychological theory which movies of late have been taking with deadly seriousness. This picture—which is not the final word—may prompt a really riotous satire on the recent idea of putting so many eggs in one basket.

On the Capitol stage, Barney Grant is the headliner, a comedian whose explanations are better than his jokes—as he intends. Ben Yost's Vikings sing an incredible number of songs in their brief turn, the Rigoletto Brothers do tricks amusingly and Estalle and LeRoy run through a series of dances of varying types. Kay de Witt sings some Gershwin tunes with Sam Jack Kaufmann's pit orchestra.

Cathy O'Donnell Doubles on Keys

Hollywood.—When he came to film the FBI office sequence in RKO Radio's "Your Red Wagon," Director Nicholas Ray found he was short a vital player. He needed, for "color," a typist sitting with back to camera who could really rattle the keys. One had been engaged, but at the last minute failed to appear.

So Cathy O'Donnell, playing the femme lead, but not needed in the scene, volunteered. She earned the money that brought her to Hollywood as an Oklahoma City typist.

"And," said Cathy, "I keep in training. Just in case."

Mrs. Riskin Picks Film's Typical Boy

Hollywood—Because Producer Robert Riskin took his wife to the ball game one night, while he was casting "Magic Town" with James Stewart and Jane Wyman, Sandy Oster became an actor.

All worn out with his months-long search for five typical American boys never before in the movies to play featured roles, Riskin was relaxing while he watched the Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League. He wasn't talent-hunting.

But his wife thought Sandy, the team mascot, was cute. "And a mascot is so typical," she said.

PMA to Drop Produce List Reports Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Chalk up another casualty due to congressional economy.

Daily reports of Washington wholesale produce quotations will be discontinued by the Agriculture Department's Production and Marketing Administration, effective next week.

"Lack of sufficient funds" will cause the demise of the local news service on eggs, poultry, fruits and vegetables. The discontinuance comes near the peak of the growing season, when the reports are of special interest as a clew to the market trend.

However, such reports will be continued in Baltimore. A PMA official here said yesterday that Washington wholesale prices generally are in line with those at Baltimore, "possibly slightly higher here."

For about 30 years the daily produce quotations have been issued by a Federal agency and published in The Washington Post. The price fluctuations are watched closely by farmers, shippers, wholesalers, hotelmen, institutional heads and thrifty housewives among others.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—All corn contracts bounded to new seasonal highs in a strong, active market on the Board of Trade today. Wheat and oats also made substantial advances although not reaching peaks established earlier in the season.

The advance in corn ranged to more than 7 cents a bushel, or within a cent of the 8-cent gain permitted in a single session. Commission houses bought aggressively throughout the day and final prices were only minor fractions under the highs.

Wheat closed 3¾ to 4⅛ higher, September 2.31¾@2.31¼; corn was 4¾ to 7⅛ higher, September 2.13@2.13½, and oats were 2⅞ to 3⅝ higher, September 94@94⅛.

Basis for the strength in corn was lack of moisture in the Midwest, coupled with predictions of continued clear weather. Reports from various sections pointed out that July moisture was below normal, contrasting with June, and that rain was now the most important factor in development of the corn crop.

A strong demand also developed in the cash market, where spot corn prices jumped 2 to 5 cents and premiums on to-arrive grain were maintained despite the sharp upturn in futures. Offerings have not been large lately and analysts see some disposition upon the part of producers to hold back until the current crop is determined.

New York Cotton

New York, July 31 (AP).—Cotton futures registered final gains of 1.05 to 1.85 a bale in moderately active dealings today. Persistent trade buying was influenced partly by the pending Commodity Credit Corporation purchases of cotton for Japan. France was also reported in the market for American cotton.

News that Britain will encourage large textile exports to all world markets during the third quarter failed to affect futures.

Stocks Stage Sizable Rally In Slow Deals

New York, July 31 (AP).—Stocks today ended July with a substantial recovery move that, while unusually slow, enabled market leaders to get back fractions to 3 or more points of their recent relapse.

From the start the ticker tape dragged, although steels, motors, rails and assorted industrials continued to edge forward. Heavy trades in low-quoted sprinters propped volume which still was among the smallest of the month. There was a pickup in activity in the final quarter hour and favorites generally closed at their best levels of the day.

Transfers of 840,000 shares compared with 1,170,000 Wednesday and were a low since July 22. Of the total, Commonwealth & Southern accounted for 126,800 shares. This stock came out in blocks of 1000 to 30,000 following directors' approval of a new dissolution plan and emerged up ⅜ at 3½. The month's market aggregate was 25,472,787 shares against 17,482,740 for June which was a low since September, 1944. The July figure was a top since last December.

Only Slight, Seasonal Decline Predicted for Meat Prices

Unless there is a decline in "consumer incomes and spending" only a "moderate, seasonal decline is expected in meat prices" this fall, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicted yesterday.

Prospects for a smaller corn crop will not cause a decrease in supplies this year, "but would lower the output next year," BAE added.

Meat prices were at record levels in July, BAE said, about one fifth higher than a year ago. An above average demand from lower-income families was given as an important factor.

"Spending for meat increases relatively more than for most other foods when consumer income in the lower brackets increases," it said.

The bureau made no forecast as to future consumer demand and income. It noted that employment and national income have risen to record highs.

The bureau sharply disagreed with a report of a House Agriculture subcommittee of Wednesday, which charged that meat exports last year had caused present high prices.

The department said last year's exports of 445 million pounds of meat mentioned in the report of Representative August Andresen (R., Minn.) "represents a little more than one week's meat consumption in this country."

During the months mentioned by Andresen, it said, meat production was 21 billion pounds.

During the day an appeal was made to the District Commissioners to ask that Andresen hold one of his proposed hearings into the causes of high meat prices in Washington.

Making the appeal were Mrs. Gertrude Evans of the CIO Industrial Union Council; Mrs. Kathleen Clift of the Washington League of Women Shoppers, and Maynard DeWitt of the American Veterans Committee.

Commissioner John Russell Young told them he would take the matter up with the other two Commissioners when they return to the city. One member, Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, is absent on a month's vacation.

Hartley Going To Hollywood For Hearings

By The Associated Press

Chairman Hartley (R., N. J.) of the House Labor Committee headed for Hollywood yesterday to open hearings on labor troubles in the movie capital.

Hartley told reporters 91 witnesses have been subpenaed for the sessions due to start Monday. He said the inquiry will reach first for facts in the sometimes violent jurisdictional dispute that has been going on for years between the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes and the Conference of Studio Unions.

In addition, Hartley said, the investigation will cover:

The "involvement" of the movie industry in television through James C. Petrillo and his AFL Musicians Union.

Petrillo's "control" of frequency modulation broadcasting.

Hartley said Petrillo won't permit "live" musicians to appear on television programs and "there has been some interference with production of television sets."

The chairman said there also have been reports that entertainers in some instances are compelled to join as many as four unions, all chartered by a single parent union, in order to be allowed to perform. He did not say what parent union was involved in these reports.

Representative Kearns (R., Pa.) and Irving McCann, committee attorney, have preceded Hartley to the coast. Kearns is chairman of a subcommittee of three assigned to the hearings there.

The other two subcommittee members, Representatives Nixon (R., Calif.) and Barden (D., N. C.), were unable to go, so Hartley decided to go out and look in at least on the start of things.

He said the hearings probably will run three weeks, but he plans to remain only five days and then leave it all to Kearns and McCann.

Father Blames Dream In Killing of Daughter

Carthage, Ill., July 31 (AP).—A 46-year-old woman was shot to death last night in a Burlington Railroad passenger train coach and Sheriff Willard Steinbarger said her 82-year-old father told him he fired his pistol after he had a dream about train robbers.

Mrs. Elizabeth Grady of Harvey, Ill., was shot through the chest while accompanying her parents, James J. Stuffelbean and his wife, Kathryn, 72, back to their home at Brookfield, Mo., after they had visited Mr. and Mrs. Grady.

Md. Job Total Rises 7000 During June

Baltimore, July 31 (AP).—Adjusting its figures to allow for strikes and other work stoppages, the State Department of Labor and Industry reported today about 7000 more Maryland workers had jobs as of mid-June than they did a month previously.

The department characterized that figure as showing "the great growth" in the State's "high level of employment."

Actually the service estimated that 540,000 Marylanders were employed on nonagricultural jobs as of June 15, compared with 545,000 a month earlier and 529,000 as of June 15, 1946.

Construction industries accounted for 1600 of the gained jobs.

The apparent loss of 10,000 manufacturing jobs as of June 15 was directly attributable to a strike by Celanese Corp. workers at Cumberland. Offsetting this was the return to work of approximately 5000 employes at Western Electric's Point Breeze plant in Baltimore.

Another big gain in June was an increase of 1200 in food production jobs. Employment in that industry was off 2200 as compared with a year earlier, however, and this was chalked up to failure of the pea crop and the Government's abrupt withdrawal from the canned goods market.

Executive Branch Reorganization Body to Meet Soon

By The Associated Press

President Truman is expected to call for early September the first meeting of the new 12-member commission to study and make recommendations on reorganization of the Executive branch of the Government.

Former President Herbert Hoover probably will head the group created by a joint congressional resolution sponsored by Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio). Brown told a reporter that Hoover expects this to be his "last public service."

Hoover was named to the group by Speaker Martin (R., Mass.). The Speaker, the presiding officer of the Senate and the President were authorized to name four members each—two appointees to be Democrats and two Republicans to make the commission bipartisan.

Democrat appointees have told reporters they, too, believe the former Republican President should head the commission, which will make recommendations to the Eighty-first Congress when it convenes in January, 1949.

Marietta College Head Gives Up Fight for Post

Marietta, Ohio, July 31 (AP).—Dr. William Allison Shimer apparently had given up his fight today to keep the presidency of 100-year-old Marietta College.

In a letter to Prof. T. D. Phillips, leader of a faculty faction seeking retention of Dr. Shimer, the 53-year-old educator wrote:

"The trustees have notified me that they have reaffirmed their previously announced position (of opposition).

"In acceding to their request, I am obliged to ask you, and through you, all other members of the faculty and of the student body, to cease at once any activity in my behalf."

The trustees, taking notice of Dr. Shimer's "separation, divorce and remarriage," asked him to resign July 18.

Boys' Club to Sponsor Horseshoe Tournament

The Boys' Club of Washington, 17th and Massachusetts ave. se., is sponsoring an indoor horseshoe tournament today at 2 p. m. at the Boys' Club gymnasium.

Recreation Director Arthur Fyfe said the boys, using rubber horseshoes, will compete in age groups, with prizes going to the champion of each group. Prizes consist of baseballs, bats and water goggles.

National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner

24-HOUR FORECAST—Some relief from sleepless nights and oppressing hot, sultry weather is promised for the Northeast and the Lakes region today. Highest temperatures will be in the 70s from Maine to the Ohio Valley and Michigan. The mercury is expected to reach the 80s from New York to Virginia and the lower Ohio Valley.

Your weather man says, "Cool, dry air from eastern Canada will air-condition the northeast quarter of the country." However, it is no time to assemble fall wardrobes, for the climatologists remind us the hot month of August lies ahead.

Hot, moist air off the Gulf of Mexico will bring humid weather with afternoon readings of 90 degrees or higher to the rest of the United States, except the Pacific Northwest. (See air flow and air mass arrows.) Maximum temperatures will be in the 90s in the Gulf States, from the Mississippi to the Rockies and in much of California. The mercury will soar above 100 degrees in Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and the southwest desert region while Washington and Oregon will record afternoon readings in the 80s.

Weather experts point out towering clouds will build up along the coast from North Carolina to Texas and over the Rockies. Scattered thunderstorms will occur in these clouds over the affected areas in the coming 24 hours. It will be mostly sunny over the Nation today with partial cloudiness in and near the stormy areas. (See inset map. Partial cloudiness will develop in the hatched areas.)

Highest temperatures will range from 108 degrees at Phoenix and Las Vegas to a cool 67 along the Oakland, Calif., coast. This afternoon's maximum temperature forecasts include Fort Worth, 101; Atlanta and Tulsa, 95; Nashville, 94; Bismarck, 92; Kansas City, 91; St. Louis, 90; Washington, 85; Philadelphia, 84; Boston, New York and Detroit, 83; Hartford, 82.

Its gracious 50 ft. hall leads to a dining room 24x24, drawing room and library, each 40x24, and an informal paneled game room. The stairway climbs gracefully to the 2d floor, where the master bedrooms are 24x24, the others 22x22½. There are 4 baths and numerous closets. Decorations are by Tiffany of New York.
